Much Needed Help For Russia By Red Cross

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 13.—As a part of its program for rendering effective assistance to Russia, the American Red Cross is to ship at once to the Red Cross commission in Russia, headed by Dr. Frank Billings, 125 motor ambulances and automobiles.

This is the third Red Cross shipment to be dispatched to Russia since the arrival of the commission there less than two months ago. Drugs, medical supplies and surgical apparatus, with a total value of nearly $400,000, have already been sent.

Ambulances are needed with the Russian armies almost more than any other form of relief. On the eastern front there are now only 6,000 vehicles for the transportation of the wounded, while on the French front, only a third in length, there are 75,000 ambulances. The automobiles now being shipped by the Red Cross will equip one Russian army corps with five complete ambulance sections.

Each section will include fifteen motor ambulances, one auto-bus for transporting slightly wounded, one kitchen trailer and one dressing station car. In addition, each section will have two touring cars for the use of officers; three light delivery trucks and one repair carrying necessary tools and extra parts, and one extra car for gasoline fuel.

For the present, personnel for ambulance sections will not be sent to Russia, but the machines will be operated by Russian drivers under the direction of the Red Cross. Should it be necessary later to send American drivers, they will be recruited from volunteers in the United States.

SHIPPINGTON NEWS

Shippington now has forty houses. Pelican City has about the same number, and when the new Shippington highway is completed to the latter place, the two little towns will very soon meet.

From the present indication the potato crop of Buena Vista and Biehn additions will exceed that of last year by at least one fourth.

Captain Parker is now the owner of an Overland auto. The captain long contemplated buying an aeroplane, but finally changed his mind, fearing some of our sharpshooters might take him for a spy and bring him down.

The steamer Winema may shortly be put on the ways preparatory to refitting her for the excursion trade next season. She is easily the largest boat on the lake, and there are many who would like to see her again in commission and hear her "mocking-bird" siren as she comes into port crowded with excursionists, as in former days.

The cool weather has played hob with the mosquitoes and dog flies, but it is not sufficient to keep the Buena Vista boys from going swimming in the lake.

Moving Pictures

Jack Devereaux and Winifred Allen are featured in "The Man Who Made Good," a Triangle play produced under the supervision of Allan Dwan, which will be shown at the Star tonight. It is a lively comedy of today, depicting the struggles of a young couple in their attempt to make good in New York. Devereaux appears as Tom Burton, a young man who comes to the city to take business by the throat and make it believe. He meets his inspiration in the girl who sits across the table from him at Mrs. Carroll's boarding house, just off Broadway. The play is filled with witty precepts for success, as: "If you are a Burton, pick out the right kind of wife. If you already have the right kind, commence making good for her."

Explorer Who Found Crocker Land a Mirage, and Doctor Who Went to His Relief

Donald B. McMillan, the explorer, has just returned from his long trip to the Arctic, where among other things he found that "Crocker Land," discovered by Admiral Peary, was merely a mirage, and that no land existed in the place the discoverer of the North Pole believed he had found. E. O. Hovey, shown at the right of the explorer, headed the expedition to his relief.
