SHASTA VIEW

The ladies of the Helping Hand Society were entertained by Mrs. G. W. Meyers Tuesday. There were over thirty present, and all spent a most enjoyable day. The delicious watermelon raised by the hostess added much to the bountiful dinner served. The ladies meet with Mrs. H. E. Wilson Wednesday, 19th.

F. W. McManus and family of Klamath Falls took dinner at W. W. Bailey's Sunday.

C. B. Clendenning, wife and two daughters and Gertrude Jobes of Klamath Falls visited at F. H. Jobes Wednesday. Mrs. Perkins and Miss Jobes remained for a few days.

Mrs. Ben Daniels returned home Tuesday, after visiting her parents, Henry Voss and wife of White Lake.

Quite a delegation from this locality met with the county court at Klamath Falls Wednesday, and we trust impressed upon their minds the necessity of opening some of the roads in this vicinity to accommodate the traveling public.

J. L. Bailey is doing papering and painting in Poe Valley this week.

E. G. Wilson of Corvallis is spending a few days with his son, H. E. Wilson and family.

Ed Burris and C. W. Bailey just returned from a week's trip at the huckleberry patch, where they picked fifty gallons of berries for W. C. Dalton.

Mrs. Steve Bennett has returned from her few weeks' visit at Prairie City.

American Troops in France Practising With Gas Masks Like These

While this photograph shows a respirator drill for British soldiers, it is the same form of drill American troops are now undergoing in France. In order to make the British soldiers perfect in putting on and off the gas mask, the drill is practised by men on going into and coming out of the trenches.

Great War Will Likely Be Won or Lost in Air

Since Entrance of United States In the World War, Germany is Bending Every Effort Toward Reorganizing and Strengthening Its Aviation Branches

PARIS, Aug. 9.—Correspondence of the Associated Press—The entrance of America into the war and the probability that it soon would be lending the allies tremendous aid in the aerial department of the struggle has led Germany to reorganize and strengthen its own aviation branches materially, according to the Temps. This reorganization does not date exclusively from the break with the United States, but rather from the battle of the Somme, but it has been accelerated and intensified by the reports that hundreds, if not thousands, of airplanes, with the corresponding aviators to man them are soon to be supplied to the entente forces.

The reorganization of the German aerial forces has taken the form of creating four principal divisions into which the fliers are now placed, roughly as follows:

1.—Army squadras or "army fliers' division," which are directly under the command of the army chief of aviation and the work of which consists mainly of expeditions far to the rear of the lines. They are also employed for bombardments, night flights, photographic work and the airplanes employed are of the most varied type, according to the character of the work they are to do. Recently captured prisoners say that a recently constructed biplane of the Albatross type is vastly superior to anything heretofore used by these squadras.

It is equipped with a 260 h.p. motor and attains a speed of from 100 to 115 miles an hour. It can rise to an altitude of more than 2,000 yards in nine minutes, and carries two machine guns. The machines travel in groups of six or eight, according to the position and needs of the army to which they are attached.

2.—Corps squadras or "troop fliers," which are attached to the staff headquarters of the various German armies, and which are commanded by captains. These generally remain within the sector of the armies to which they are attached, and are used in general for reconnaissances, photographing trenches, batteries and making patrol flights.

3.—Hunting squadras, as they are called both by the French and the Germans, are the main attacking instruments of the German air forces, and for chasing enemy machines which venture over their lines. They are charged also with the destruction of the stationary balloons. On the west front, it is estimated, there are about forty of these squadras, with about a dozen machines to each. Others in the same category have as their duty the protection of the large German cities that lie within the air-plane flight of the French and English, such as Strasburg, Freiburg, Mulhouse, Friedrichshafen, Stuttgart, Essen, Cologne and Treves. The pilots of these squadras are carefully chosen from among the best of the German aviators, and their exploits are encouraged by frequent mention in the general staff reports.

4.—Battle squadras or "flottillas" are under the direction of great headquarters, and shift from army to army to carry out bombardments on military establishments behind the front, as well as ever and again upon open towns.

There are three of these squadras now. Formerly there were more, but the others have been disbanded and their units attached to other arms of the aerial service. Squadras one and two are generally transported by train from place to place, wherever they are most needed.

There are from forty to fifty machines in each squadra, which when complete and ready for action is divided into four or five sections. Each airplane is armed with two machine guns, and each carries bombs weighing from 20 to 100 pounds apiece. Some are said to carry bombs that weigh more than 200 pounds.

While perfecting their service in the air, the Germans have also rapidly bettered their anti-aircraft measures and weapons. The 77-millimeter guns of 105 millimeter calibre, and at certain points along the front they use shrapnel guns of 240 millimeter size.

They possess special bullets for the destruction of captive balloons, but in many instances have used them with great cruelty against opponents in airplanes. At least one squadra captain, a Lieutenant Eilers, finally forbade his men to carry these bullets with them unless they were definitely charged with raiding balloons. The Germans, it is said, are constantly putting new types of machines into the field. The famous Tabuc went out of style long ago, and it has now been followed by the even more famous Fokker, which less than a year ago was considered the last and final word in attacking airplanes. Its inventor, a Dutchman, is now said to be devoting himself to the perfe-

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

IT'S GRANDMOTHER'S RECIPE TO BRING BACK COLOR AND LUSTRE TO HAIR

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for 50 cents a large bottle, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.
