At the Theaters

William S. Hart's new Artcraft picture, "The Border Wireless," which will be shown at the Star Theater tonight has been designated by those who have had knowledge of the production as a picture "with a real thrill." Of course, every Hart picture has a thrill, a consistent story with action in every foot, but the fact that this one is concerned largely with the misadventures of a band of Hun plotters in America, on the borders of Mexico, gives added interest and enables the star to depict certain phases of the war at home which are not only timely, but decidedly fascinating.

Neil Moret, the popular song writer, gave the "Mickey" cast a great surprise at their studio one day, by an unexpected music recital in which he serenaded Mickey. There were many exclamations of delight, of course, since no one had imagined he had even seen any of the scenes in this great photoplay, which will be shown at the Liberty Theater, on Friday and Saturday. Miss Normand, particularly, was pleased with the song, which brought out in each sweet and melodious music, the very spirit of the photoplay.

Today this song, which the photoplay inspired, is proving one of the most popular hits of the year, one million copies having already been sold to the public, song and dance records having been made by the leading talking machine companies, and piano roll companies.

There was a good deal of questioning later on as to how he knew anything about "Mickey." No one in the company had ever noticed Mr. Moret there during the rehearsals. In order to get some peace on the subject, therefore, he told them that he had first noticed Mickey when he dropped into the studio for a chat one day with one of the directors. At that time the very first scenes were being "shot," and attracted by the charming personality of "Mickey," he stayed the entire day. Two hours later, inspired by this fascinating photoplay, he wrote the song dedicated to "Mickey," and which he called "Mickey."

But why Miss Normand should be at all pained, after the first surprise of the song, no one could quite fathom. As for Neil Moret, he set it down as "just like a woman." It leaked out, however several days later, when Miss Normand said she was "afraid" of Mickey. "It sticks so," she complained; "just as Peter Pan is identical with Maude Adams." Nevertheless, just ask Miss Normand some day how proud she is of her twin sister "Mickey." She loves that mischievous little girl as much as every one else does, she has confided many times.

THEATER-GOERS DISAPPOINTED
Those who had looked forward to the production of the "Mickey" picture, which was to be shown at the Liberty Theater today and tomorrow, will be disappointed to learn that a postponement has been made necessary on account of the film being in a damaged condition. Manager Poole states that he will have a new film at an early date, when the expectations of the movie fans of the city will be fully realized.
