Moving Pictures

One would think that every thrill, every act of reckless dare-deviltry, had been injected in William S. Hart photodramas. However, this famous Western character always figures in some new and startling adventures. For instance, in "The Narrow Trail," the initial lace-Arcraft picture which will be seen at the Star tonight, Hart portrays an outlaw who falls under the influence of a beautiful girl. He loves her with all the desperate passion of which his wild nature is capable, and determines to reform. In doing this, his source of income is naturally shut off, and he is in trying straits for ready cash. Just at this crisis a big Rodeo is to be held in a nearby city. A cash prize is offered for the principal event—a "jump in the saddle and away" race—and the outlaw determines to enter himself and his Pinto pony. In doing so he knows he is taking a tremendous risk, as the peculiarly marked pony is known to the sheriff and his deputies; but goaded by necessity he takes a chance, and in the presence of a crowd leaps into the saddle. It is during this wild ride with its throngs of contending cowboys that excitement rises to its highest pitch.

Did you see Skinner's Dress Suit? Then you know what a beautiful picture is in store for you in the new Skinner play, "Skinner's Bubble." The same characters appear in an entirely new situation. The wonderful human touch makes these players appeal to all. It is your own home life, the story, the struggle of a young man and his bride to win success; their defeats, their triumphs. At the Temple tonight.

PIONEER RESIDENT DECLARES SEASON TWENTY-NINE YEARS AGO WAS FULLY AS OPEN AND PLEASANT AS THIS ONE

Altho weather conditions in Klamath County this winter are unusually fine, they are not unprecedented, according to one of the old pioneers, H. N. Whiteline, who asserts that twenty-nine years ago the conditions were much the same, and that the plowing and a great deal of the seedling were done in February. Mr. Whiteline operates a ranch near the city, on the Klamath River. Farmers and stockmen have indeed

British Labor Is Growing Discontented

LONDON, Jan. 25.—The fourth year of the war has been remarkable for the sustained activity of trade, the continuous and cumulative increases in wages and the ferment in the engineering and munition industries, says the Daily Telegraph. During the past twelve months wage increases to workmen exceeded 100,000,000 pounds, and the increases during the three years, 1915-16-17, together with the rise in prices of commodities, have completely revolutionized the pre-war economic basis of British trade. The unpleasant feature of the year has been the growing discontent and unrest pervading large sections of the workers, and this is seen in the number of industrial disputes, often of the most trivial kind. Official returns from January to November indicate there were 494 disputes during these months, affecting 647,724 workers, and causing the loss of over 3,500,000 working days, the greatest loss of time being recorded during September, October and November. The number of persons unemployed is the lowest on record, and throughout the war period the figure has steadily declined, till it is now below one per cent.
