TROOPS MAY LEAVE SOON

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 16.—Mobilization of the National Guard has begun. While no orders for embarkation of state troops for France will be given before August 15th, when the entire force will be drafted into the army, there are indications that some of the divisions will be made ready to sail shortly after that date.
Many guardsmen will be retained in certain big munition works.

MAD DOG AT SPRING LAKE

ANIMAL RUNS AMUCK AMONG RANCHES OF THAT SECTION, BITING SEVERAL DOGS BEFORE IT IS FINALLY KILLED

Several narrow escapes from being bitten by a mad dog by residents of the Spring Lake section Saturday are reported. The dog, which was merely a pup, came to the ranch of Frank Gentry, and is said to have sprung at him. Gentry, not realizing the dog's condition, struck it with a shovel, knocking it down.

It then attacked and bit his dog, standing nearby, and escaped and bit several other dogs before it was finally disposed of. All the dogs in that vicinity are now muzzled until the danger of the disease spreading has been passed.

KLAMATH FALLS BOYS ENLIST

R. H. Dunbar, principal of the city schools, returned last evening from Portland, where he attended the National Education Association convention. He states that Fred Dunbar and Harold Merryman will take the examination for the officer's reserve camps tomorrow.

Local I. W. W. Names Are Made Public

Following is a list of the names found in the records of I. W. W. at Klamath Falls, which indicates that each of these men are members, and that they associated themselves with the organization during June and July of this year.

The authorities request that each employer check over their payrolls and list of employees carefully, and wherever any name or similar name as shown on this list is found, that the sheriff's office be immediately notified, that such men may be investigated at once.

STRANGE SIGHT AT CITY HALL

CROWDS CLUSTER ROUND BUILDING WHERE I. W. W. ARE CONFINED—MANY GUNS ARE IN EVIDENCE

A most unusual spectacle was in evidence all day yesterday and part of today at the Klamath Falls city hall.

Threading their way among a myriad of motor cars which occupied almost the entire block could be seen men hurrying to and fro with looks that told they were thoroughly aroused, and while the talking among the groups in and outside the hall was done for the most part in a quiet manner, there was a tenseness in the atmosphere that meant business.

All day yesterday and today the different guards have been told off, consisting of the deputies sworn in. A car drives up to the steps, unloads the five or six who have been stationed at a given point, and hurries back with the relief guard.

More guns than could have been believed in the county have been produced since yesterday morning. Shot guns, rifles, automatics, six-shooters and every imaginable form of fire arm has been in evidence.

The whole community is thoroughly aroused, and there will be no question as to the stamping out of these agitators as fast as they can be apprehended.

W. A. Delsell and family spent the day at Spring Creek yesterday.

The Greatest Hero of the Hour in Russia

Russia's young Minister of war, (right) with Albert Thomas, French Minister of Munitions. It is not person the first attacks of the Russian offensive in East Galicia, is to-day the great man of the hour in Russia about it. It is said however, all Russia. He is shown here (at the) that he is in very delicate health.

Moving Pictures

George Heban, the celebrated portrayer of French and Italian characters, will be seen at the Star tonight in the Pallas-Paramount production of "The Bond Between," a thrilling story of the New York Latin quarters, written by Mr. Heban.

One of the interesting scenes of the production is Mr. Heban's introduction where he is seen seated at his desk writing the story. The action of the drama begins practically under his pen.

Program concludes with the "La Motta, Ben and Amy," in a riot of fun and music. Tonight only.

Governor Withycombe Makes Statement

I want the citizens of this state to become alive to the fact that this I. W. W. movement is a real threat, a menace that is confronting us.

No man has more kindly feelings toward the honest laborer than I, and none believes more firmly in the maxim that "the laborer is worthy of his hire." But I have here literature, which is a part of the propaganda of this order, which shows that anarchy is its dominant spirit. "To fan the flames of discontent" is a motto which appears in this literature, and complete abolition of the wage system is flaunted as the great desire which these men wish to attain.

They are not workers; they are not laborers, but they are anarchists. They stand as opposed to law, order and government, and are aligned against all laws, both state and national.

One of their prime objects, I am certain, is to choke the life from the infant shipbuilding industry if they can accomplish it.

My information leads me to believe that these men may be backed by some great organized movement which is against the national life and independence of the United States.

Whatever this office can do, under the law, to crush this menace will be done. But I want the people of Oregon to become alive to the fact that it is a menace; that it is the intention of these so-called Industrial Workers of the World to strike and strike hard at Oregon's industries during the balance of the summer.

My correspondence convinces me beyond the shadow of a doubt that there is a real danger here which threatens this state, and we should prepare for it. What these men can do is being demonstrated in other states, and I trust that Oregon will prepare itself in time to guard against any inroads which they might contemplate here.
