The falling of an aeroplane to earth is one of the sensational features that starts the tangled thread of romance in Bessie Barriscale's Part I. Play, "Maid of the Storm," which comes to the Liberty Theatre today only. To Miss Barriscale, as a little girl in a Scotch fishing village, this aeroplane drops, most unceremoniously—a most interesting "bird-man" to brighten the drab tone of the shore-folk life. As a chariot of romance, therefore, it is very essential to the production, as well as a feature which will add a thrill to the picture.

One of the most virile photoplays seen here in many months, is Cecil B. De Mille's superb Artcraft production of "The Squaw Man" which is on view at the Star Theatre tonight. It is a splendid photoplay, a picturization of Edwin Milton Royle's famous stage success of the same name. The various roles are portrayed by an all star cast of players, headed by Elliott Dexter, and Ann Little.

Who is the "wickedest woman in Paris?" Theda Bara.

It is in this role that she appears in her latest super-production, "The Light," which opens tomorrow at the Liberty Theatre. Here Miss Bara portrays a woman who laughs in the face of the misery of Paris in recent years. While other women sacrifice themselves she becomes entangled in numerous love affairs and lives a life of luxury.

But misery must leave its scar, even upon the heart of a notorious woman. She finds the salvation of her soul in her compassion for a blinded soldier. He teaches her the lesson of sacrifice and noble devotion. For his sake she deserts her old haunts and her old associates. She sees duty at last and obeys its summons by caring tenderly for the blind hero and bringing light into his life.

Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman, begins his career of stealing from the rich to give to the poor by securing the valuable Rose Pearl while on shipboard. Here he meets Mrs. Vidal, who falls violently in love with him. Later Raffles is the center of an admiring group at the club, and he is induced to join the cricket team, enabling them to win an important match. Much talk of the Amateur Cracksman is going about, and when a number of people are invited to a house party at Lord Amersteth's, a valuable necklace is shown. During the night a burglar attempts to steal this, but Raffles stops him and gets the jewels. Captain Bedford is set on the trail of the Amateur Cracksman. He suspects Raffles, and Raffles knows it. From then on until the end there are many interesting incidents relative to the way Raffles has the jewels in his possession when he wants them and gets rid of them when he does not. Incidentally Mrs. Vidal attempts to tell what she knows of Raffles, but his stronger will prevents her from doing so. Finally, explanations are made that are satisfactory all around and the absorbing drama ends. At the Star Theatre Sunday and Monday.

A mystery drama, "The Gray Parosol," is the attraction scheduled to be played at the Temple theatre on Sunday night. Claire Anderson, the "liver and lively Triangle star, plays the lead, supported by Wellington Cross, the well known Broadway musical comedy favorite.

As Hamilton Hill, Wellington Cross is called upon to do some terrific fighting and tall thinking to prevent Claire Anderson's kidnappers and enemies from encompassing their ends.

Fred Jackson, the well known Broadway playwright and magazine writer, is the author of this live mystery drama, which was directed by the famous Lawrence Windem.

Running a car season after season without having it touched by a skilled mechanic is often considered a point of great merit in the car. But generally cars that aren't looked after one a year go to pieces all of a sudden some day and the owner can't understand why.

The reason is that the car was full of little bits of trouble all the time. They kept accumulating, but didn't affect the car's operation. Then all of a sudden they all grew big at once—and the end came.

After every season, especially one such as we have just had, your car should be looked over and at least tuned up.

It is our suggestion that you bring it to our shop, let our mechanics inspect it and advise you as to its condition.
