

WRECKED MEN DRIFT ABOUT FIFTY DAYS

PAPEETE, Tahiti, (By Mail).—
"Saved by the hand of God" is the way the nine natives comprising the crew of the 80-ton schooner "Cro-mana" characterize their escape from death after having drifted helplessly 50 days in one of the loneliest bits of ocean in the Seven Seas.

When the wreck of the "Cromana" was towed into Papeete harbor this week one of the most remarkable voyages known in these waters was completed. The vessel, a two mast schooner, owned by natives of Rimatara, an island about 300 miles southwest of Tahiti, left her home port without cargo bound for the island of Rurutu in the same group where she was to undergo repairs and take a cargo of copra for Tahiti.

Two days out she was struck by a storm which carried away both her masts and later her rudder leaving her a hopeless derelict.

With never a glimpse of land or sail to give a ray of hope, the "Cromana" drifted for 50 days. After 15 days the supply of food was gone. The natives managed to catch a shark with hook and line. This lasted them five days. The rest of the time they had no food. An occasional shower prevented death from thirst.

Then the "miracle" happened. The mountains of Tahiti rose slowly over the horizon. The shifting sea current brought them nearer and nearer until they were finally sighted from shore and a power boat sent to tow them in. They were too weak to rise to their feet but after a few days ashore all appear to be rapidly recovering from their experience.

The natives on the hand of God saved their craft for the prevailing winds in these latitudes are from the northwest, a direction which would never have brought them to Tahiti.

BRITISH FLEET LOST CHANCE OF BIG BATTLE

LONDON, Nov. 13.—British naval officials have been waiting hourly for a naval Armageddon, and had set the stage for a great sea battle, but the arm that intended to attempt a last desperate gambling stroke was paralyzed, Sir Eric Geddes, first lord of the admiralty, revealed in an address here.

"The German navy, I am as convinced as I am standing here tonight, was ordered out for a great battle a fortnight ago, and the men would not come," he declared.

Half the German fleet is flying the red flag today, he said, because it realized that it had not been engaged in a good cause. There must be some sympathy for the British grand fleet, because it has been robbed of its chance to "give the enemy a good licking," he added.

UNITED WAR WORK CAMPAIGN

IT IS A United Campaign

United not only in purpose but, what is ever more important, in the spirit which underlies it.

Protestant, Catholic and Jew have come together for a single object—the maximum service to be rendered to our fighting forces.

This unity of thot and purpose will have a far reaching effect not only upon the work itself but upon our country after the campaign and war itself are over.

Working together as they are doing, with the common respect which this engenders, will result in a better understanding of one another, and much prejudice and sectionalism is bound to disappear.

It is towards a united country that we are striving—united in thot and action, and I venture to believe that a campaign such as the one upon which we are entering will make no mean contribution towards this end.
