

Brief Survey of Local Red Cross Activities

Years Record of Klamath County Chapter of American Red Cross Told at a Glance. Huge Cash Donations Raised. Many Supplies Made and Sent.

The chapter was established 19 days after the declaration of war. The workroom was established July 2. Arrangements were made so that rents, lights, sewing machines and equipment were donated and hauled without charge. The work room has been open every day and fully supplied with all materials. Four auxiliaries have been established, namely, Mt. Laki and Miller Hill, The Junior Red Cross was established and now has 31 auxiliaries. Members secured during the year are as follows: Klamath County Chapter, 5450; Junior Red Cross, 1500; total, 6950. A full course in first aid work has been given to a large class. Surgical dressing department was opened on December 2, and has been kept in continual operation. A class in surgical dressing was conducted. The first war speaker from the battle front was Sergeant "Doc" Well, who was induced to come to Klamath Falls. Numerous dances, entertainments, raffles, sales and three drives were conducted. Over $39,400 in funds were raised of which practically $25,000 was sent to the National chapter. The last drive for funds returned over two and a quarter times the amount asked for. The membership drive far exceeded the quota asked for. The following garments have been shipped to the boys at the front: pajamas, 1101; Nightgowns, 164; bed socks, 21; knitted sweaters, 477; knitted Sox, 504; mufflers, 24; wristlets, 63; knitted afghans, 5; hospital bed shirts, 295; surgeon's pillows, 13; surgeon's gowns, 225; hospital bed jackets, 50; surgeon's wipes, 240; hospital surgical dressings, 5113. Special allotments: Christmas presents, 256; dish towels, 565; property bags, 75; comfort kits, 146. Note—All allotments given us have either been filled or exceeded. There is on hand, paid for, approximately 15,000 yards of flannel and 300 pounds of yarn of all kinds, bought at prices much lower than the present market. There will be at the end of the year approximately $4000 on hand after paying all bills. A campaign of enlightenment has been vigorously conducted and the Red Cross is far better understood now than at the beginning of the year. All supplies have been purchased at actual wholesale prices. All boxes and crates for shipping have been donated without cost. Acknowledgments have been received from the supply stations that all work sent in from this chapter were excellent in every respect and fully measured up to the most rigid standards.

Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, im-

No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it, and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

Silo Construction Urged as Means For Conserving Food for Animals

As part of the nation-wide campaign in the interest of maximum food production and utilization, government and private agencies have inaugurated a movement to make the present summer the greatest silo-building period in the history of the country. Scarcely a farm experiment station in the land is not actively co-operating in this work. Thousands of farmers have long recognized the advantage of being able, with silos, to keep cattle in the best condition throughout the winter months by feeding them green feed. Other thousands who have not fully appreciated the silo heretofore are expected to be reached as a result of the educational efforts now being put forth. The Best Kind of Silo With increased attention attracted to the silo, the question is arising in the minds of many as to what is the best material to be used in this form of construction. Various kinds of silos are being exploited in the advertising columns of the newspapers and farm journals. It appears, however, that, based on the opinion and experience of many authorities, wood makes the silo of greatest durability and best general service. Aside from the fact that the cost of lumber is less than for any other building material, the expense of erecting a wooden silo is less, as the farmer can do the work himself, with the help of ordinary farm labor. The silo silo in existence, still in use, are of wood. In point of proved efficiency, the wood silo occupies an absolutely impregnable position. The farmer with years of silo experience is certainly the judge whose opinion can be depended on. That the wood silo is the farmer's choice, was strikingly evidenced as the result of an actual count made in the state of Kansas, which showed that Kansas had 5,715 silos, and of that total 4,154 were wood—in other words, there were nearly ten times as many silos of wood as there were of all other materials together. The Wood to Use. These qualities found in Southern Pine make it supreme as the material for silo construction—breaking strength, crushing strength, stiffness and toughness, combined with great durability. The last quality is due to its fine, even, compact grain and the fact that it contains a quantity of pitch and resin, natural repellants of moisture and decay. There are almost as many available testimonials endorsing Southern Pine silos as there are testifying to the superiority of wood silos. An illustrated booklet for farmers, "How to Choose and How to Use a Silo," is offered by the Southern Pine Association, of New Orleans, for free distribution, as the contribution of the Association to the national silo-building campaign.
