SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

WE HAY TOO MUCH MEAT WHICH CLOGS KIDNEYS, THEN THE BACK HURTS

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need flushing occasionally. Also we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in eradicating kidney trouble while it is only trouble. Adv.

CAMOUFLAGE OF YANKEES IS AMAZING

BEHIND AMERICAN LINES IN FRANCE, Sept. 29.—(Correspondence Associated Press)—Nothing is real in the great American camouflage station here. All is deception.

Huge willow trees like those in Flanders, with trunks two feet in diameter, and a mass of sprouting branches at the top, are steel tubes designed to hide an observer. Even on close inspection they looked like real trees to the Associated Press correspondent who visited the station and, with the commandant, explored their mysterious underground recesses.

They were of plaster cloth wound about the central steel tube, and with pieces of real bark fitted around the trunk. A small gauge orifice, painted to match the bark, was not noticed until pointed out by the officer. This was for the observer standing within the steel core of the tree.

Ten feet away the turf opened, disclosing a passage with steps leading to a tunnel, and thence to the base of the tree. With a light we groped thru the tunnel and up into the tree. It was a tight fit in this tree trunk, but from the gauge orifice one had a sweep of the whole nearby country.

A huge boulder, such as one sees along country roads, was noticed among the trees. The big stone, five feet high and seven across, looked very real, and yet this, too, was camouflage—a make-believe boulder, in which an observer and machine gun could lurk.

Examining the stone, it felt rather like a big cardboard box, and gave slightly to the pressure of the hand. The frame was wood, the covering burlap, painted a gray brown, with patches of moss. And buried amid the moss the canvas flap raised to let thru the nozzle of the machine gun. "You have your own telegraph system," was remarked on observing the line of telegraph poles stretching across the plain.

The commandant smiled. "Those are periscope telegraph poles," he explained.

The poles were veritable telegraph poles, with wires strung from the tops, just as they are seen along country roads. But each pole was hollow, to permit a periscope to be raised to a high observing point, while a covered pit at the base of the pole accommodated the observer taking the readings of the periscope.

Beside the periscope poles, there were periscope trees, with hollow stumps from which the observer's instrument was calculated and the readings made in pits below the roots.

A camouflage stone wall was another curious device standing among the camouflaging trees and poles. This wall, looking like the ruin of an old mill, was of light plaster construction painted and weathered to resemble a real mill.

"A wrecked house often serves us as very good camouflage," said the commandant. We had one with the windows all gone so the enemy could look straight thru to the walls inside. By painting false canvas walls just back of the windows, the enemy still thought he was looking at the real walls opposite. But back of the canvas our observers and snipers were at work and the device was very effective.

A pile of gravel stood near the wall or what appeared to be a pile of gravel, for this, too, was camouflage. The pebbles were heaped around a hollow frame with its gauge opening for the observers and the flap thru which the machine gun barked. Further along was a pile of brick—camouflage; and over in the field was a stack of hay—camouflage. Each one of them was a small fortress as well as a post of observation.
