Kaiser Poses As Humanity's Protector

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 11.—Referring to himself as having been thrust into the reign of the champion of principles making for the welfare of humanity and peaceable co-operation of peoples, Emperor William assured his full support to the delegation of the Polish regency council which he received a day or two ago. In part he said: "As against the calumnies of the enemy, I feel grateful that my unremitting efforts in the work of nearly thirty years to be the champion and protector of these principles will meet with deep sympathy on your part."

Closer Tab Will Be Kept On Criminals

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 11.—Collections of extra photographs and fingerprints of persons convicted of felonies and misdemeanors and regarded as dangerous, are being contributed by the identification bureau of the police departments in the various large cities of the state as a nucleus for the records to be made by the California Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation, now in process of organization here.

A bill providing for the bureau was passed by the last legislature, and Sergeant Clarence Merrill of the Berkeley police department, who recently was appointed superintendent, with his assistant, William A. Gabrielson of San Diego, is instructing a force of clerks in the work of collecting and filing the records. Later the clerical force, which now consists of four women, will be enlarged.

The bureau will be made a clearing house for information regarding criminals. All chiefs of police, sheriffs and city marshals in the state are required by law to forward to the bureau any information and records they may collect relative to dangerous criminals.

Country Is Warned Against Enemy's Peace

In Rousing Speech Made By Senator Kenyon, Yesterday Afternoon, the People Were Urged to Quit Grafting and Grandstanding. There is Now No Cause for Gloom

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 11.—Senator Kenyon, who recently returned from a visit to the French front and to England, today warned the senate against Germany's peace offers and stories that the country was exhausted.

"Nothing could assist Germany more," he declared. "Those who are trying to help in bringing about a patched up peace and lend their influence in that direction, are weakening the American forces, weakening American preparation," he said, "and they had best remember that it will cost us more now to lose this war than to win it."

Senator Kenyon is relating his experience, said that what he had seen in France had aroused him to such a pitch that he wished the Kaiser might be compelled to be at sea in an open boat that was being shelled, that the palace of the German ruler might be blown up, and that he might be placed where bombs dropped around him during a London air raid.

Pointing to the fact that it took England two years or more to get ready to fight, he declared there was no reason for gloom in this country now, but "the saddest words this nation ever wrote if it fails in this emergency by reason of delay will be the words 'too late.'"

"We must bring to the western front 2,000,000 men and have 1,000,000 in reserve," Senator Kenyon declared. "We must do it as quickly as possible. We must cut red tape; stop quarreling about the guns and like things, and carry this thing thru on business like principles. It is not possible for each individual in this country to quit thinking about what some one else would do, and resolve to do everything he can do? It is not enough to do our bit. We must do our best. There is too much grandstanding and limelighting; too much patriotic posing and not enough sacrifice."

"Out of this war will come great things to our people. We will have no hyphenated Americanism in this country. It is not a time for partisanship nor politics, and I may say it is no time for inefficiency in any departments of our government."

Senator Kenyon said that in this "spirit of non-partisanship," he would like to see a coalition cabinet including Elihu Root and Theodore Roosevelt, and that the service of William H. Taft might be used in some of the commissions sent abroad.

which will be seen at the Star tonight. A number of scenes show the huge private swimming pool and garden of Montecuma's daughter. This pool was especially built for the production and is in the garden containing the temple of the sacred bird. The garden and pool were enclosed in wire netting nearly fifty feet high and 400 feet long, to prevent the escape of the thousands of birds with which the foliage was filled.
