FINE TIME AT ROCKY POINT

CROWD FROM CITY WILL GO TO UPPER LAKE RESORT FOR DANCE TO DELICATE NEW BALL TOMORROW NIGHT.

Saturday night is going to be a big night at the Rocky Point Resort on the Upper Klamath Lake unless all signs fail, for this is the date when the new dance hall that has just been constructed by H. H. Harpet, the genial proprietor of the Resort is going to be dedicated and the Peerless Orchestra which has been so accustomed to charm the local public with the fox trot, one step and other joyous glides is promoting the affair to insure its success.

It is expected that a large number will go from here tomorrow at six o'clock when the boat leaves the Shippington pier and after enjoying the dance, will remain over and come home Sunday afternoon.

The recreation facilities of this beautiful spot are well known here and there will probably be a large number who will take advantage of so pleasant a week end.

The great popularity of the Travelers LOW COST Guaranteed life policies is reflected in the fact that during 1918 this progressive company issued more than $218,000,000 of new life business. Ask Chilcote & Smith about the NEW 1919 policies. 9-11

At the Theaters

Beautiful Kathlyn Williams, stately and polished, with that aristocratic bearing that so amply fits her for roles of patrician character, is admirably adapted to the role of Charity Coe Cheever in "We Can't Have Everything" which is to be shown at the Star Theatre tonight.

As the unhappy wife of a wealthy New Yorker of weak moral character, she portrays the role with a refinement that is compelling in its artistry. Miss Williams recently made a real success in another C. B. De Mille-Artercraft picture, "The Whispering Chorus" and her innumerable characterizations in the past long ago stamped her as an actress of wonderful versatility and magnetic personality. She is said to have triumphed over all her previous roles, however, in this latest characterization.

A play for thinking people, based on an idea of wide intellectual appeal, is William J. Hurlbut's sensational marriage drama "The Strange Woman" which will be seen at the Liberty theatre tonight only.

"The Strange Woman" is a play of American life. The scenes are laid in Paris and a small present day city in Iowa, and the contrasts are those of ideas and customs. The heroine does not believe in marriage. In Paris she found much sympathy; in Delphi, Ia., none. It is in no sense a preachy play, but tells a worthwhile story with moments of dramatic intensity and abundance of quaint humor. The star is Gladys Brockwell.

Annette Kellerman, shapely "Queen of the Sea," is the aquatic star at the Liberty Theatre for two days beginning Sunday matinee. Those who remember her famous picture, "A Daughter of the Gods" are promised in this latest William Fox submarine fairy story even more sensational swimming and high-diving stunts, combined with real dramatic situations. The art of condensation has been applied to this feature picture so that thrill follows thrill in constant crescendo, until Miss Kellerman attains a hair-raising climax with her dive of 85 feet from a high wire into the breakers below.

This comes as a logical climax of the story, where the heroine is escaping from a lofty tower by walking a wire cable across a chasm, when the villain cuts the slender strand, and at the same time the tower is blown up. It is a thrill worth going miles to see, whereas you only have to go to the Liberty Theatre.

If you young fellows want the latest in fine Shoes, Bradley has them.

OBITUARY.

By Rev. E. P. Lawrence

The Whitlock chapel was crowded yesterday afternoon by the members of the Rebecca lodge and the many friends of Mrs. Sarah Hardenbrook, to pay their last respects to one whose life had become entwined so closely with theirs by the tender chords of love and friendship. In the passing of Mrs. Hardenbrook, the intimate family, the friends and neighbors and community have lost one who by her life has given evidence of pure gold.

Mrs. Hardenbrook has been a resident of Klamath Falls for the past eleven years, working in the churches, active in the Rebecca lodge and giving herself as a ministering angel in the capacity of a nurse until she was widely known and loved.

The earlier part of her married life was spent at South English, Iowa. She was married in 1877 to Mr. Amos H. Hardenbrook. Originally her home was in the province of Ottawa, Canada.

To this happy home came five children who are all living and all of whom were present except Mrs. W. E. Randolph of Sigourney, Iowa.

The children are Mrs. George Osborne and Mrs. W. E. Randolph of Sigourney, Iowa; Mrs. Merle Houston, Byron Leray and Everett Hardenbrook, all three of whom are living in Klamath Falls and all well known here.

Her life in all its settings is a beautiful illustration of the picture of the ideal woman and mother as given us in the last chapter of the book of Proverbs. One passage that especially fits her character is the following: "Strength and beauty are her clothing and the law of kindness is on her tongue."

The beauty of her character was especially manifest in her capacity as mother in the home. The radiance of love, affection, sterling worth and religious faith radiated there until it permeated the atmosphere of that home—and bound husband and children to her by the tenderest ties.

Who can sound the depths of mother love and yearning—or fathom the spirit of sacrifice that so willingly gives itself in service to loved ones.

The poem by Dwyer Kipling expresses much that we would like to say.

"If I were hanged on the highest hill, Mother O'Mine, Oh Mother O'Mine I know whose love would follow me still. Mother O'Mine, Oh Mother O'Mine. If I were drowned in the deepest sea, Mother O'Mine, Oh Mother O'Mine I know whose tears would cease down to me. Mother O'Mine, Oh Mother O'Mine."

"If I were damned of body and soul, Mother O'Mine, Oh Mother O'Mine, I know whose prayers would make me whole. Mother O'Mine, Oh Mother O'Mine."

In her bitterest suffering her yearning was still for her Dear Children whom she longed to serve.

