FORD TURNS OVER

Turning the corner of Third and Main streets a little too short early this morning, Leroy Geinger, son of A. C. Geinger, had the misfortune to overturn his Ford car which he had just loaded with goods for the Geinger ranch on the Reservation. Neither the occupant nor the machine were apparently injured by the mishap, altho it required some time to gather the scattered cargo and get it on board again.

Profits and Prices

Profits may be considered from two angles:

- 1st—Their effect on prices;
- 2nd—As a return to investors.

When profits are small as compared with sales, they have little effect on prices.

Swift & Company's profits are only a fraction of a cent per pound on all products sold, and if eliminated entirely would have practically no effect on prices.

Swift & Company paid 10 per cent dividends to over 20,000 stockholders out of its 1917 profits. It also had to build extensions and improvements out of profits; to finance large stocks of goods made necessary by unprecedented requirements of the United States and Allied Governments; and to provide protection against the day of declining markets.

Is it fair to call this profiteering?

R. C. Home Service Doing a Great Work

Washington, July 30.—How the American Red Cross thru its home service work is helping in the great task of binding the different races of America into one unified nation was described at various meetings in Washington last week attended by Red Cross division directors of civilian relief from all over the United States.

The Mexicans that constitute a great problem for the home service workers in the southwest, the Indians of several western divisions, the foreign population of the Atlantic seaboard cities, the Negroes of the south and even in one remote part of Minnesota, a group of Icelandic people, they are all coming under the attention of home service because they are sending sons and fathers away to war and any family that has a soldier or sailor at the front or in training has a claim upon the government thru the home service sections of the Red Cross. Such families have a right to claim a share in the neighborliness and sympathy and kindly aid which the home service sections were organized to give.

One worker told a story which showed how the great war in separating men from their families had led their families to make themselves more thoroly a part of the American community in which they had been living. Maria C— was a young Italian woman who had been married only a few months when her Tony was called to the service. She lived in a little mining town. She could talk only a little English and she could not read or write even in her native Italian. She had no kin in the country and few friends in town. For a few weeks she was a miserable, lonely passionately rebellious girl. Her only comfort was to be among the things she and Tony had bought for their home, the kitchen range, the cabinet, the fine bed room suite of golden oak. But as she sat among these vivid reminders of her brief happiness she became more and more unhappy. She did not care what happened; she would not even take care of herself and began to neglect her appearance and her health. There an Italian grocer her trouble was brought to the attention of the home service workers. The other Italians in the town were mobilized by the home service section to help her. First, they got her interested in the family of a neighbor woman and took her mind off her own loneliness by allowing her to take care of a sick child. Then they asked her if she would not like to learn to write. At first she was not interested, but an Italian friend suggested that she learn to write in Italian so that she could send a message to Tony.

She asked to be taught how to write just three words. They were "I love you."

When she learned that lesson she began a new and happier life and she had become a truly American member of the town because she began to make friends and take an interest in affairs about her.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

DARKENS BEAUTIFULLY AND RESTORES ITS NATURAL COLOR AND LUSTER AT ONCE

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready to use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it is done so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes dark, glossy, soft, and luxuriant, and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Adv.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as cool, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so food and drink taken each day leaves in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, forms toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to wash in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin clear and clearer, you are told to take every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skin, liver spots, pimples or pale complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, sticky breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spots, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphate hot water drinking, and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowels pores do.—Adv.

An Iced-in American Battleship in North Sea During the Winter

This photograph of an American battleship in the North Sea during the winter has just come to the Committee on Public Information. It shows her whole bow covered with ice from the spray. The two 12-inch guns at the bow in the foreground are so covered they can hardly be seen. The seamen were kept busy breaking the ice.
