LARGE ESTATES OF BOHEMIA TO BE SUBDIVIDED

PRAGUE, (Correspondence of the Associated Press.) There are heated controversies throughout Bohemia over the question of dividing up the great estates held by the land owning magnates of this section of Czechoslovakia.

The people are all the more insistent that this action should be taken because the land owners, for the most part, have been open enemies of the Czech Nationalists and have been faithful satellites of the Hapsburg dynasty which oppressed Bohemia for four centuries.

One of the first acts of the new government was to appoint a commission to make recommendations for reform in land owning. The commission now has reported recommending that the great estates should be bought by the state and that no land owners should be allowed to hold more than about 625 acres.
