HOLLAND WINS OVER BELGIUM

CONTENT BETWEEN DUTCH AND BELGIANS OVER A NARROW STRIP POPULARLY KNOWN AS "DUTCH" APPENDIX-- BOTH PARTIES DIG UP ANCIENT RECORDS

(By Associated Press.)
PARIS.—Holland has scored in the first heat of the diplomatic tourney with her neighbor, Belgium, over the clauses of the treaty of 1839, which have aroused a good deal of feeling on both sides of the Belgo-Dutch border.

It was these 30 years old treaties that gave Holland the Limburg "peninsula"—the narrow, elongated strip of land popularly known as the "Dutch appendix," by crossing which the Germans in their retreat last fall saved themselves a detour of some 40 miles and possible capture by the allied armies.

The Belgians dug up ancient records showing that several towns and villages situated in Dutch Limburg had, in the thirties of last century, petitioned the first king of the Belgians to be joined to his new kingdom. Although the Dutch Limburgers of the present day are said to have no such desires, an influential section of Belgian politicians clamored for the annexation of Limburg to Belgium. Also, to safeguard the future position of Antwerp, the Belgian annexationists claimed the territory known as Dutch Flanders, situated on the southern bank of the Schmidt estuary, which the treaties named had also given to Holland.

These territorial claims aroused a storm of patriotic indignation in Holland. Queen Wilhelmina visited the disputed parts of her dominions, and there was a good deal of flag waving and shouting about "dying in the last ditch" before giving up national territory. The situation was becoming unpleasant. Cool headed elements in Holland realized that an estrangement from the Belgian sister nation would be fraught with disastrous consequences. When a conference was called by the five great powers to reconsider the treaties of 1839, a delegation of eminent Dutch jurists came to Paris with the firm resolve to avoid anything in the nature of a breach with Belgium. On the cession of the territory, however, their instructions were definite, and the Dutch standpoint and been upheld by the five great powers.

It was agreed to institute a commission of seven powers, including Belgium and Holland. This commission is to examine the proposed revision of the treaties of 1839 and submit proposals "implicating neither a transfer of sovereignty nor the creation of international servitudes." The commission will invite Belgium and Holland to submit "joint formulas" in the matter of waterways, the general principles of the Peace Conference to be applied as bases for the same.

The bellicose feeling on both sides now has almost died down.

RESTRICTIONS MAY BE LIFTED ON AUTOS

LONDON, July 5.—The automobile section of the American Chamber of Commerce in London has made representations to the British Board of Trade with the view of having the import restrictions on American motor cars further relaxed if not entirely removed. At present the importation of motor vehicles and parts thereof is limited to 50 percent of the 1913 imports up to September 1, 1919, in proportionate monthly quantities.

Sir Auckland Geddes, President of the Board of Trade, informed the automobile importers that no increase in imports could be allowed at present owing to the necessity of guarding the future of sterling exchange on America.

Sir Auckland said that the Board of Trade could not consider any one trade or industry by itself, but must look at everything with a view to the best interests of the nation. From this point of view the matter of maintaining Great Britain's financial position and therefore the position of her exchanges was the essential consideration.

The American Chamber of Commerce here announces, however, that the government has promised to review the entire import and export position on September 1, and that the Board of Trade has agreed to a concession in favor of reporters not represented in 1914 but who have since established sizeable businesses dependent upon automobiles from America.

MONUMENTS TO MARK ARGONNE ADVANCE

VERDUN.—Monuments to commemorate the achievements of the Americans in the battle of the Argonne are being built, details of the work being attended to by different army units.

A series of concrete monuments adorned with German machine guns and in some instances with German helmets and rifles has been put up to mark the front line of a division advance or to tell of the capture of a certain village by some regiment. Most of the monuments are being placed in prominent places near the main roads, when possible, so that they will serve as guide posts for tourists visiting the scenes where the Americans fought their greatest battle on French soil.
