BRITISH POSTOFFICE AND WIRES NOW PAYING.

LONDON, April 29.—The British postoffice, in spite of wartime conditions, reports a profit in 1918 of $33,241,000. Its operation of the telephone service showed a profit of $1,600,000, but it lost over $2,600,000 in operating the telegraphs. It has never been able to make the telegraph system pay, although up until 1917 the annual loss had been steadily reduced.

Thousands of postal employees who were called into military service have been demobilized, and the movement of mail, as well as the conduct of the telephone and telegraph systems is beginning to show some improvement.

An automatic telephone service for London to cost $35,000,000 is planned.

PARIS, April 29.—Baron Makino, head of the Japanese delegation, said that Japan had regretted the omission of the Racial Equality clause and that Japan must revert to her original position on this question.

REVELLE BLOWS FOR WOMEN OF OREGON AGAIN

By Mrs. Sarah A. Evans, State Chairman, Woman's Liberty Loan Committee of Oregon

"This is to be the last Liberty Loan!"

These words we send to you, still thrilling with the joy that was ours when they came to us; not for the promise of work curtailed; not for the lifting of a financial burden from weighted shoulders, but for their resounding cry of victory, heralding a thanksgiving call to all the nations of the earth.

Six months ago we urged you to dedicate your services and your money to the use of the government that victory might be ours. The magnificent response from the women of Oregon, and other states, by their consecrated loyalty and generous support played no small part in bringing joy to the world on the eleventh of last November. Our money, lavishly loaned and used, was the dynamic force that prostrated the German barbarians, and stopped the slaughter of our splendid manhood. The magnitude of our preparations struck terror to the enemy, for it implied the obligation America had taken upon herself, and her grim determination to see it through to a glorious finish.

SARAH A. EVANS

The victory has been won, but have we canceled all our obligations? Certainly not until we have paid every debt incurred to bring about this victory, and honorably return home every soldier who made it possible.

Our thank-offering for the speedy close of the war, the thousands of lives spared, and the untold suffering thus saved must be the preservation of the financial integrity of America, and a comprehensive readjustment of disturbed conditions. This can only be done by a generous and ready response to this last great call—THE VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN.

Let us rededicate ourselves and our treasure once more to the cause of peace, as did the wise men of old when they heard from the Judean Hills the song of victory:

"Peace on Earth; good will to men."

ORDERS

It was at Chateau Thierry. The story is old but it will never wear out. The sorely pressed, but brave and heroic French, shaken by four years of frightful struggle, were in desperate retreat. They told American officers that to go forward was impossible and besought them to turn back.

"Go back!" exclaimed the American commander. "Why, hell, we just got here; my orders are to go forward." And the Americans went forward. The orders on the Victory Liberty Loan are:

"Forward."
