RAIN BADLY NEEDED TO SAVE CROPS

WEATHER BUREAU SPECIALIST DECLARES IRREPARABLE DAMAGE WILL BE DONE UNLESS MOISTURE COMES SOON

PORTLAND, June 14. — Irreparable damage will be done to Oregon crops unless rain comes soon, according to the summary of weather and crop conditions issued here by Edward L. Wells of the weather bureau for the week ending June 15.

With moderate to high temperatures during the past week some crops have made good growth, but drought continues over nearly every portion of the state and most crops are suffering for lack of moisture, and unless rain comes soon the damage will be irreparable, says the report.

Hot, desiccating winds have also aggravated conditions and caused much injury to grains and grasses. The hot weather, however, seems to have caused some relief from aphids in localities where fears had been entertained that the insected crops were damaged beyond recovery, but this insect pest is still detrimental in the Willamette valley.

Fall grains, which were well rooted, appear to be in better condition than the spring sown, but all need good rains to insure even normal crops, says the summary.

Barley is ripening in a few places with only a fair crop indicated. Rye is poor and this staple as well as oats and spring wheat are suffering for moisture. Winter wheat, although still good, is being unfavorably affected by the dry winds.

Yeast and complaints were received that the crop was beginning to burn in north-central counties.

Oil Tanker Sunk by Mine Off Jersey Coast by German Submarine; Financier for Whom She Was Named

These photographs show what happened to the Standard Oil tanker Herbert L. Pratt when she struck a mine left by the German submarine mile off Cape Henlopen, Del. The big vessel made for shore and sank in shallow water. Herbert L. Pratt, vice president of the Standard Oil company, for whom the vessel was named, was then just coming from France, bringing the story of the crucifixion of two American soldiers by Germans on the western front.

At the Theaters

Queens of fashion had better beware of their laurels. Miss Virginia Pearson in her latest William Fox photoplay, "Stolen Honor," wears some exquisite gowns. She will be seen at the Orpheus theater Saturday for a run of one day only.

Beside these beautiful gowns, "Stolen Honor" has many points to recommend it to all motion picture followers. The story is good and is laid in Washington, D. C. It has some thrilling scenes and the sets are richly made.

It will add to Miss Pearson's popularity because Miss Pearson is, above everything else, a fine actress and in this play she needed much dramatic ability.

The story revolves around a stolen painting which finally finds its way into the National Art gallery in Washington. Virginia Lake (Miss Pearson), is a society girl artist, and after she makes a copy of the painting, she is accused of stealing the original and substituting the copy.

The accusation is made by a woman who is in love with a man who loves Virginia Lake. High society is entangled in the conspiracy, including an ambassador.

It is a stirring photoplay and one that will give splendid entertainment.

What would you do, if after a night as the carter you discovered a big bear in your bathroom and it dawned upon you that you had bought the animal for a "pet." This may happen to you—this is the age of surprises—so you are advised to see "Jack Spurlock—Prodigal," at the Orpheus theater Sunday and Monday, where George Walsh, the William Fox star, as young Spurlock solves the problem of disposing of the 400-pound Alaska brute.

Mr. Bear makes it interesting for the Harvard faculty and his young owner before he is gotten rid of.

"Jack Spurlock—Prodigal" was written by George Horace Lorimer, editor of Saturday Post, published in the Saturday Evening Post in serial form and later in book form. The story made a hit and the book attained the distinction of being the "best seller" on the market.

"Jack Spurlock—Prodigal" is the story of a young Harvard student's experience, beginning after he had been dropped from Harvard because of his escapade with the bear.

He was a self-reliant chap and when his millionaire father placed him in charge of his business he sought to make a good stroke by buying a few hundred carloads of onions, not knowing that his daddy had already bought 500 carloads. It works out all right, but before the film story is unfolded young Spurlock has many funny and thrilling experiences.

Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast

Says we can't look or feel right with the system full of poisons.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is a guaranteed to perform miracles if you could believe these hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infests the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so limestone phosphate and hot water act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It is vastly more important to bathe on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.—Adv.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.
