A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY

By pure good luck, and the neighborly interest of Mr. J. M. White of Weed, Klamath Falls is to have an opportunity to hear one of the country's greatest men—Dr. Ora S. Gray. We say great, for he is great, inasmuch as he is doing a great work—a work inspired by his redemption or reclamation from what started out to be just an ordinary, hum-drum existence.

He was employed in the woods as a boy, and by chance happened to hear a lecture that changed the whole course of his career. It gave to him the inspiration and desire for an education, and from this beginning he has grown to be one of the big men of the nation.

As he grew into manhood and realized what a great transformation a chance remark of a lecturer made in him, he decided to devote the rest of his life to lecturing, hoping that perhaps even one boy would profit from his talks and travel the same path that led to such great things for him.

Like all things worth while, Dr. Gray discovered that not alone must he appeal to the boy, but he must appeal to the men and women of the communities he would visit. He early discovered that one of the chief factors for success of his mission is community spirit; that a town, or a city, or a county, that did not possess the dynamic force of co-operation among its citizens was close to the bottom of all kinds of development and progress, and he decided to make this one of his chief aims. He believed that where the people worked together for civic betterment, they also worked together for moral betterment and uplift, and the remarkable revival of community interest and development and co-operation that have always followed a visit of Dr. Gray has proven the truth of his theory.

His coming to Klamath Falls must interest everyone, especially those who have boys and girls. Young minds are impressionable, and when they come in contact with such men as Dr. Gray they are impressed as he was impressed as a boy, with the result that the entire trend of thought may be changed, and greater careers opened up to them; their aspirations will be stirred, ambitions created, and as years pass by, and the seed thus planted develops, they will look back with loving memory and gratitude to you and Dr. Gray for the great opportunity.

What is true of the boy and girl is equally true of the older people. They, too, in a way, are boys and girls. They need their thoughts changed, their aspirations stirred, their ambitions re-awakened. They, also, should hear this lecturer tomorrow night. It will cost you nothing but your time, and you will find it has been the most profitable investment you ever made. Dr. Gray makes it one of the conditions of his coming that the lecture shall be free. He is a missionary in a new field, and where in this broad land can be found a more fitting place for his labors than in Klamath Falls.

DEMOCRATS GO BOLSHEVIK

While the republicans of the house are rapidly amalgamating themselves into a harmoniously working unit for the expeditions passage of the legislation of the next congress, the different factions in the ranks of the democrats appear to be drifting further from conciliation. The fight has resolved itself into a contest as to whether Former Speaker Clark is to be the minority leader of the next house. It is no secret that Mr. Clark is not held in favor by the President, and in proof of that statement it is said that Mr. Burleson, the practical politician of the cabinet, is taking a directing hand in the fight against the Missourian. Allied also against him are the forces of Tammany, and the anti-Clark leaders say that they have the promise of the whole block of eighteen Tammany votes in the house.

On the other hand, Mr. Clark counts Kitchin, the former chairman of the ways and means committee, among his friends. The better and more conservative democrats are also giving their support to the former speaker. They admire the independent stand he has taken on several occasions in the past, when he has not hesitated to disregard the wishes of the President, and give his vote and the weight of his great influence to measures that he conceived to be for the best interests of the country, even though they did not bear the stamp of the administration.

Altogether the fight is developing very nicely from a republican standpoint. A united and obstreperous democratic minority could, if they chose, make it very uncomfortable for the party in control in putting through its program. Just in proportion as the minority is split among themselves will the republicans be aided in carrying out their legislative campaign.

AFTER THE COIN

Statistics gathered from leading newspapers in ten, large cities show that during the months of January and February, 1919, advertisements for "help wanted" filled 526,962 lines while advertisements for "situations wanted" filled only 96,245 lines, thus indicating that the demand for help exceeds the demand for positions in the proportion of more than 5 to 1. It is pretty generally believed that this presentation of figures from the advertising columns of papers in various cities refutes the claim of the U. S. employment bureau that the country is confronted with a serious unemployment problem. The desire of the employment service for a renewal of its enormous appropriation is accepted as the chief reason for its constant campaign of publicity concerning unemployment.

Because every man has something to teach; the thing life through experience has taught him to do.

Nature but reproduces; man's experience taking the world where Nature stops builds it better; whether he makes an iron plow to improve the crooked stick—

Or turns mere rubber and cotton into pneumatic tires.

Experience is that unseen thing in tires, the quality of which turns them out good or bad.

It vouches for Goodrich experience that Goodrich made the first American pneumatic tire, and ever since has fathered the improvement of automobile tires.

It shows in burly, full-rounded bodies, and thicker BLACK SAFETY TREADS, extra wide, fortifying the sidewall against rut scraping.

It returns value for your money in service value on your car on the road.
