Who Can Best Afford to Give Value in Shoes

It is interesting to see how the busy, level-headed man of affairs goes straight to the point on the shoe question.

You can meet him any day in the Regal stores. It may be only within the last year or so that he became a Regal customer. He never thought much about shoes until condition forced them on his attention.

He knows that these are critical times in the shoe business. Trade is changing and shifting. Men everywhere, and women, are looking about for something they can depend on.

The question is not alone one of price, but of what one gets for the price. Some try shopping around from store to store and are as much at sea as ever.

Extravagant people who have always thought of smart shoes as coming from a smart shop, find that shoes really come from a Maker.

Atmosphere and store fixtures can not create shoe value.

So our citizen says: "Let me see; who can best afford to give value in shoes? It would be a Maker with buying power in the leather market, with organization, quick turn-over, and a policy of one small profit on each pair of shoes."

A Maker who stamps his name and reputation in every shoe and who sees in the present situation a chance to extend his trade and make more friends and customers."

When a man begins to reason like that he is headed straight for a Regal store.

The Regal business is an institution of twenty-four years' standing. It has four great factories. It has stores and dealers from Boston to San Francisco. It is growing faster today than ever it did. It is making better shoes, selling more of them, and delivering better value.

There are shoes that sell for less money and shoes that sell for more. In our belief there is not a man or woman in America who actually needs finer shoes than Regal makes, and nobody living can deliver equal quality for less.

Regal prices are $5 to $8.

In behalf of the Bend Commercial Club I wish to most cordially thank you for this information and assure you that as many as possible from this section will be glad to attend your festivities. Dearest Public

Just had a message from "September Morn" and she says she'll be here on time unless August turns her down cold.

Say, Nellie, if you are going to be a June bride you'd better start something pretty soon.

I have a number of very pretty diamond rings, wrist attachments and "sport" colored ribbons for wrist watches. They are the season's latest. Nice new stock of the seasons latest in various lines.

I like you and want your patronage. McHattan at 605 Main street, between 6th and 7th and Heaven and Earth, but closer to earth.
