CANVASSING THE CITY FOR ROOMS

Members of the Women's Improvement Club Hard at Work Preparing to Care for Visitors During the Convention.

A canvass is being made of the city by members of the Women's Improvement Club and the wives of Elks, to ascertain how many rooms can be placed at the disposal of the visiting ladies during the convention. So far fairly good success has been met with, but the matter is not being received with the enthusiastic support the importance of the work in hand demands. It is not a question of "can," but it is one of "must." Klamath Falls is going to be put to the test during the convention. The men can be stowed away anywhere, but the ladies must have comfortable, convenient and clean accommodations. One satisfied lady visitor will be worth ten men as a booster. But aside from the commercial side of the question: Let every woman in Klamath Falls ask herself how she would feel if she visited another city under the same circumstances and was properly cared for? Then think how she would feel if she had no place to sleep.

During the convention every resident of Klamath Falls must do something to contribute to its success. Thousands of visitors will be here, and the one great, crying need is going to be for rooms. Every home in the city has at least one room that can be placed at the disposal of the Elks. If you have not beds and bedding, then these will be furnished, but the rooms must be had, and it is up to the people of the city to furnish them. Let us show our visitors that we can do things and do them right.

Some may worry about the inconvenience. There will be very little, if any. The occupants of the room will be there only to sleep. The Elks are going to keep them so busy they will have no other use for it. A little inconvenience for a few days will soon be forgotten, and will be of inestimable value to the city, and that is what everyone is after—the upbuilding of the greatest little city in the state; a city for which every resident has the greatest pride, and one for which each individual is going to do his or her part in showing it in the right light to visitors during the convention.

CHANGES NAME OF CAVE.

The name of the Great Mammoth Cave in the Lava Beds, has been changed by Mr. Howard, "the cave man", to "Chenoweth." This is the Molise Indian name for the great lava plain in which the cave is situated. Mr. Howard has also made a rough map of the cave, which winds around in the earth like a monster question mark. This will make it easier for sight seeing parties who visit the caves.

DAINTY DRESS DAYS

It is never too late for one dainty-dainty frock like this which can be worn for one occasion or another at least one month in the year. This cream-colored combination of net and lace looks to a girdle of pink ribbon and French flowers for its coloring and it is vivid in its freshness. This model, though late in the season, is a forerunner of 1920 lines.
