PUT IT OVER.

Like all things of the kind, the last dollar of a popular subscription is always the hardest to get, and it is so with the terminal fund for the railroad. At the beginning it looked as if it would go over the top with a bang, but as the end approaches, every dollar is harder to get. Those who are doing the work have labored loyally and it is too bad they have been subjected to the many unpleasant difficulties that usually go with tasks of a public nature. But we believe the people of Klamath Falls will get in line and put the job over in a manner equally as commendable as they have put over harder ones. The day is not distant when the people of this city will see that the getting of this railroad was the biggest and best thing Klamath Falls ever did. It is going to bring to our city men of the highest type of constructive ability. It is going to turn into this country a golden stream that will cause to spring up in this city industries that will make a big city of what is today, in comparison, a mere hamlet. It will open up a development the great empire of Eastern Oregon. It will bring to us the railroad connection to the east that we so sorely need for the opening up of our immense resource. Can't you see it as it will be in the future? Can't you go out onto our main business street and feel the very atmosphere of growth? Is there anyone in this city who today doubts what the future holds for this city, if we do our duty? If there is he certainly is what may truly be called a pessimist. But to accomplish the things that are within our grasp it will be necessary that we cut the bands of steel that are binding us, and the only way we can do this is by the construction of the Municipal line, or what is to be the Oregon, California and Eastern.

To get this we must do as we have agreed to do, in fact less than we promised to do at the beginning. All that remains now is the matter of a few thousand dollars. If everyone does his share this will be raised without difficulty.

ARCTIC PLAINS MAY BE LAST 'COW COUNTRY'

SEATTLE, Wash., May 23.—Great plains lying along the Arctic coast in northern Alaska and Canada soon may become America's latest "Cow country" as Gov. Thos. Riggs, Jr., of Alaska and Vilhjalmur Stefansson, Canadian explorer, are advocating the transplanting and developing herds of musk oxen into the now barren lands of the far north. A dispatch received here from Ottawa said the Canadian government may adopt Stefansson's proposal that an experimental station be established on Melville Island, which lies in the Arctic west of the mouth of the Mackenzie River. Stefansson says there are about 4,000 oxen on Melville Island.

Herds later would be moved from Melville Island to the Canadian mainland for breeding and slaughtering, according to Stefansson. Landlanders probably would be secured as "cowboys" to handle the herds.

Arthur Meighen, Canadian minister of the interior is favorably impressed with Stefansson's scheme. It was reported Stefansson recently went before the Canadian parliament and told of his scheme for domesticating the oxen. He suggested that reindeer also be imported.

Alaskans interested in the musk oxen proposal have circulated a petition in the north addressed to Congress asking that the animals be obtained from the Canadian Arctic islands and transplanted in northern Alaska. The Alaskans point to the fact that the government about twenty years ago introduced 1,250 domestic reindeer into northwestern Alaska. Under Eskimo care these herds have increased at the rate of doubling in three years.

Musk oxen if developed in the north will furnish meat, milk and wool. They naturally are a cold weather animal and can well stand the rigors of the northern climate, it is claimed.

Castellucci on Western Tour

Famous Band Director
Brings Concert Band to Chautauqua on Fourth Day

Castellucci, master director of a master band, comes on the fourth day of Chautauqua with the big musical attraction of the week. Castellucci's Concert Band has been a headline attraction on Eastern Chautauquas for several years and this year make their first Western tour. He was educated at the famous International School in Rome, where the great composer, Mascagni was director. His standing in Italy is attested through his appearance by royal command before the King of Italy, Victor Emmanuel at the Quirinale Roma.

Bess Goughart Morrison, one of the country's foremost dramatic talents, will appear both afternoon and evening with Castellucci's Concert Band Her tour last summer over a middle western circuit with this same organization was one of the biggest Chautauqua successes of the year.

FARM WORK IS WELL IN HAND OVER OREGON

PORTLAND, May 23.—Except over limited areas in western and southern Oregon counties, farm work is well in hand and vegetation is fairly well advanced for the season, says the weekly summary of weather and crop condition in Oregon, issued by the weather bureau here. The week was cool, with considerable cloudiness. Light rains were of frequent occurrence in the western counties and scattered showers occurred in most of the eastern part of the state but there was a considerable area in the central and southeastern counties where no rain fell. A little snow fell in a few elevated localities. Frost occurred several mornings in some of the eastern counties. In the central and southern counties there were high drying winds and some dust storms. Snow in the mountains melted rather slowly but streams carried a good flow of water.

The cool weather and light rains were favorable for winter wheat, oats and rye. Where no rain fell these crops are suffering from drought, but the acreage thus affected is relatively small. Some little damage was done by frost and cold winds. Spring wheat, oats and barley are germinating well in most localities and have been helped by rain but need more moisture. Seeding is still in progress in some elevated localities. A few chinch bugs are reported from Polk county and grasshoppers are doing some damage in Klamath county. Planting of corn is progressing rapidly, though over some very small areas, planting was stopped by rain. Warmer weather is needed for corn.

The weather was generally favorable for fruit but there is still complaint of apples, cherries and prunes dropping. Strawberries are plentiful in Douglas county and are ripening in other localities. Early cherries are turning in Umatilla county. The growth of alfalfa and clover has been retarded by low temperature and lack of sunshine. Other hay crops have generally made good growth. Meadows and pastures have been revived by rain in the western counties to make good gains. Shearing continues. Some sheep have been poisoned on the range in Lake county.

Planting of potatoes continues. Early potatoes are growing well. Gardens need warmer weather and more sunshine, the report declares.

DOES IT PAY TO ADVERTISE?

My Answer is YES.
I say this for two reasons—it pays you and pays me.
It pays you for me, or any other merchant, to advertise, because it tells you whenever there are any bargains in the market. It prevents profiteering because the advertising merchant is the balance wheel that keeps prices at the fair level for you. If you watch the advertising columns of a newspaper you will always find it to your advantage, for they always furnish you an opportunity to cut the cost of living.
It pays me to advertise, for in that way I can speak into nearly every home in the city and county, tell those living there I am in business and invite them to give me their patronage. Like every other merchant, there are times when I can buy something in my line at a bargain. Whenever I can do so, I buy it and give you the benefit of it. I could sell my bargains at the regular retail price and make a bigger profit; I could stop my advertising and add the money thus saved to my bank account; I could grab onto every cent that comes my way and deny you participation in the profits such easy money brings me, but I prefer doing business on a different plan. I am anxious to live and let live, and I believe you are willing to do the same thing. That is why I know advertising pays me, and pays you, for you show your appreciation of the efforts of the merchant who is trying to help you cut your living costs, by buying from him—and that is just why he advertises and why his advertising pays.
