BORDER TROOPS ARE DIVIDED INTO DISTRICTS

FORT BLISS, Tex., June 6.—Because a large number of troops composing the various border divisions have been transferred to other points, the plan of having the border commands divided into districts instead of divisions has been restored.

The Brownsville district extends from Arroyo del Tigre to Mofeta, Tex. The El Paso district, more than 1,000 miles long, lies between Mofeta and the Arizona-New Mexico state line. From the Arizona line to the California line is the Arizona district, while the California district runs from the Colorado River, which is the Arizona-California border, to the Pacific.

Stalwart Young Sailor of the American Fleet

HOAGLAND SIGNED UP AS GAS ENGINE EXPERT

In a letter received this morning by his family, Louis Hoagland stated that he has been assigned as a gas engine expert, and will soon be assigned to a permanent location. Where that will be he does not know as yet.

This photograph of a rookie on the great American fleet which is awaiting orders to get into the war, shows the kind of stalwart young men now going into the navy. The black mark on his right shoulder shows where iodine has been painted over the sore left by the vaccination for typhoid.

TOMMIES SING AMERICAN SONGS

GERMANS DEVASTATE AS THEY RETREAT, WHILE TILLERS OF THE SOIL WORK AMONG FALLING SHELLS

(Staff Correspondence of the Associated Press)

BRITISH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, May 12.—While the grip of the Germans, clinging desperately to lines they flung from Switzerland to the sea, slowly but steadily is being broken, each backward step means added desolation to a beautiful part of France. The coming of spring has emphasized anew how closely the pursuits of peace tread upon the heels of war. Tidy French farms, geometrically precise, reach up to the very domain of the guns, and it is possible on many parts of the line to see old French men and women following plows or harrows almost to the very edge of the heavy battery positions.

Shells are tossed near them now and then, but they never seem to mind. The war is nearly three years old now, and shells and battle noises have become the normal things of life, not the abnormal ones. It is even possible, along older bits of the line in the north, to see farmers plowing both sides of the war zone. At the places less harshly dealt with, whence the Germans were driven this spring, many of the trenches already have been filled and the ground is being put under cultivation. Some of the newly sown fields, however, recently have been ripped up by long ranged German guns.

Grim and resolute in battle, Tommy seems to have a certain simplicity and kindness of heart, which makes him react quickly to the normal laws of manhood as soon as the fighting is over. If he has to make a journey by train, he sits in the open doors of box cars with his feet and legs swinging outside. If there is a "movie show" anywhere near, he gladly pays 50 cents to go always, especially when war scenes happen to be shown, laughing heartily when a shell bursting nearby, appears to have upset the equilibrium of the man working the camera.

Today, while resting, a squadron of cavalry was having a water carnival along a pretty little French river. Their band was playing gay airs and all the women, children and old men of the countryside came to see the swimming races, diving contests and attempts to walk a greasy pole across a swift-running stream. There was a soldier clown, too, and a great air of merriment all about. A German prisoner taken some time ago said he could always tell when the British were going to attack by the fact that the Tommies could be heard singing, especially ragtime.

There are no longer any songs about how long it is from Tipperary, but at work or play, or swinging along the roads to battle nowadays, the Tommies sing about wanting to get back to their home in Tennessee, and about having a Kentucky jubilee, without the slightest idea just where Tennessee or Kentucky are.

If the American expeditionary force comes into the British zone, the Americans will find the bands playing and the men singing many old familiar tunes.

Let us all do the little bit our country asks of us—if it isn't to be at the front, let it be a Liberty Bond. We can all help, too, by keeping the dollars on the move. And remember, it matters not whether your dollar is spent in your neighborhood. Your dollar moving means five dollars worth of prosperity.
