A commitment was issued on the 7th, committing him to the Klamath County jail, and the care and custody of the keeper of that jail, who is the sheriff of Klamath County. New Pres. of N. E. A. Is Prominent Educator

Mrs. Mary C. C. Bradford, who was elected president of the National Education Association yesterday at Portland, has been prominent in educational lines for a great many years in Colorado.

She has been elected state superintendent in Colorado three times, taking the position first in 1912. She has also made herself famous for her lead in seventeen suffrage campaigns there.

In her work as superintendent her first important campaign was the standardization of rural schools, which for Colorado practically includes all of the schools. It covers all such matters as improvement of buildings, teaching staff, and the like, and is one of the most important improvements recently made in the field of education in the United States.

Mrs. Bradford has lately revised the system of school statistics, greatly simplifying them and making them more efficient. One of her improvements has been the publication of a holiday calendar, which contains the various school holidays and program for them. Her latest work, which she is just starting, is the better provision for the public school income, under which there is greater regulation on the part of the superintendent, so that she can aid the weaker school districts, thus giving all of them proper income.

Japanese Pleased With the Appointment of K. Ishii as U. S. Envoy

TOKIO, July 1.—(Correspondence)—General satisfaction is expressed in Japan at the appointment of Viscount Kikujiro Ishii, formerly minister for foreign affairs, as special envoy to the United States in connection with the present war. The appointment was made personally by Emperor Yoshihito, by virtue of a special ordinance by which Viscount Ishii is designated as temporary ambassador extraordinary. The service of installation was attended by Premier Count Terauchi, Prince Takatsukasa, grand chamberlain, and others.

It was expected that the commission would leave for the United States July 3 on the steamer Shingo Maru, and spend some three months in that country, visiting Washington and other cities. The delegates who accompanied Viscount Ishii were selected with special reference to their fitness. They include Vice Admiral Isamu Takeshita, who was formerly naval attaché at Washington, and who was detailed as captain of the Japanese cruiser Isuzu when that warship participated in the festival at San Francisco some years ago; Major General Shochi Sugano, who has since 1915, and who has been military attaché at London; Matsuzo Nagai of the foreign office, who has been embassy secretary at Washington and consul general at New York and San Francisco; Commander Shokun Ando; Major General Takawa and Tadanoo Inai of the consular service.

The selection of Viscount Ishii as chief envoy is welcomed by the press even of the opposition, because he was foreign minister of the cabinet of Marquis Okuma, which was supported by the Constitutional or opposition party. The Terauchi ministry is praised, therefore, for its broad-mindedness in choosing a diplomat of rather anti-government leaning. The selection was made, however, regardless of party considerations, and was based solely upon Viscount Ishii's fitness and capacity in advancing a unified Japanese policy in the present world crisis.

Moving Pictures

"A Kentucky Cinderella" is the attraction offered at the Grand on Sunday and Monday, when "Bluebird Day" is again celebrated. Rupert Julian made the production from F. Hopkinson Smith's story of the same name, and will share the honors with his co-star, Ruth Clifford, in leading an all-star company thru many exciting scenes and stirring episodes which find place in the unfolding plot. Little Zoe Rae and Emory Johnson, who have been stars on their own account in earlier Bluebirds, will lead the support.

Enid Bennett, hailed as the most genuine screen "discovery" of the day, makes her second appearance on the Triangle program under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince, in "The Little Brother," which will be seen at the Star theater Sunday. Miss Bennett, in the title role of this production, takes the part of a little girl of his satisfaction, and expressed the opinion that the commission would contribute much toward cementing the cordial relations between Japan and the United States, and assist in clearing away any misunderstanding entertained by the United States about Japan's policy towards China.

The primary object of the commission is one of courtesy in conveying the appreciation of the Japanese government at the action of the United States in joining the ranks of the entente allies of which Japan is a member, but in a broad way the commission will discuss questions of cooperation between the United States and Japan in the future conduct of war. Great Britain, France, Russia and Italy having dispatched commissions to the United States, Japan feels that it is fitting for her to follow in their footsteps.

There is likely to be an exchange of views on the Far Eastern questions generally and even on the situation in Russia which is a source of considerable anxiety. It is not unlikely that the Chinese question, which continues troublesome, will be considered and that in a general way the commission will seize the opportunity to further a project of co-operative understanding with reference to political affairs in the Far East.

Viscount Ishii, who speaks both English and French easily, has had a long career as a diplomat. He was secretary at Paris and at Peking, and was among the ranks of the besieged during the Boxer trouble in China. After having been recalled to the foreign office as chief of the section of telegraphs and then as director of the bureau of commercial affairs, he was dispatched to San Francisco and Vancouver in 1907 to investigate the anti-Japanese movement there. In 1908 he was appointed vice minister for foreign affairs, and in 1912 was designated as ambassador to France, which post he filled with eminent success until he was selected to be foreign minister in the Okuma cabinet. He was still in Paris in the early period of the war, and is thoroughly familiar with the European war situation.

the slums, who, thinking to add to the family income, dons boys' clothes, buys some newspapers, and plunges into the maelstrom of the city's bustling life with surprising results. The play teems with interesting characterization and rapid action. There are two novel fights that take place in the heart of the business district and in a chemist's laboratory respectively. As the hero of both of these encounters, Enid Bennett emerges triumphant. As a box office attraction this young Australian girl is said to be already in the class of screen stars with far greater experience.