As a friend and neighbor she had the faculty of winning the love and friendship of others much more readily than the ordinary person. The nurses in the hospital and any who waited on her during the trying times of her suffering were drawn to her by a strange affection. She has left the memory of a ministering angel in the homes where she served as a nurse and as a neighbor she was ever ready to give herself in any way in her power to help.

Back of her beautiful and radiant character was her faith in the Savior. She had become a Christian in childhood and loved the Savior and trusted him all thru life whether it were in times of prosperity and adversity or in times of ill health and poverty. Her faith rang true and touched the lives about her. Her wish in the days of her suffering were that she might go to be with that "Blessed Savior."

The many friends at the services testified to the sympathy of all for the bereaved family and for their deepest respect for her.

There was a multitude of floral offerings from friends and neighbors and the Rebecca lodge. The funeral services were in charge of Rev. E. P. Lawrence, pastor of the Presbyterian church. Miss Francis Wiley sang very beautifully and sympathetically two songs. "Somewhere the Sun is Shining" and "Will there be any Stars in my Crown." The members of the Rebecca lodge were present in a body and conducted in the services at the grave in a very impressive manner. The dust sung as part of that ceremony by Miss Vera Houston and Mrs. Ora Coffey was especially appropriate.

IDAHO IS FACING TEACHER SHORTAGE

MOSCOW, Idaho, June 13.—The Idaho is facing an unprecedented demand for teachers and that requests are coming in from school boards and superintendents faster than they can be filled is the statement made by Prof. P. H. Soulon, head of the school of education at the University of Idaho here. A significant factor in the situation, says Professor Soulon, is the increase in teachers' unions.

"I have been unable even to tabulate the demands for teachers that have come into my office," said the professor. "Three weeks ago I had 62 requests. Since then they have been coming in at the rate of six and seven a day."

"Our graduates have all been placed. We will now have to recommend undergraduates who are willing to take a few years out of their college course to tide us over the difficulty."

This reason for this shortage, according to Professor Soulon, is that war work and industry have offered opportunities for teachers that are unusual. A great many left teaching to go into war work. They are not unwilling to leave high salaried positions in order to return to their own vocation.

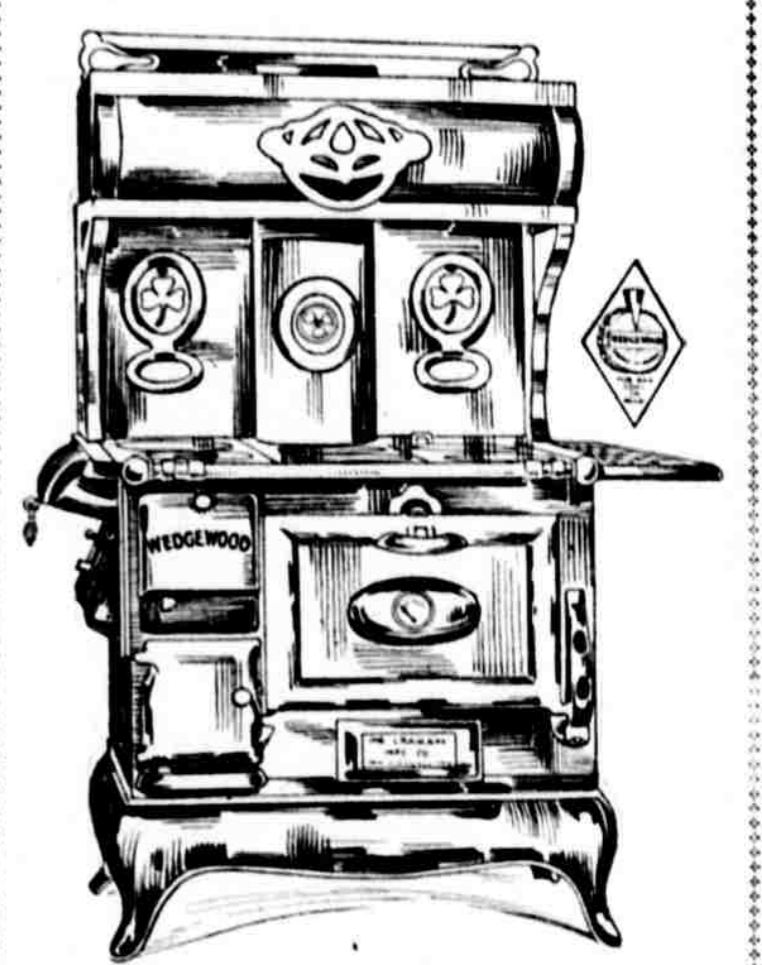

The number of students who left school to enter the war is another factor. The upper classes of colleges were depleted by the demands of the nation. Many of these will not return to college and others are yet not sufficiently well trained to take up teaching.

EDITORIAL

No city on the Coast is growing like Klamath Falls, but most of us do not realize that fact. We are sitting quietly and accepting it just as a matter of fact. Did you notice the tremendous increase in the volume of business done over the Southern Pacific—nearly 100 per cent? Did you notice that there was keen competition for the securities of Klamath Falls, and that they brought the highest price in the history of the city? Do you suppose these things just happen? Not on your life! They happened because we are rapidly passing from a town to a city. If we could erect today 200 new homes they would all be occupied by tomorrow night. Now if you are going to be a part of this city, if you are going to be a factor in laying the foundation and reaping the benefits to follow, now is your chance. Invest. Get in on the ground floor. The time is short and if you want to buy right, buy now. This applies as well to groceries as to real estate. And when you buy at my store you buy right, and you get clean, fresh, A-1 goods.
