Crushed Rock Road To Pelican City

That Klamath County will go ahead this year in the construction of a crushed rock road connecting with the Pelican Bay Lumber company was indicated today by County Judge Marion Hanks in an interview with a committee of the Klamath Falls Business Men's Association.

The great need of a road by which the employees of this mill will be able to get back and forth in the winter season has been felt for a long time, and has been much talked of by the business men of the city.

Judge Hanks declared this morning

Whether the news is finally authentic could not be determined by R. H. Dunbar, who received the message, as the conversation was indistinct. Members of the family here are prostrated by the blow, and the heartfelt sympathy of the community is extended to them in their sorrow.

The court was not prepared to give the information desired at the time, and the list of questions was received and held. It is probable that they will be answered at a later date. The court intimated that much of the requested information was available thru the proceedings published by the Herald, but there are also a number of questions which could not be answered from this source. The questions will be published at an early date in the Herald.

NEW RAILROAD NOW NEARING KLAMATH AVE.

RAILS ALMOST REACH THOSE LAID AT BIG CELEBRATION LAST SUMMER—BIG GANG IS AT WORK

A very short gap, less than 300 feet, now lays between the end of the rails over which the train on the municipal railroad is hauling dirt from the Pine Grove district, seven miles east, and the point where the dedication exercises were held here on the third of July last.

The fill over which the train is now running is not yet completed, and will not be for the next two or three weeks, according to the Straborn engineers, but work is going ahead as fast as possible with a gang of over thirty men, and the ding-dong of the engine has a pleasant sound to those who made such a strenuous effort to get the road under way last year.

The fine weather this winter has enabled the workers to go ahead more rapidly than was anticipated.

Klamath Prepares To "Go Over the Top"

Entire City Responds to Call For Mass Meeting Saturday Night. People Now Understand Gravity of Situation and Will Get Behind Coming Campaign

The first meeting of the home army of Klamath Falls was a spectacular success from the first strains of the "Star Spangled Banner," and the cheers of the crowd as the big flag was brought on the stage, until the words of the last speaker died away.

Very few who assembled at the tremendous gatherings at Houston's opera house and Temple theater Saturday evening had any intimation of the gravity of the message they were to receive at the hands of the government's representatives, or that they themselves were to be drafted into the service of the greatest nation in its greatest crisis, but while the seriousness of the situation was received with surprise, it was very evident that there were few indeed who would not be found ready for whatever might be asked of them.

Chairman W. A. Detsell, who introduced the principal speaker of the evening, declared Klamath Falls was not dependent upon outside speakers to get a crowd together, that the government was not situated in Washington or at some other distant point, but that it was right here, and that it was up to us to get together and look after our part of it.

Charles J. Ferguson, who is to have charge of the Third Liberty Loan in Klamath County, explained in his opening remarks that it was found to require ten men at home to support one man in the field, and that the method of financing the tremendous expenses of voluntary subscriptions to Liberty Loans, had proven as big a failure in the first two campaigns in the United States as the voluntary enlistment plan had in England. He pointed out a number of the terrible situations that would obtain here in the event to subdue the Huns, and brought out forcibly the fact that England and France were staggering with exhaustion, and hanging desperately to their positions until such time as the soldiers of Uncle Sam could reach their sides.

For this reason, he said, because it was generally admitted that 1915 will be the deciding year of the war, our government will waste no more time on experiments but a systematic canvass will be made of the finances of citizens, and during the campaign each will be required to "come thru" with his expected quota.

A corps of workers will go over the tax rolls and records during the coming weeks, getting all data possible, from which a jury of twelve local men will decide upon what each man should subscribe. Every man who subscribes the amount apportioned to him, will be put on the honor list in the blue column. Those who only take 50 per cent of what they are asked will be put in the red column, and those who do less than this will be relegated to the yellow column. Satisfactory explanations from all these will be demanded by the government following the campaign. Each city block will also be put in columns, it being the opinion of the campaign leaders that those men in each section who are loyal will make an effort to keep up in the standing of their blocks. During the last campaign in Klamath County only one person in twenty-two subscribed the Liberty bonds, but now that the gravity of the situation has been made

INDUSTRIAL SECTION IS DEVELOPING VERY FAST

MANY NEW ENTERPRISES EITHER COMPLETED OR UNDERWAY—EWAUNA PLANT WELL STARTED—LUMBER FOR PLANING MILL ON GROUND

DISTRICT PRESENTS VERY DIFFERENT APPEARANCE SINCE BIG FIRE OF LAST OCTOBER. NEW IRON WORKS UNDER OPERATION SOON

A walk down Sixth street these days is a mighty pleasing sight to one who enjoys watching the progress and development of the city, and is respectfully prescribed for a dose of the blues. It is believed that its benefits will be greater and more lasting than any medicines advertised by Beacham, Munyon or Lydia Pinkham. The greatest transition imaginable has been effected since the devastating fire there last fall. Out of the chaos and debris piled on the Ewauna site has risen the first floor and partial frame construction of the new modern factory that is soon to be a reality. Just below this point, where the Savidge Brothers lumber plant stood idle for years, the Big Lakes company is humming along in an attempt to keep up with its orders. In the distance may be seen the flying sawdust of the new Chelsea Lumber and Box company, bordering the shore of the lake. The fine new fireproof ware house just completed by Martin Brothers will be a safeguard against future disasters, and will stand beside the new flouring mill proposed by this firm during the coming season. The new Union Oil company's plant makes a good appearance, with the neat arrangement of buildings and tanks. A substantial addition is being made to the farmers warehouse adjacent, and the new Quillitch warehouse is in plain evidence a short distance away. Across the street the lumber has now been hauled for the new Goeller &

Klamath County Spud Growers to Organize

The problem of marketing a huge supply of potatoes now on hand in Klamath County has become so serious that a meeting was held Saturday afternoon to discuss the matter at the office of County Agricultural Agent H. R. Glaisyer. It is declared that there are between thirty and fifty carloads of spuds held by the local farmers, for which there is no market, and an organization to be known as the Klamath County

Potato Growers' Association will probably be formed to work out this and other problems that may arise in this important industry. It is not improbable that a man will be sent to Texas in the near future, where the market is known to be good, to look after disposing of the Klamath potatoes. A big meeting is to be held tonight at the Mt. Laki church to take up the matter further. Every one interested is invited to be present.
