JUST WHAT THE FARMERS WANT

MACHINE THAT WILL DO AWAY WITH BACKBREAKING OPERATION OF PITCHING HAY INTO A WAGON

In this day of labor-saving devices it only seems natural that the farmer should be provided with a machine that would take and load hay in lightning time. The John Deere Side Delivery Rake and hay loader will do all this as twenty farmers of Grandola, California, have proven. One farmer loaded a wagon in eight minutes with one of these appliances.

At the present time there are no side rakes and loaders in this valley and in order to show the farmers here that there is a labor-saving device they have overlooked, the Baldwin Hardware company will demonstrate the machine tomorrow, Sunday, on the Fred McKeen ranch, northeast of Merrill. Every farmer in the valley will be interested in this.

The side Delivery Rake takes the hay from the swath and swings it into a windrow, where it comes to less than an hour's labor. Hay from the windrow is then pitched into the wagon.

The loader discharges the hay from the windrow and into the wagon, eliminating all pitching in the field.

KLAMATH LAD GOES WEST FROM OVERSEAS IN DISGUISE AT BOSTON BY LONG, LOST SISTER

One of the most peculiar tales that has come out of the war is told in a story published in the Klamath Evening Record, and tells how Lieutenant Joseph Higler was met at the dock in Boston, as he heads on his return from France. Lieutenant Higler is a Klamath County soldier, having enlisted here about two years ago. He had resided in this county for nearly eight years, during most of which time he was employed by Len Royce. The following story of his experiences since leaving here reads like a tale from a story book it is so remarkable, as well as interesting.

By Joseph J. Glancy

New England greeted the West today when the City steamer Monitor, having on board members of the Mayor's Reception Committee and prominent Boston and Massachusetts citizens went down the harbor and welcomed back to America the 25 officers and 234 men of the 32nd Division on the transport F. J. Luckenbach.

The returning troops who arrived today are part of the 126th Infantry of the 32nd Division, which comprises the National Guard organizations from Wisconsin and other western states.

Although there were no New England units about the transport, the official boat Monitor was taxed to capacity with mothers, wives and sisters who had travelled from the Far West to give the first greeting to their returning loved ones as they arrived back in the U. S. A.

Just what happened to the young lieutenant, Joseph Higler of the 126th, was asked at the transport, through a woman who returned. The last she had seen of him was at the dock in Boston, as he heads on his return from France.

While the excited benches were being searched for the missing soldier, it was the first time that she had seen her brother in 12 years that she had seen her brother, who left Wisconsin as a boy of 12 years with her to come to this country.

Mrs. Foeuch had an interesting story to tell of her hero brother.

"My brother Joe was born in Cobden, Germany and came to this country with me 12 years ago," she said.

When he became of age he was naturalized and when war broke out joined the American Army and went across to fight the people of the country that had put excited him and others of the peasant class. I have two brothers who stayed in Germany and fought with the German army."

At this point Mrs. Foeuch burst into tears as she told of her three brothers, two with the German army and one with the American, fighting against each other.

As soon as the reception boat was sighted by the troops aboard the transport cheer after cheer came from the khaki clad lads on board, and the naval band on board the Monitor responded with "Home Sweet Home."

While the greetings were being passed between those on the reception boat and the returning troops, organization workers from the Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army and Jewish Welfare League bombarded the soldiers with cigarettes, chocolates and other dainties.

The usual affecting scenes that are witnessed when relatives on the reception boat greet their returning loved ones were also evident today, and those aboard the Monitor will long remember the greeting that was extended between Mrs. Ernest Foeuch of Cambridge and her brother.

When the transport was stepped upon, Mrs. Foeuch had expected to see a parade of the Van Hook group, disoriented Joe, and from the letters I have received the great captain be told in more words."

Mrs. Foeuch disclosed that the majority of her family are loyal to four. Higler and his American uniform, declaring—

"Thank God my three brothers have survived the war, and I am hoping that those now in Germany will come to this great country and join Joe and me."

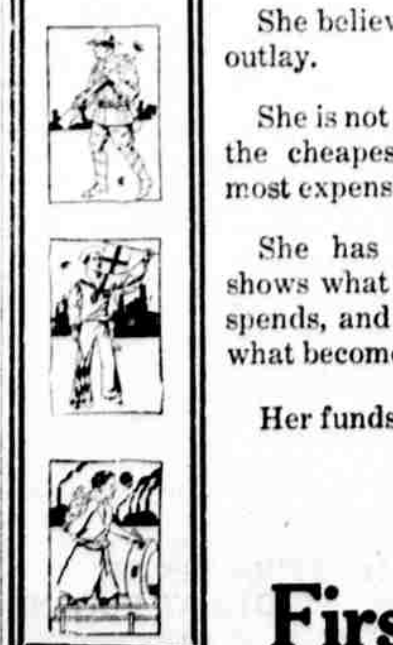

Immediately after the Monitor had docked, Mrs. Foeuch, accompanied by her husband, hurried away to take a train for Camp Devens.

The Luckenbach's troop boys were immediately entrained for Camp Devens, for transfer to Western camps. Among the members of the reception committee aboard the Monitor were Mrs. William Dunbar of the War Camp Community Service, Mrs. Julia C. Moore and Alice Grady.
