STARVE HIM

At the Theaters

Dainty Billie Rhoades in the "bareback" togs of filmy gauze and white tights is an "eyeful of joy."

Miss Rhodes is not only a wonderfully clever comedienne; she is emphatically a "swell looker," being "there" with beauty of face and a figure over which artists and judges of feminine pulchritude rave.

When little Billie pirouettes into the saw-dust ring as "Hoop-La," in the sparkling comedy-drama of that title released by Exhibitors Mutual, you gasp at the vision. You have never seen Billie in tights before? Well, when you see her in "Hoop-La" you'll want to see her again. In fact, the more you see of Billie the better you like her. At the Liberty tonight.

Playing the role of an Oriental clairvoyant was not without discomforts for Mae Marsh, the delightful Goldwyn star, who had previously never felt the slightest uneasiness in the scares of part she has been called upon to portray. Work in the studio and on location has always been so much play for her, but chanting weird incantations in the garb of an Egyptian seeress, as she does in the latest Goldwyn Picture, "Money Mad," which comes to the Star Theatre beginning Sunday got on her nerves, she said.

"Being chased by a giant negro, as I was in 'The Birth of a Nation,' was child's play compared with the feeling that came over me in my first experience in the play, as an Egyptian clairvoyant," remarked Miss Marsh.

"It all seemed so weird, and, tho I never for a moment forgot that it was all acting, I must confess it got on my nerves at first. The weird surroundings, the dimly lighted halls and the sinister-looking Hindus about the place gave me moments of uneasiness, but soon I was myself again and found much that was pleasing in the role, for you know, I've always wanted to play such a part."

In "Toys of Fate," starring the great Nazimova, which will be shown at the Liberty theatre Sunday, the wonderful Russian star, has been declared to have surpassed her marvelous work in her previous Screen Classics, Inc., super-picture, "Revolution." As a gypsy princess, Nazimova brings all the histrionic talent which has made her famous into effective play.

Probably few photoplays produced in the last few years have developed a more mysterious and enigmatic character than that of Judith in "False Ambition," portrayed by Alma Rubens, and to be presented at the Temple theatre on Sunday night.

The daughter of humble people, Judith's ungovernable temper and greed bring her to the Big City where she establishes a fortune-telling salon which caters to and lures High Society. Her unscrupulous activities culminate in her impersonation of the dead sister of a wealthy woman in order to obtain a fortune.

Only when her soul is laid bare before her by the One Man that she fears and learns to love, does this charlatan and schemer break on the rocks of remorse.

"False Ambition" is colorful, gripping and novel.

YANK FAG STUB TO BE MISSED BY PARISIANS

PARIS, April 26.—By no one will the departure of the American soldiers from Paris be more keenly felt than by the humble "megottiers" the pickers-up of cigar stubs and cigarette ends. This has been a golden time for them, and 'Papa Cinquante' who is the recognized boss of the trade and employs some thirty pickers replies disdainfully when they grumble to him about the scarcity of tobacco.

"There's always tobacco where Americans are," he says. "My men follow them up. Fine fellows! They smoke good stuff and, what's better, they just chew their cigars and throw away half of them. That's where we gather in our little harvest.

The quality of 'my tobacco' has gone up several degrees, and he grinned.

"Just now business is fine," he went on. "People are beginning to sit outside the cafes again, and my men pick up all the fag ends on the sidewalk. Another squad cleans up the music hall lounges early in the morning. People smoke more than ever."

Out in the Latin quarter, Papa Cinquante has a drying and sorting shed, where the cigar stubs are cut up and made into pipe mixture, and the cigarette ends are sifted and turned into new smokes. He pays from 5 cents to $1.25 a pound for the raw material, "according to quality," he says.

SERVICE

What the public is interested in, insofar as power and light companies are concerned is SERVICE. If a power company does not give proper service, the consideration which the public has extended to the power company is not returned. Enlightened modern management recognizes this fact and therefore makes every effort within its financial and physical ability to render such service. This is not only a sentimental consideration. It is best business policy. No power company can successfully operate in a community amid dissension, discord and dissatisfaction between itself and its patrons. It has been the experience of this company that its efforts to render good service have been understood and appreciated, and that it has been supported in its endeavors to so arrange its affairs as to give such service.

The year just passed has been an extremely trying one. Many of our men were called to the colors. Requisition by the Government for war time needs made it impossible to secure many kinds of equipment and material used in our business, and what could be obtained by release was most expensive, still we struggled on for SERVICE, and it has been a matter of special gratification to the company to note the cheerfulness with which our patrons have excused the little interruptions which conditions made it impossible to avoid. The current year will see an improvement which we believe will fully satisfy our friends.
