

ALLISON GETS WARM TRIBUTE FROM COLORADO

A warm tribute to the life and work of M. L. Allison, who recently passed away here, is found in the editorial columns of the Grand Junction (Colo.) News, a copy of which has reached this city. It follows:

"The news of the passing of Monroe L. Allison comes with sadness to many of the old timers of Grand Junction, men who were here when Grand Junction was in the making.

"Roe Allison was here to take part in the acts of this town when it was in the formative period, and he took the reins laid down by that old trail blazer, Governor George A. Crawford. It was the nature of Roe Allison to get into the harness—he was built that way—and he could not change his nature.

"A man of striking personality; a man of striking convictions; a man who made friends by the hundreds because of the fact that he did things and because he was of a lovable nature; a man who made some enemies simply because of the fact that he did things.

"Roe Allison could see into the future. He was, perhaps, in the line-light more than any other man ever was in Grand Junction; he perhaps had more supporters and more opponents than any other man.

"Yet Roe Allison could see that Grand Junction would never be a 'real city, such as she is now, until her citizenship obtained mountain water for domestic purposes. So he talked it, he agitated it—he did not sleep on the job.

"And to Roe Allison, doubtless, more than any other one man, is due the credit for the pioneering that finally culminated in a public sentiment for building a mountain water system.

"Roe Allison put his all on Grand Junction. He staked his all here. He went too deep, for when the crash came, he was left high and dry, without a cent to his name. But he never lost faith in Grand Junction, altho he had to go elsewhere to start out again.

"We wish the bones of Roe Allison could lie at the side of those of Governor Crawford on the point of the hill south of the city, overlooking the Grand Valley where a people who remember him for what he did could bear testimony to his worth."

Unarmed, Led Victorious Charge at Berry-le-See

Major General Beaumont B. Buck, who, armed only with a riding crop, led his men of the Second Brigade of the First American Division when they charged and captured Berry-le-See on July 21st, has just returned from France. He was a brigadier general at the time. He is now wearing the distinguished service cross of the United States, the Legion of Honor ribbon, and the croix de guerre with a palm as a reward for his gallant service.

SEVERE BLOW TO NORTHWEST LUMBER TRADE

PORTLAND, Dec. 2.—That the situation with respect to the lumber industry of the Pacific Northwest is temporarily critical, due to the loss of business by cancellation of the Federal aircraft and shipping programs is the contention of those local operators who are most closely in touch with the situation.

Not only have some of the mills been forced to close down at a period some weeks earlier than their usual annual pause for overhauling and repairs but there is little prospect of their re-opening until new business not at present in sight, offers itself.

Fully 63 per cent of the industrial payroll of Oregon, excluding the shipbuilding operations is based upon the logging and lumbering industry, according to statistics furnished by the Portland Chamber of Commerce.

In the abrupt termination of Government contracts the lumbermen see a peril that may spread until thousands of men are thrown out of employment, and before any economic readjustment has been reached whereby other employment may be afforded.

The blow to the Pacific Northwest lumbering industry, declare many of the operators came at a time when general business is at low tide. It found the mills running at top capacity, and with a single pen-stroke abolished the greater percentage of their prospects.

ANNOUNCEMENT

In spite of the termination of the war, the prices of the different kinds of food for dairy cows have continued to soar, and the nature of a dairyman's work makes it difficult to keep the necessary help at any price. It has and will always continue to be the policy of this dairy to serve its customers milk which is produced only under the most sanitary conditions, but it has been found impossible to do this longer under the old schedule of prices. We have accordingly been forced to adopt the new list of prices, which will go into effect December 15.

For those who have paid already in advance, the rate will not be effective until next month.

Satisfied With Home?

You might be known, for we all are spending almost nights for our health.

Let's all take inventory and see if we're a combination clean, good health or good music that we need some long, strong winter nights.

Talking about good music, now that's my hobby, and I am talking plenty of my own medicine every evening.

This prescription, well taken, will drive and keep away the blues better than most anything, unless it's good company.

And right here let me say that a Victrola or Phonograph helps a lot, for if you are a musician and not in the best of spirits how are you going to create melody and jolly yourself into thinking that you feel fine at the same time.

It can't be done--You need some outside influence, and what is better than a Victrola, some fresh, lively records, or a Phonograph with the new Max word rolls?

Think it over, friends, and then let's talk music, and terms, if you wish them.

city, and with a single pen-stroke abolished the greater percentage of their prospects.

That foreign markets are practically closed to our lumber exports, thru the lack of available shipping, and that abnormally high war-prices set against any immediate resumption of construction activity at home, are complications included in the situation as summarized by Executive Secretary Dobson, of the Portland Chamber of Commerce.

TRACTS NEAR MEDFORD MAY BE IRRIGATED

MEDFORD, Dec. 2.—A series of reservoirs along Bear creek, which assures thru the center of Rogue River valley to its confines with Rogue River, 25 miles below, is being discussed in a feasible project for irrigating large areas of farm lands now only partially supplied by other projects. The plan involves a reservoir of sufficient dimensions to hold water to cover about 4,000 acres in Bear Creek valley, the storage of which is to be returned to the creek at a point above the next reservoir for use on the storage below it. The third and fourth reservoirs would be located in Rogue River valley, and pumping facilities to be used, if necessary, to lift the water from the creek reservoirs to the highest levels on the floor of the valley.

It is estimated that the flow of the two streams, Bear and Rogue, combined, is sufficient to supply a storage of water for the irrigation of 40,000 acres. The immediate construction of the Bear Reservoir is the first step, which would cost a million and a half dollars for the dam, the creek project, and to hold the water in storage. The project is being supported by the Oregon State Board of Irrigation, and the definite construction is to be started in this winter. The site of the dam is on the north side of the Bear Reservoir, New fall to develop the project in the winter, which he had founded.

it is urged that engineers should be engaged to ascertain the feasibility of the Bear creek storage system.

Should the Medford project be completed, it is evident that an area of several thousand acres above Ashland will be compelled to use the storage system of supply from the two creeks named in order to obtain the necessary irrigation for farms and orchards of that territory.

World-Famous Writer and Russian Leader Dead

Maxim Gorky, one of the most noted of modern writers, has passed away. Born in 1868, son of a poor upholsterer, left an orphan at 5 years, a runaway at 8, and a waif for many years thereafter. Gorky became famous as a story revolutionist and writer on revolutionary subjects before he was 30. His life was stormy, and most of his days were spent in the streets. He helped foment the 1905 revolution, and was arrested and sent to prison. He was later exiled to Siberia and then to the United States. He was a member of the Russian Revolution and was one of the founders of the Soviet Union. He died in 1936.
