Being Prepared for Guests

It is the most satisfactory feeling imaginable to be ready for guests. To know that if you wish to entertain formally, or if a few friends come in unexpectedly, you are prepared—your dining room equipment is complete for any and every occasion. Are there certain articles of the silver service—or, perhaps it is glassware—that you lack, and have long intended to purchase? Really you should not delay longer. Halloween is almost here—Thanksgiving will soon follow—then Christmas and the holiday festivities. Think how inconvenient to be unprepared for these times of feasting and entertaining. And right now you can make your selections from the new stocks in both silver and cut glass.

Hard Commercial Future For Britain

LONDON, Oct. 20.—"After the war Great Britain will have to face a competitive struggle unique in history," writes the editor of the British review Engineering, in his annual discussion of trade conditions. Germany and the United States he points out as the most formidable competitors of England in the after-war trade rivalry, saying:

"On the one side, Germany, well equipped, highly organized, forced by defeat and debt to desperate exertions, spurred by poverty to accept small profits, anything to regain her markets and her ruined credit. Unscrupulous and grasping methods will be backed by the German government and financed as never before. Germany has only to pick up the broken threads of foreign connections to supplement the home demands, and thus secure the output necessary fully to occupy her large specialized mechanical equipment.

"On the other side we shall find the United States, better equipped and staffed than any other industrial country, overflowing with money, with the highest credit, and a big home market, and other conditions essential to low cost production.

"Great Britain's distorted industries, flanked by abnormal power and starved desperation, demand, first of all, definite and powerful government protection. Unless this can be secured her industrial leaders will have little encouragement to undertake a program of improvement and reform necessary to put her on equal footing terms with America and Germany. There is evidence that this will be insisted upon and secured."

Banker's Daughter Helps To Save Thousands of Frenchmen

The remarkable story of Gordon French surgeons, bound in their traditions and convention, refused to listen to Mr. Edwards, Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of the late J. P. Morgan, gave him money to manufacture his drug. By her aid Mr. Edwards has finally compelled the surgeons to recognize him and use his solution in the hospitals. Now the wounded themselves demand the anesthetic from the surgeons. With its use wounds may be operated on and cleaned without pain.
