"The Riders of the Purple Sage" drew capacity houses at both performances yesterday. Many were turned away and the box office was forced to close. This popular picture will be repeated this evening for the benefit of those unable to obtain seats yesterday.

FREE BOOK FOR POULTRYMEN IS NOW AVAILABLE

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 25.—Many readers will be interested, doubtless, to learn that C. F. Williams, for eleven years editor and manager of the Northwest Poultry Journal, Salem, Oregon, has resigned to accept the management of the Poultry and Stock Food Department of the Chas. H. Lilly Company of Seattle and Portland, west of the Rockies, the Hawaiian Islands, Australia and the Orient.

Mr. Williams is well known to thousands of poultrymen in the Western states, having been connected with farm and poultry interests for fourteen years and estimates that he has travelled upwards of 40,000 miles by auto, boat and train, visiting fairs, poultry farms and exhibitions in California, Idaho, Oregon, Utah and Washington. Mr. Williams is a thorough poultryman, understanding every phase of the business, both from a practical and theoretical standpoint. He is the present president of the Oregon Poultry Breeders' Association and it was largely thru his efforts that 16,000 hatching eggs, donated by patriotic poultrymen, were distributed free to those who would agree to hatch and raise the chicks to maturity and thus aid in the increase of the meat supply in 1918.

A free bulletin on "How to Feed and Care for Chicks," has been prepared by Mr. Williams and will be sent free to those readers who address him at the Chas. H. Lilly Co., Seattle, Washington. Any questions you may have pertaining to this industry will be cheerfully answered free by him.

J. V. McTimmonds, who is none other than our own "Jim," is to be seen with William Farnum in the "Riders of the Purple Sage," shown at the Liberty Theatre Sunday and Monday afternoon and evening. He was a famous rider and bucaroo of this section for many years. He was the roper in the Salisbury pictures taken all over Oregon. He will be seen at his best in the "Riders of the Purple Sage." 25-21.

OREGON'S WAR STAMP QUOTA TO BE LOWER

PORTLAND, Jan. 27.—Linked up with the world war and to be known as War Savings, the United States government, thru the treasury department, has determined upon a thrift campaign for this year. It will be co-ordinated with the final issue, in April, of war bonds, to be known as the Victory Loan. This was made known at the war loan conference in San Francisco last week, attended as Oregon's representatives by Robert E. Smith, C. S. Jackson, Henry E. Reed and Mrs. Kelley Rees.

Both War Savings and Liberty Loan leaders in the 12th federal reserve district, which includes Oregon, received their instructions for 1919 work at San Francisco. They are to co-operate to the fullest extent possible, but there will not be any consolidation of state or local organizations. As bond issues are to stop and War Savings to continue, it is not likely, at least in this district, that state and local War Savings and loan forces will be curtailed.

The most important War Savings announcement at San Francisco was that pertaining to the quota. Last year each state was called upon to take $20 in stamps for each inhabitant. The census bureau made an estimate of the population of each county in the union and the treasury department applied the flat figure of $20 per head. In Oregon this rule worked unequally, some counties being burdened with heavy quotas while others escaped relatively light. This year the per capita basis has been abandoned, and the treasury department in fixing state quotas will take into consideration three factors, number and character of population, bank resources and other conditions which should probably affect the result.

For the nation at large the War Savings quota has been fixed at $1,600,000,000. The 12th district has been assigned 6 per cent of this amount, or $96,000,000. Both national and district quotas are apportioned by months. Thus, the 12th district quota begins with $4,200,000 for January and increases month by month until it reaches the maximum of $13,200,000 in December.

The amount of War Savings stamps Oregon will be called upon to buy this year is not known definitely, but as the total for the country is 80 per cent of the 1918 figure, it is assumed that Oregon will be assigned 80 per cent of its 1918 quota of $7,723,000, or about $11,000,000 in round figures.

Coincidentally with the new quota policy, a change has been ordered in the manner of selling War Savings stamps. Last year the exigencies of the treasury compelled a temporary abandonment of the educational features of thrift and the organization of a drive. This year thrift and War Savings will go back to first principles. The treasury department does not want anyone to become an unwilling buyer of stamps. All sales of stamps thru the medium of street booths and street salesmen will be prohibited. War Savings will place its main reliance upon War Savings societies, official selling agents and general publicity. The society idea has found great favor at Washington and will be promoted for all it is worth. Societies will be formed in every industrial plant, business house, lodge, church, Sunday school, or work places where people habitually work or congregate for any purpose.

Another change that will be welcomed by stamp buyers is the introduction of the $50, $100, $500 and $1000 War Savings certificates. Last year each $5 stamp had to be pasted upon a certificate. This year the stamps may be bought in large denominations in single certificates like Liberty bonds.

In general, this year's War Savings campaign will be simple and direct. I will not be burdened with an excess of posters and literature, so necessary last year to stimulate the outpour of money when the war situation was critical. It will be highly educational, because the government wants thrift to take a firm hold on the American people.

The Moose Hall Dance will start Tuesday night with the Peerless Orchestra. Admission 50 cents. Ladies Free.

GALLANT DOGS SAVE LIVES OF MANY SOLDIERS

LONDON. (Correspondence of the Associated Press)—England's dog army rendered gallant service in the war. Many a soldier owes his life to some poor, uncared-for, stray dog. For nearly two years dogs were employed by the British as messengers, as sentries and as guards.

Early in 1917 a war dog school of instruction was established by the British War Office, and Lieutenant-Colonel Richardson, who has devoted his life to training dogs for military and police purposes, was appointed commandant of the school. Gamekeepers, hunt servants and shepherds were called up from the army to assist in the work of instruction.

After a thorough training in England, the dogs were sent to France, and on the battlefields their skill, courage and tenacity amazed the army. Often wounded in the performance of their duties, they never faltered while strength remained to carry on. The official record at their heroic work tells of successful message-carrying thru darkness, mist, rain and shell-fire over the most difficult ground. In a few minutes' time dogs have brought messages over ground that would take a soldier runner hours to cross.

During the great German advance last spring part of the British line in front of a famous French town was cut off by severe enemy barrage. A messenger dog was released with an urgent appeal for re-inforcements. It ran two miles in ten minutes. The result was that a French colonial division was sent up and prevented a disaster. The messenger was a Highland sheep dog.

Another dog with a message ran nearly four miles in twenty minutes, and still another in the same time carried back from the front a map of an important captured position, when a man would have taken an hour and a half to bring it in.

The dogs which have been found most successful in war work are collies, sheep dogs, lurchers and airdales, and crosses of these varieties, while in a number of cases Welsh and Irish terriers have given excellent results.

The work of sentry dogs has been valuable, especially in the Balkans. One gave warning of an enemy scout 300 yards away. On many occasions dogs have given warning of enemy patrols long before the soldier sentries were aware of their presence.

Large numbers of dogs have been used for guard duty, many on the Italian front.
