

BIG THRILLER COMING TO THE STAR THEATER

"Tarzan of the Apes," in which the most fascinating character in fiction makes his screen debut, is booked for early showing in this city. It will be seen for two days at the Star theater, which arrangement was made by Manager Houston, after long and continued effort. This is the picture which thrilled New York for many months, and which played there at a high price scale.

Mrs. Agnes H. Eskelson is at the Eskelson store, and she would like to meet those who have an account with her.

Now that the war is over, Paris hats are beginning to come over again. Many of our dress hats are exact replicas of hats that less than six weeks ago were in Paris. They were selected by our agent, Mr. Harry Ross, and were, we think, the very first arrivals this season.

NEW MUSIC AT THE LIBERTY.

The audience was charmed last night by the beautiful music during the performance. In the skillful hands of Harry Borel the charm of the violin is well known to Klamath Falls people and the combination of the photoplayer with the violin is wonderful indeed. Mr. Borel has been engaged to direct the music at the Liberty and the patrons of this popular amusement house are assured of the best music during the showing of the pictures.

Come on in, the water is always warm at the Hot Springs Bath House. Tub or tank. 25 cents. 12-11

NEW MANAGEMENT FOR MERRILL HOTEL

Merrill is going to have a hotel of which it will be proud. The old Riverside is now under the management of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Lawrence, and already signs of improvement are manifest. They took over this hostelry some time ago, but have been gradually making many changes and improvements, until it is quite transformed. And this is of considerable interest for automobilists, for the reason Merrill is sure to be the mecca of many who drive out for pleasure as well as for business.

Mr. Lawrence announces that the Riverside will be open day or night for meals, and special attention will be paid to tourists. When you go to Merrill pay the Riverside a visit. You will be made welcome.

LEAVES RAILROAD LEGISLATION FOR NEXT CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 12.—Adjournment of congress without legislation providing a solution of the railroad problem leaves this question as one of the principal heritages of the next congress. Advocates of various plans already have begun to promote propaganda for their respective theories, and are prepared to urge congress to take up consideration early in the next session.

At that time testimony taken before the senate interstate commerce committee will be available. The new group of legislators will be confronted with recommendations of seven groups of interests. These are: The railroad administration, railroad executives, railway labor, railroad security owners, interstate commerce commission, shippers and state commissions.

The railroad administration's endorsement of a five year extension of federal management was opposed by all other interests, except that the labor group's opposition was qualified. All interests except the railroad administration and railway labor advocated return to private management as soon as congress has enacted legislation permitting a larger measure of unified operation and of stricter government control. The labor forces proposed government ownership with private management.

FIRE BOYS ASKING FOR CO-OPERATION

To the Citizens of Klamath Falls: It is requested that whenever the fire alarm is sounded, that all traffic be stopped, and all vehicles pull to the curb until the fire truck has passed.

It is also requested that while at a fire all persons not belonging to the fire department stand back until called on by the chief or assistant chief.

We are organizing a new department, and we are going to give the city the best protection possible, and if the public observes these rules we can do so.

We also wish to state that every business house and resident district will help us, and it will be appreciated if they will keep all trash and rubbish cleaned up around their places. Your truly.

RUSS PEASANTS
SWEEP FLOORS
WITH CHICKENS

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN NORTH RUSSIA.—The habits and customs of the North Russian peasant are sources of unceasing wonder to the American soldier. The peasants are primitive and are content to reside where the average American housewife would roll up her sleeves and spend many days in scrubbing before she would live. In these wooden or log huts hundreds of Yankee infantrymen and engineers are billeted this winter.

The Americans, generally speaking, occupy one half of the house and the family the other. The Americans' half is as clean as constant "polishing" can make it. But as for the other half, there are chickens, "husky" dogs of the arctic type, and from two to four generations of peasants wandering more or less miscellaneous about their one or two rooms.

"But they keep the chickens cooped up part of the day," one Detroit, Michigan, private told the Associated Press correspondent. "You see," he added, "they only let them out in the morning to 'police' the kitchen. That's easier than sweeping out."

The Russian family's "hide of all these houses is airtight. It is bitterly cold up here in the forests during the six months' winter, and the peasant doesn't believe in wasting heat. His windows are sealed up tight and never, never opened. He doesn't mind the resultant odor.

But the American does, and opens the windows in his side of the house, and the peasant shakes his head gravely and worries for fear his strange khaki-clad guests will catch cold.

But the American doesn't catch cold, and neither does the peasant, for that matter, in his airtight rooms. Both systems seem to work equally well. Since the cold weather has really set in, the soldier and civilian populations have both been surprisingly healthy.

One peasant habit which the American makes countless jokes about is as time honored and unanswerable among the Russians as it is strange to the Americans. That is, sleeping on the stove. The Russian village stoves are built of brick or clay or porcelain. They are about as large as an ordinary American bathroom and flat on top, except where the brick chimney pokes through. One stokes them once or twice a day, until all the wood is burned out, and then closes them up, letting the heated bricks radiate their warmth. The flat tops of these stoves are bed spaces, for the eldest or most honored of the families. American officers have surprised many peasant hosts by declining invitations to use these choicest of all beds.
