

"Don't Start Anything You Can't Finish"

You agree with that sentiment we're sure; and you'll also agree with the added idea—"Don't leave unfinished anything you start." That's where the Nation is today. We had to start something; and now we've got to finish it. The fighting's over but paying the bills isn't. We've got to finish the job.

BUY THE NEW VICTORY BONDS

They'll pay you a good revenue; better than previous issues; but that isn't the point. You ought to buy them because they help "finish the job."

The war taught us economy; not simply saving money, but spending it for the right things. These bonds are one of the right things; and

Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes are another

You can buy both—bonds and clothes; both high class security. The clothes are all-wool, perfectly tailored, very smartly styled; they last long and pay a daily dividend in service and good looks; and your satisfaction is guaranteed.

The Victory Bonds are a good investment, too; they pay good interest; they are backed by our government—your money back; and they help

FINISH THE JOB.

The grade does not exceed one and one half per cent and for many miles of the way is eight tenths of one per cent.

Representative Hawley has also promised to use his influence.

The above dispatch which was received via the Associated Press late this afternoon, indicates that the people of Eugene are standing by the offer to use every means in their power to get into commercial and social relationship with Klamath County.

FOCH HOLDS OUT FOR PEACE DUE CONQUEROR.

LONDON, April 22.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail in Paris sends an interview he had with Marshal Foch, in which the marshal is quoted as declaring that "our peace must be a peace of victors, and not of vanquished."

"We must stay on the Rhine," Marshal Foch said. "Pray impress that on your countrymen. It is our only safety and their only safety. We must double lock the door."

"Remember those 76,000,000 Germans will always be a menace to us. They are an envious and warlike people. Their characteristics are not changed. Fifty years hence they will be what they are today. Do not trust the appearances of the moment."

ALICE KNIGHT CALLED HOME

DEACONESS IN EPISCOPALIAN CHURCH WHO HAD WORKED INDEFATIGABLY FOR SOLDIERS ABROAD, PASSES ON.

Word was received here Saturday by Mrs. Gerry Coxad, announcing the death in France recently of Miss Alice J. Knight, deaconess of the Episcopal church of this diocese.

Miss Knight's home was in New York, and she came to the west in the interest of the Episcopal Church, in which she was an earnest and devoted worker. Possessed of a most lovable disposition, she endeared herself to a host of people irrespective of creed. In Klamath Falls the news of her death will come as a most sorrowful messenger.

Inspired by the zeal of the militant christian of old, Miss Knight, on the declaration of war, dropped her work in this field and joining the ranks of the Y. M. C. A. hastened to France, where she labored unceasingly for the soldier boys, who learned to love her as she was loved by those she left behind. On the signing of the armistice, she lectured throughout France, and it is believed this desire to further help the soldier boys was too great a task on her already waning strength and brought about the inevitable result—death.

CHICAGO HAS WORST CRIME WAVE IN HISTORY.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Forty-eight hours of extreme violence caused Chief of Police Garrity to summon all commanding officers to his office and warn them that unless there were unremitting efforts to check the crime wave some of them would face the trial board.

Records now show that since January 1, there have been 43 murders in the city, 29 deaths by manslaughter and eight homicides, a total of 80 killings in 168 days. In addition 292 stores had been robbed, 94 saloons held up and looted and three ticket sellers in elevated railway stations forced to surrender.

Three major causes were given by the chief for the reign of lawlessness—discharge of criminals from the army, unemployment, too few policemen.

"STORKENSEN'S DRIFT" BENEFIT TO SCIENTISTS

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 22.—A residence on sea ice for an indefinite number of months, or even of years, is quite safe and feasible, according to Vilhjalms Stefansson, the Arctic explorer. Storker Storkensen's recent drift about the Arctic on an ice field he looks upon as an incident devoid of any particular danger or difficulties. Speaking recently of some of the results of Storkensen's drift, as indicated by the partial reports which have reached him, Stefansson said:

"His drift and his soundings show clearly the absence of Keenan Land, if Keenan Land is taken to be as shown on the latest maps published by the American Geographical Society. However, Captain Keenan's report of the sighting of Keenan Land was so indefinite that there always has been doubt of just where it would be charted.

"This last journey of the Canadian Arctic Expedition also shows afresh what all the journeys have shown—that the carrying of food in sledge exploration in the north polar area is not only unnecessary but actually a disadvantage, as the heavy loads of food interfere with the ease and speed of travel. Seals and bears are available as food.

"It has also shown that the westward current, known to exist in the vicinity of the Alaska coast, does not exist, or at least is not pronounced, two hundred miles from land.

"They have confirmed the soundings taken in other parts of the Beaufort Sea on the previous journeys of the expedition, showing great depths of the ocean, averaging probably about two miles. I make this statement tentatively, for we have not as yet Storkensen's complete soundings, but on the general report that he found deep water.

"These repeated journeys of the Canadian Arctic Expedition show that every part of the polar area is now easily accessible by sledge travel, if only you have with you a party of young men, who are not homesick, and are willing to spend enough time in their work. For we have shown that you can travel anywhere on the sea ice in summer and live safely on it at periods when you do not care to travel, resuming your Journeys again when the season becomes favorable.
