CLEAN UP.

Tomorrow is to be an important day for Klamath Falls—the municipal wash day, when every man, woman and child is expected to do his and her part in cleaning up.

The ironing is to follow—when all of the wrinkles and rough spots shall be smoothed out.

This city is to be on an exhibition throughout this year. Investors and tourists are daily making inspection trips now, but in August the Best People on Earth will be here. We have the Best Town on Earth—let us prove it.

This we can do by shining and polishing and scrubbing and beautifying this diamond of ours until it shines out in all its resplendent beauty when the visitors arrive. Tomorrow is the beginning. Make the right start, and then keep at it until the job is finished.

MILLS AND MONEY AT KLAMATH

Enough timber is immediately tributary to Klamath Falls to make a lumber train reaching from that city to London and return.

Klamath county will ship $500 cars of box shooks and lumber southward thru California this year.

The product goes all over the world. The box lumber industry of Klamath county is enormous. It is a gold mine in its returns.

The basis of the industry are yellow pine forests, of which 30,000,000 feet is immediately tributary to Klamath Falls, and will probably be ultimately manufactured into lumber and boxes around the shores of Klamath lake. Other billions of feet of the same standing timber cover the eastern slopes of the Cascades.

In one body the Booth-Kelly tract recently sold to St. Louis people, there are 287,000 acres. The tract is almost inconsequential in comparison with the Weyerhaeuser and other great holdings.

Yellow pine is peculiarly suited to manufacture of boxes. It permits of manufacture by a process which prevents warping, often common to other materials.

The payrolls in the milling industry of Klamath county are estimated at around $4,000,000 for the current year. The Pelican Bay company at Klamath Falls is the largest establishment, with a wage list of 500 to 600 men. It has a timber supply to last 30 years. The president is H. D. Mortenson, whose father owns a sawmill at Silverton, Marion county. Both are Wisconsin people. A part of the output is manufactured into boxes ranging in size from five pound grape boxes to boxes of the largest dimensions.

The Algoma mill is on Klamath lake near Klamath Falls, and employs 350 men. The company owns and operates 10 miles of railroad and has a 30 year timber supply.

The Klamath Manufacturing company plant is a sawmill and box factory. The concern has a payroll of 200.

Other establishments are the Ewauna Box company, the Chelsea Lumber company and the Big Lakes Box company, all employing large forces of men. These are mills around Klamath Falls and do not include big plants at Kirk, Chiloquin, the Lamb Lumber company at Modoc Point, and numerous other concerns, some of whose output is hauled to Klamath Falls by auto truck.

A story goes the rounds at Klamath Falls of one man who put $20,000 into a mill and in the third year of its operation drew out $50,000 as profit. There are other accounts veracious or otherwise, of money in milling, as well as in other endeavors, in the great Klamath country.

The milling industry of the region is one of numerous resources on which the Strahorn, railway now building northeast from Klamath Falls, relies for support. A zone of almost inexhaustible forests extends northward to Silver Lake and Bend. It is timber that can never be marketed until a railroad is built. It is one of many resources in Southeastern Oregon that stand waiting for means of transportation.

Beyond the present northern terminus of the Strahorn railroad there are dense belts of timber. There is said to be capital that, as soon as the road reaches these timber areas, will establish logging camps and at once begin shipping logs to new mills to be erected at Klamath Falls.—Journal.

ARMY SURGEONS REBUILD YANKS BODY AND MIND

West's Crippled Heroes Being Fitted to Make Their Own Way.

Reconstruction—no, that's too prosaic. Regeneration is the only word that can describe the remarkable work of rebuilding the wounded in the military hospitals. One feels, after a tour of one of these hospitals, that he has been permitted a visit to a divine workshop where men are fashioned in parts, put together, and taught to function. God made Adam of dust, but these modern scientific surgeons make their men of wood and iron, gold and silver, bone and clay. That is the physical.

Of the mental and spiritual—that which is intangible—well, only this: these surgeons blow into their men of wood and iron, gold and silver, bone and clay, a spirit. And having blown into their product this spirit, they feed the spirit. Then months later from this hospital walks a man who was a maimed man before his legs were blown off at Chateau Thierry. Now he is a draughtsman on his way to a job, confident, happy, independent. He is walking on legs of iron and wood. You would have to see him take them off before you would believe it. He walks so well. Yet his legs are no newer than his spirit or his ability as a draughtsman. Nor is his spirit or ability less firm than those new legs of wood and iron.

The Cost.

There are 1200 war wounded and sick in Letterman General Hospital in the Presidio at San Francisco. Most of these men from the Argonne, Belleau Wood, St. Mihiel, Chateau Thierry, are being remade bodily and spiritually. Of the two phases of their regeneration, the spiritual is perhaps the more difficult. For when a man is mangled of his legs, or his arms, or his eyes, he is apt to lose more than those physical assets. He loses his economic value and with it his confidence and his self-respect. For proof of that we have the legless, the armless, the blind begging on our street corners. They have lost their spirit.

Of course, this divine workshop of the military surgeons is an expensive regenerator. It takes thousands of dollars each month to carry on the work in Letterman Hospital alone, and Letterman is only one of many such hospitals, all of them run by the government.

So next April when the Victory Liberty Loan comes knocking at your door, remember that a big part of the money you lend is to be used to keep running the machinery of these divine workshops where men who were mangled for love of America are being remade.

DETROIT FACES HOUSING PROBLEM

DETROIT, April 23.—With 30,000 families in Detroit unable to secure sanitary quarters in which to live confronting him, Mayor James Couzens has asked Corporation Counsel Wilcox to determine whether the state constitution would permit the city to issue bonds to the extent of $5,000,000 with which to build houses for the homeless. The Mayor's office is besieged daily by hundreds of persons unable to rent homes, and he has requested the United States government to send housing experts here to help solve the problems.

Rents have been advanced from 20 to 100 per cent within the last six months, and it is next to impossible for newcomers to find lodgings.

GUARD BABY'S HEALTH WITH PURE LIME WATER

As lime water is used mostly for babies, too much care cannot be taken in its preparation. Ordinary builder's lime and city water are not good enough, according to our idea. We use pure lime and distilled water in making our lime water, and make it fresh each week.

It will cost you no more than the ordinary kind which some druggists sell.
