

At the Theaters

There are few motion picture actors better or more favorably known than Henry B. Walthall, who has appeared in scores of picture successes as star and leading man. For the first time in his screen career, Mr. Walthall will be seen in a picture produced by David W. Griffith under Arctcraft auspices. In this photoplay, "The Great Love," which will be presented at the Star Theatre tonight, Mr. Walthall portrays the role of an unscrupulous British baronet. Mr. Walthall is an exceptionally gifted actor and in portraying the subtleties of this character, he evinces his talent in no uncertain degree. That Mr. Walthall's reputation will be enhanced under the Arctcraft banner is, said by his friends, to be a certainty.

"The Million Dollar Dollies!" The very title suggests luxury, daintiness, refinement, — fascination. All of these are realized in this Metro screen production de luxe which will be seen at the Liberty Theatre tonight. And when one discovers that the "Dollies" in question are the famous Dolly sisters, Roszika and Yancsi, Broadway's celebrated dancers, "the plot thickens."

The charm of these clever girls permeates the entire production, which has been prepared with an Oriental splendor in keeping with the brilliant story that has been written to display the talents of the Dolly Sisters. It reads like a chapter from the Arabian Nights, and deals with a Rajah and a Maharajah, an Indian Palace, and other exciting things. The Dolly's swim, dance, and otherwise disport themselves daintily in beautiful and glittering apparel. And there is a love-story.

Roszika and Yancsi impersonate themselves in this five-act succession of marvels, and naturally no one could improve on that. They are surrounded by a capable cast in production of excitement and charm. Liberty Theatre tonight.

THE DOLLY SISTERS in "THE MILLION DOLLAR DOLLIES" AT THE LIBERTY THEATER TONIGHT

Picture Presents Fashion Review

The Sisters Dolly, Roszika and Yancsi, each wear forty-eight complete changes of costume in the course of the action of Metro's romantic fantasy, "The Million Dollar Dollies," which will be the attraction at the Liberty tonight. Nearly all of the forty-eight gowns worn by Yancsi are exactly like those worn by Roszika. However, in some scenes their attire is different. Roszika, for example, dresses as a fish in one scene, and the gown is a sensation. Women will find this picture a fashion review and the men will also find the many gowns attractive to gaze upon. At the Liberty tonight.

DEAREST PUBLIC:

I have a canned music record entitled "We Have Much to Be Thankful For." After I'd played it 200 times it "took" on me. Here's one of our thanks:

"You have me and I have you." I ain't been much good to you, and you ain't moved the bank over in my place, either. Further, "We have eyes to behold one another." If yah can't do no beholdin', get the spex I've been hollerin' to yah about.

Further, "We have arms to embrace one another." Why, I saw a girl in the movies do the fond embrace, and I'd paid her money if it had been me, but the guy got sore. Guess his folks was lookin'. Embracing is nice in several ways. Leads to the "sweet parting at the gate" ring, and then the thraidom band. Music later.

Further, "We have lips to kiss on and on." The tooth carpenter must live, but it's a long road that has no turning. Some day, at some time some one will show, and then, too, I will wear the toothpick in the face.

Further, "When things go wrong, my dear, and sunbeams disappear, don't give way to feeling blue. Don't do it, Lillian; everyone hates a grouch. Go out and go to the movies, chew gum, drink sodas and raise hell, and t'ren the next day come in and buy some jewelry at McHattans.

Further, "We have voices to tell love's TENDER story." Love's story is generally tender because it's RARELY the truth. However, "truth crushed to earth will rise again." How do I know it? Our car ran over a skunk.

Our motto: You can't better the best. Buy jewelry; we got some. We can fix your watch or pin or lavalliere or reputation, as we have special hooks and eyes for the torn places.

We recover umbrellas, or we can put on a new base and fix the handle so it will be detachable.

Dash to my aid, McHattan, between 6th and 7th St., wrong side.

CHANGE IN ARRANGEMENTS

Owing to the demand for seats on Saturday and Sunday evenings at the Liberty theater, the management wishes to announce that on these two evenings children cannot be admitted on the parents' tickets, as heretofore, but will have an opportunity at each matinee on Saturday and Sunday to take advantage of this privilege, as a child under 12 years of age will be admitted free with each 20c ticket at all matinees and evening performances except Saturday and Sunday night. Children will see the same show, complete, as would be seen in the evening, and gives the grown-ups a better chance for seats. In addition, a special comedy for children will be shown every Saturday matinee.

TEACHERS TAKE JOBS AS ELEVATOR BOYS

WASHINGTON, D. C. Feb. 11.—(Special).—The press of this city quotes Mrs. Mary Brennan Inkster, chairman of the legislative committee of the federated committees of the District Teachers' Union, as saying that unless Congress grants the District of Columbia school teachers a living wage there will be an outpouring of teachers from the capital city of the United States. It is said that twelve teachers have agreed to resign and apply for positions as elevator operators at the Capitol as proof of the extremity of their position. These elevator operators get $109 a month, while many of the teachers get only $750 a year.
