FOR SERVICE

The Sunset Grocery

Can give it to you, but to make it stronger, we wish to impress on our trade one thing, and that is this:

To enable us to give you better service, at all times, we kindly ask that you do not hold back your morning orders as late as you have been doing. Since we have been having two deliveries daily, many orders do not come in until noon and after. We are asked to get them out on the afternoon delivery. Now, we feel that our trade does not realize how much this inconveniences us, for it is impossible to get them up at the last minute the way we would like to handle them. Besides it makes it very difficult for us to fill these orders and take care of the incoming trade. That is why we say we will greatly appreciate it if you will phone in your orders the first thing every morning, just the same as if there was but one delivery.

VIRGIN ISLANDS HAVE DEVELOPED SINCE PURCHASE

Islanders Looking Forward to Further Development

UNDER NAVY BUREAU

Natives Fill Public Positions Where Possible—Hospitals Have Been Improved and Remodeled—Young Native Girls, Trained as Nurses, Prove Very Capable.

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, July 28.—These islands have been materially developed in some ways since they were purchased by the United States from Denmark less than two years ago. Now that peace has come the islanders are looking forward with great hopes of further developments in the future especially with regard to the harbor of St. Thomas.

The islands are under the control of the Navy Department and the naval officers and their relations with the local legislature, called the Colonial Council, have won the friendship of the inhabitants. The revenues of the islands are not sufficient to meet their requirements and the Navy Department has appropriated annually $200,000 for public works and the general upkeep of affairs. Coupled with the frequent visits of American men-of-war and the spending of much money by the forces stationed on the islands, the naval authorities have endeavored to give aid in every way.

Natives fill public positions where possible and many are studying and preparing for any other opportunities that may offer. The hospitals have been improved and remodeled by officers of the Navy Medical Corps and the American Red Cross has provided furniture and fixtures. Young native girls are being trained as nurses. A start has been made in teaching useful professions to pupils of the public schools. Better sanitary conditions and a proper water supply are being furnished.

The present governor, Admiral W. Oman, has held receptions to which all classes have attended. The people have American soda fountains and restaurants and the national game of baseball has supplanted the English game of cricket. There are three bands composed solely of natives. War-time prohibition is in force.

Generally the islanders are showing a lively interest in American ideas and customs. Evidence of this is the enthusiastic celebration of such national holidays as Decoration Day and Independence Day when the people join with the authorities in patriotic exercises such as saluting the flag, parades and other celebrations unknown here before.

The same laws and methods of governing the islands as under the Danish regime still exist. Lack of change in this respect is attributed to the war. There is some dissatisfaction and agitation among local political aspirants who want American laws and customs to be extended to the islands. More conservative men do not share in this agitation but trust that the necessary change will be made in time, when Congress has decided what form of government the islands shall have.

EMPEROR'S PICTURES ROTHER PRUSSIAN.

BERLIN, July 28.—The question whether photos, chromos or busts of the deposed German Emperor are to be tolerated in official buildings and public schools, has come up again for discussion before the Prussian Diet which was informed by Konrad Haenisch, the Minister of Education, that, despite his efforts to leave the delicate task to the tact and judgment of the responsive officials, numerous instances have been reported to his ministry to the effect that the Hohenzollern emblems, once removed have been ostentatiously restored.

This prompted him to issue a new edict which orders the definite removal of such pictures and other reminders with the exception of art products.

Haenisch was applauded by the Left when he declared that the reminders of "old Kaiser days," could be no more tolerated than were the Republican emblems under the old regime.

He suggested that the iconoclastic operations should proceed with as little demonstration as possible and recommended teachers to use their summer vacation for the job of picking up the painted, etched and marbled Hohenzollern.

MONTANA WILL HAVE ELKS' CONVENTION DURING MID-AUGUST

BOZEMAN, Mont., July 28.—The annual state convention of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, which is to be held in this city August 12, 13 and 14, will have as one of its leading entertainment features a reproduction of the early days of Montana in the shape of a roundup and "the wildest kind" of a wild west show. Citizens of Bozeman have subscribed the necessary guarantee and a committee of active business men has charge of the arrangements. H. L. Casey, chairman of the executive committee of the local Elks' lodge, is planning to accommodate one of the largest crowds that have ever visited Bozeman.

Ad Day of Medicine Hat will be the arena director. He has put on wild west shows at Calgary, Winnipeg, Lethbridge and other places and also was in charge of a wild west show that was produced successfully in New York.

The stars of all the cow camps of the United States and Mexico as well as some of the best ones from western Canada, are planning to participate in the big show. Indians from the Crow and Flathead reservations have been engaged to lend the true aboriginal color to the show and extensive plans to show conditions as they existed in the pioneer days of the sixties in Montana have been completed.

Next year is census year. There'll be many a surprise in the returns.

Winning the Decision
