THE DEAD ARK ASKED TO

WAKE UP AND BUY BONDS

London, June 22.—During a War Loan campaign in a London suburb an airplane dropped 3,000 leaflets calling for subscriptions. Almost the entire 3,000 fell in the village cemetery, where they covered the graves and shrubbery like snow flakes. Visitors to the cemetery who picked up the little sheets found them inscribed in large letters: "Wake up and buy War Bonds."

Rain Still Badly Needed Over State

Portland, June 22.—Need of rain still is the keynote of the crop situation, according to the weekly summary of weather and crop conditions issued by the weather bureau here. Beneficial showers fell in a few scattered localities, mostly east of the Cascade mountains, but drought continued generally throughout the state and a majority of the staple crops, where not irrigated, were suffering for lack of rain, says the report. With unusually high day and night temperatures, crops under irrigation made rapid growth and at the close of the week were in a satisfactory condition. Aphids were still numerous in the Willamette valley and had made their appearance in Wasco county, while complaints were received of damage by grasshoppers in Umatilla and Klamath counties. Some injury to winter wheat in Umatilla county resulted from the hot winds of the early part of the week and this crop was also beginning to fire in other districts on account of the drought. Rye was poor to good, in some places having been cut for hay, while in others it received some benefit from local showers and was in better condition. Spring wheat also was in much need of rain and was heading short, and some fields were drying out and others soon will burn. Barley and oats were in fair shape on irrigated lands but very poor on dry farms. The first crop of alfalfa is practically all cut in Morrow and Umatilla counties; cutting has begun in Malheur county and haying will probably be general through the coming week with poor to fair yields expected. Non-irrigated pastures and ranges are drying up and livestock are beginning to show the effects of drought although still doing fairly well.

Kentucky Has Stringent Laws Against Loafing

Frankfort, Ky., June 22.—No able-bodied male resident of Kentucky between the ages of 16 and 60 may loaf until six months after peace is declared. He must, according to a bill passed at a recent session of the legislature, work for at least 36 hours a week. Otherwise he shall be held a vagrant and fined not less than $20 nor more than $100 for each offense.

Apparently the idler may not pay his fine, escape exertion and relapse into idleness. As a part of his punishment he must work not exceeding 60 days upon public roads or streets or some other public work. Possession of riches will be no bar to prosecution and no claims of inability to obtain employment for either rich or poor may be pleaded as a defense. Lapses into idleness will not be tolerated because each week of idleness constitutes a separate offense.

A vagrant is defined as an habitual loiterer, one habitually intoxicated, addicted to the use of narcotic drugs, a professional gambler, or an able-bodied person supported in whole or in part by the labor of any woman or child.

Any peace officer who fails to enforce the act is subject to prosecution for non-performance of duty and removal from office.

At the Theaters

Mae Marsh, the quaint star of the screen, will appear in her third Goldwyn picture, "The Cinderella Man," from Oliver Morosoff's famous stage success by Edward Childs Carpenter, at the Star theater, Sunday, June 23.

The wistful appeal of Mae Marsh, known wherever moving pictures are shown, finds remarkable opportunity in the strong human interest situations of Mr. Carpenter's moving story. Ever the "girl of a thousand faces," it is another Mae Marsh who awakens heart throbs in "The Cinderella Man," than the Mae Marsh who is delighting the nation in her two preceding Goldwyn pictures, Margaret Mayo's classic of the big top, "Polly of the Circus," and "Sunshine Alley," from the story by Mary Rider. The amazing versatility of Mae Marsh, which changes her characterizations so radically from play to play, makes "The Cinderella Man" quite as refreshing as anything she has ever done.

Admirers of June Caprice will soon see that smiling William Fox star in a new, pretty and stirring photoplay. It is called "The Heart of Romance," and will be shown at the Orpheus theater tonight.

Miss Caprice begins this photoplay in an unusual way—that is, unusual for Miss Caprice. She wears real stylish clothes. In all the previous pictures she has appeared in Miss Caprice began in rags and ended in riches, but in "The Heart of Romance" she is rich from beginning to end.

The story is that of a young writer who is in love with Eloise Jackson (June Caprice). He is poor and Eloise's guardian fears he is fonder of her money than of her. To test the young man, the guardian devises several tests.

These are exciting in the extreme. Eloise is really in love with the writer but she obeys the commands of her guardian to prove the youth really cares for her. At one point she joins the chorus of a Broadway show to make her sweetheart believe she has lost her fortune.

The youth is strong of heart and never stops battling his way into Eloise's good graces.

An American's sacrifice of life and all it holds dear to him, to save his countrymen and learn the secrets of the German spy system forms the theme of the stirring William Fox production, "The Spy," which, with Dustin Farnum in its lead, comes to the Orpheus theater Sunday for two days.

Dustin Farnum, one of the few popular men stars of the screen, plays the role of Mark Quantance, a man of wealth and social position, who undertakes the hazardous task of gaining a list of the Teutonic spies in the United States.

In Berlin he finds it necessary to enroll himself among those spies before he can learn where the book containing the names is kept. Then he gets possession of it and sends it to the American ambassador, while he himself is court-martialed.

In the cast are, besides Dustin Farnum, Winifred Kingston, Charles Clary, William Burress, Howard Gaye and William E. Lowry.

FORMER KLAMATH MAN ON OREGONIAN STAFF

Frank Ira White, one of the well known newspaper men in Oregon a decade ago, has returned to the field and is now a member of the staff of The Oregonian. Mr. White for the last ten years has been in business part of the time in Southern Oregon, near Klamath Falls, and elsewhere.

He was formerly employed on the Denver papers. He will take up the bookkeeping and railroad beat in Portland. Some years ago he had the reputation of being one of the most widely acquainted railroad reporters in the Northwest—Oregon Exchange.

SERVICE

It Cuts a Lot of Ice

Nowadays as to where you buy your clothing, for between actual increased cost and the profiteer's tacked on prices, there's quite a difference to a man's purse.

Ice is nothing but frozen water, and we don't propose to water our stock and get your money by the profiteer's "get rich quick" methods.

We are still doing a legitimate Men's Wear business, and we intend to keep right on serving you on a strictly honest basis, just as long as you approve of our methods by giving us your trade. How about some new clothes now?
