

All That Was Left of the Plane in Which Aviator Hawker Tried to Fly Across the Atlantic Ocean

Wreckage of Squaw's Plane on Deck of Steamship

AIR SERVICE TO ICELAND IS NOW PLANNED

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 22.—Official advice to Washington states that Iceland intends to establish a regular air service between Reykjavik, its capital, and the eastern ports of the United States.

P. A. Olafson, the consul at Reykjavik, is quoted as saying that two hydroplanes with sufficient power to accomplish a transatlantic flight are already in commission and that a large airplane corporation has been formed to bring about regular aerial voyages between Iceland and the United States. The present two hydroplanes will be tried out in the circumnavigation of Iceland.

They will not be as fast as a biplane, but they will be able to take the same route as the biplane. The biplane was damaged when it crashed in the ocean and the hydroplanes will be used to transport the wreckage to the United States. The same distance from Cleveland to Newfoundland, and thence to the United States. The same route will be taken on the return trip.

WOULD LIKE TO SPREAD THE NEWS

at other times I would be all bloated up with gas, and would have sharp, shooting pains all thru my body. My kidneys were out of order too, and I just had a dull, heavy pain in the small of my back from morning till night, and I would sleep very little for I would have to get up several times during the night. My back would be so sore and so stiff that I was hardly able to get up in the morning. I was so tired and so weak that I could not do any work. I had read so much about Taylor and had heard so many good things about him that I decided to give it a trial. Well, sir, by the time I had finished my second bottle of Taylor's I was picking up right along. My appetite came back, and from that day to this, it just looks like I can eat anything I want to eat. I eat just anything I like to eat before me now, and I never have the least bit of trouble after meals. My stomach trouble is a thing of the past, and I haven't had one of those cramping spells since I finished my second bottle of Taylor's. My kidneys seem to be all right now, and I can sleep through the night without having to get up. I have gained so much in weight and strength that I can do in as much hard work as I ever could. Taylor did not let me down, and that is just what I want to spread the good news from one part of the country to the other. I hope my experience will encourage others who suffer as I did to take Taylor and get rid of their troubles. Taylor's is sold in Klamath Falls by the Star Drug Co., and in La Grulla by the James Merg Co.—Ads.
