KLAMATH, CRATER LAKE, MEDFORD

Southern and Central Oregon want their bit out of the state highway building program, and they are entitled to it. The one important and outstanding unit of highway work that should be undertaken and completed in this year's program is that which will connect Medford, Crater Lake and Klamath Falls.

We do not mean to say that this is the only highway achievement with which the people of that section of the state should be favored; but it is one that is very important. It means much to Southern and Central Oregon particularly, and to the rest of the state generally.

It is announced that the federal government, under its forestry department supervision, will build the road from Crater Lake to Prospect, which will leave a stretch of thirty miles or thereabout to be built between Prospect and Medford. People of Medford and that vicinity contend that this thirty miles should be included in the state highway commission's program for this year. The people of Medford and vicinity are right in that contention.

As we understand the situation, on the other side, toward Klamath Falls, practically the same conditions obtain. The major part of the Crater Lake highway leading to Klamath Falls is within forestry supervision, and it is incumbent upon the Oregon Highway commission to do the rest.

The advantage of the building and connecting of these highways east and west from and around Crater Lake is obvious. It will be the greatest scenic route in the Pacific Northwest, and it will be made available to tourists without the necessity of doubling back. It will provide convenient and comfortable access to a wonderland. It will make available one of the most valuable assets of Oregon.

The contention of the people of that section of the state for the building of these roads, at the earliest practicable date, should receive the support of public minded and progressive citizens throughout Oregon. It is a just contention in every respect.—Telegram.

A VAIN ENTERPRISE

If the republican party in Oregon were engaged as an organization in commercial enterprises how long would it remain the dominant party politically?

A condition quite like that fanciful and seemingly impossible situation now exists in North Dakota. A society or organization engaged in several lines of business is in control of the state government. As an organization it has established co-operative stores for the exclusive patronage of its members; it has established chain banks and chain newspapers, and has ventured into other business enterprises. Now the men who are financially interested in these enterprises control the state machinery which governs competitors in the same lines of private activity.

The last North Dakota legislature, controlled by the non-partisan league, established a state bank, the capital for which will be raised by floating a bond issue which will be a liability against all property. The non-partisan league, as an organization, is already in the banking business. If the league organization can extend exact justice to itself in the matter of its small banks and be equally dutiful to the public as regards the state bank, it will demonstrate that human nature has enjoyed a greater uplift than the most sanguine of us had suspected.

In its banking ventures the league may now be perfectly sincere and be confident of its own rectitude, but its course toward the newspapers bears strong indication that it is not wholly altruistic. Another new law provides for designation in each county of an official newspaper. It will have a broader monopoly of publication of legal notices and advertisements than do the official newspapers in such states as Oregon. An average yearly income of $6,000 is estimated to be the assurance of the county official newspapers in North Dakota. Selection will be made by the state printing board, which is dominated and controlled by the non-partisan league. Let it be remembered that the league already owns a chain of county newspapers and one or two others of larger pretensions. About 200 anti-league newspapers foresee ruin for themselves.

Literary Digest quotes ex-President Taft as predicting failure for the league, because it is "a class movement and, therefore, un-American." One may forecast failure for another reason—because it is a politico-commercial organization. It may conceivably, in time, with the great power now in its hands, destroy all commercial and, consequently, all political rivalry. There will then be nothing but the political league and the commercial league in North Dakota, and they will be one.

Yet you cannot keep differences out of politics, call them party divisions or factional divisions as you choose; nor can you successfully conduct business with long-continued factional differences among the stockholders. Successful politics and successful private business in the same organization are incompatible. This ought to be obvious to any one who will read again the question constituting the first paragraph in this article.—Oregonian.

L. L. HOOKS SAYS HIS TROUBLES ARE OVER

TANLAC BUILT HIM UP SO HE IS NOW WORKING HARD EVERY DAY

"When I weighed the other day I found I had gained thirty-five pounds and that's only a part of what Tanlac has done for me," said L. L. Hooks of North Roswell, Ga., in relating his experience with Tanlac. "I suffered from such an awful case of stomach trouble," he continued, "that I could hardly eat a thing and nothing tasted right. The little I forced down didn't give me any strength and at times I would almost choke from the gas that formed in my stomach. I was so weak and miserable I just couldn't do any work at all and was just about all in."

"I commenced to take Tanlac because I saw the good it was doing others, and I could feel all the difference in the world right from the start; it simply made me feel like a new man. My troubles are now over, it built me up wonderfully and I am working hard, using pick and shovel every day, and never have any more trouble with my stomach."

Tanlac is sold in Klamath Falls by the Star Drug Co., and in Lowell by the James Merc. Co.—Adv.

WIDOWS

Statistics, newly compiled by the American Society of Thrift, show that of 20,000,000 families occupying homes in the United States, 10,700,000 are renters. Of the 9,000,000 who live in their own homes, 6,000,000 are free from debt and 3,000,000 carry mortgages. Of every 100 widows only 18 are left in comfortable circumstances, while 47 are obliged to work and 35 are left in want.

You can provide for your widow by insuring in The First American Life Insurance Co.
