"Michaelis Must Go"
Is Popular Slogan

Policies of German Chancellor Bring Storms of Criticism in Reichstag Session Just Concluded. Believed He Will Be Removed Within Month

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 15.—The German reichstag adjourned, leaving behind it a latent crisis which political observers believe will lead, sooner or later, to the retirement of Dr. Michaelis, the chancellor, without a following. Although other parties are less actively in opposition to Mr. Michaelis than the socialists, not a voice has been raised against the Vorwaerts' slogan, "Michaelis must go."

Recent arrivals from Berlin report that current gossip there is that Michaelis can scarcely last a month. The chancellor's blunder in springing the disclosures of the alleged naval plot against which, according to the National Zeitung he was strongly advised, and his failure to make headway against the reichstag's majority, appear to have lost him the conservative and pan-German support.

The speeches at the concluding session of the reichstag must be read in a light of the expectation that the days of Michaelis are numbered. The speech of the radical deputy, Hausmann, contained passages intended to launch the candidacy of Prince von Buelow, which is still being pressed as vigorously as possible.

The pan-German Local Anzeiger, the national-liberal Deutsche Kurier, the Catholic Germania, the radical Tageblatt and the socialist Vorwaerts agree that the prestige of Chancellor

Michaelis is shattered and his position so shaken that his deposition is imperative. The Kurier suggests that a change in the chancellorship has been temporarily deferred on tactical grounds to avoid the impression that there has been a surrender to socialist pressure. Virtually the entire press sneers openly or covertly at the chancellor's attempt to get clear by shouldering the responsibility upon Vice Admiral von Capelle. It is pointed out that the chancellor himself went virtually as far as the minister of marine in the introduction of the subject and the subsequent debate.
