MAN ON YELLOW LIST RESIDENT OF PORTLAND

That Floyd C. Erz, whose name appears on the Yellow List recently published, is not here, and has not been here for several months, is affirmed in a letter received here from Mr. and Mrs. Waldron of this city. It is declared that Mr. Erz is now in Portland, and being of as loyal a mind as could be asked, has probably done his share in that city in the way of buying Liberty bonds.

LIVESTOCK ON THE JURY

Whenever I hear of a man who does not believe in advertising, says a specialist in this line, I am reminded of the jury that deliberated for a long time in reaching a decision. When dinner time came around, the officer of the court stuck his head in at the door of the jury room and asked if he should order twelve dinners, and the foreman replied: "No, make it eleven dinners and a bale of hay. We have an ass in here."

Letters From The People

Editor Evening Herald:

Dear Sir--When I saw my name on the Yellow List, I will have to admit it ground deep. I have tried hard to do my bit. I have met all obligations in subscribing to Liberty Bonds, Saving Stamps and Red Cross up to the present time, and would not have failed in the third drive, only for unavoidable circumstances.

I met Captain Ferguson and Jack Kimball at Algoma Camp, and explained to them that I had subscribed to a Third Liberty bond, and that I did not know whether I could be in town in time to claim it or not. They said they would see about it, but probably overlooked it in the rush of work. At any rate the bank told me I was too late. But I will be in at the Fourth Liberty loan.

In the meantime, all that I have and myself are at the disposal of the government at any time. If that is yellow, then I am yellow.

O. A. HILLIARD.
