

Decoy Vessels Have Been Most Effective

LONDON, (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—A "Q" ship has come to London. She is a gray, dingy nondescript kind of ship, perhaps a collier or a coastal tramp. But all London is flocking to St. Katherine's Dock to see her, for the frowny old tub represents a development of naval warfare which produced some of the finest heroism in the history of sea fighting.

According to Sir Eric Geddes, first lord of the British Admiralty, nothing could be more inspiring than the conduct of the officers and men on the "Q" ships—those mystery ships where for hours the men lay, and were shelled and killed and lay unattended until the opportunity came to sink the enemy.

This "Q" ship is certainly not what she seems. At a signal her hatchways can disclose glistening 4-inch guns and her harmless-looking stays rap out wireless messages. For more than two years her skipper, Lieutenant-Commander Auten, V. C., and her crew, all of whom remain with her have been hunting U-boats.

Gunner Cunningham, wearing a Distinguished Service medal, shows visitors to the ship how they tackled submarines. Leading the way to the forecabin, he points to a hawser-reel lying on the deck. "That's a dummy," he says. "It's the skipper's look-out when a submarine is sighted. This little smokestack is also a dummy—it hides a periscope. The skipper from his look-out would give the range to the hidden gun crews.

"No sign of life was to be seen on the ship after a 'panic party' had put off in an open boat until the order came—'Fire'." Then this forehatch flew open and the sides of that dummy cabin fell outward, and the two 4-inch guns got to work. We settled one U-boat with twelve hits out of fourteen from one gun and seven out of eight from the other."

The crew of this decoy ship hunted submarines in an old steamer called the Stock Force until the forepart of that vessel was blown away by a torpedo. It was on the Stock Force that Lieutenant-Commander Auten won the Victoria Cross.

ODD BANK BILL IN POSSESSION OF EASTENER

ONE COULD RECEIVE THIS ON A BACK ACCOUNT DUE WITH $5 SIDE UP AND PAY IT OUT WITH REVERSE SIDE SHOWING

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Jan. 9.—Mayor Pearce has a federal reserve bank note he can call either a $5 or a $10 bill, but he's not sure how much it's worth.

Pearce, when relieved from his strenuous duties as mayor, conducts a pharmacist's shop here. And he employs E. A. Hartke as an assistant pharmacist. The latter took a bill in trade the other day, but does not recall from whom.

When the mayor-proprietor audited the cash that night he found himself many times bewildered. In fact, he had his doubts about himself after he counted it four or five times only to find himself short $5 then $10 to the good and again $5 short. In vain he counted.

Finally Pearce scratched his head and pawed over the bills carefully. Suddenly he discovered a banknote with a $10 design on one side and a $5 design on the other.

It developed the bill, genuine enough, is one of four misprinted at the mint in Washington. But the banks who made the disclosure could not determine whether the note was worth $2.50, $5, $7.50, $10 or $15, so the officials at Washington have been asked to decide.

FEWER PEOPLE IN CALIFORNIA GOING CRAZY

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Jan. 10.—While the population of California has increased 6.22 per cent during the past two years the number of insane has increased 1.03 per cent, said the biennial report of F. W. Hatch, general superintendent of state hospitals which has just been submitted to Governor Stephens. One of every 300 persons in the state is insane, the report said.

Four hundred and thirty seven inebriates have been admitted to state hospitals on voluntary applications as against 1516 for the preceding biennial period, the report showed.

"Liquor and drugs cost more and are harder to get," said the report referring to this decrease. "The high wages prevailing have caused many of the inebriety class to go to work actively and to give up their old habits; patriotism has induced many to join the military and naval forces."

"You have the privilege of naming all these animals," said Eve, admiringly.
"That isn't so much," replied Adam. "The influential chap is the one who will eventually put the price tag on those that are sold for meat."

SERVICABLE SCHOOL SHOES

FOR ALL AGES OF CHILDREN FROM BEGINNERS TO HIGH SCHOOL

The two cardinal points in the selection of Children's Shoes are: First, Correct Fit; Second, Sturdy Wearing Qualities.
This is, however, not so easy as it sounds, as years of experience are really required to determine just how growing feet should be fitted, and just how to strengthen shoes where the wear comes hardest.
We offer to you our years of expert study on these very points, and ask that you intrust to us the care and safety of your children's feet, as well as the protection of your own purse.

A Frenchman, boasting in company that he had thoroughly mastered the English language, was asked to write the following from dictation:
"Ah Hugh Hughes was hewing a yule log from a yew tree, a man dressed in clothes of a dark hue came up to Hugh and said: 'Have you seen my ewes?' 'If you will wait until I hew this yew, I will go with you anywhere in Europe to look for your ewes,' said Hugh."—Tit-Bits.

A New Answer
"So you approve of the government's action in taking over the railroads?"
"Yep," replied Mr. Growcher. "I approve of that and prohibition for several reasons, one of them being that now a lot of people can quit lecturing on the subject and go to work."—Washington Star.
