At the Theatres

The attraction at the Star tonight is A. H. Woods' presentation of "The Guilty Man," which he showed on a Broadway stage with tremendous success recently. Written by Ruth Helen Davis and Charles Klein, "The Guilty Man" offers one of the strongest and most vital stories of recent days. A daughter who shoots the man her mother married after being deserted by the girl's father, and who is tried for the murder of her real father, is the heroine of the story. The excellent cast includes Gloria Hope, Lillian Reed, William Danforth and others.

Another of those lucky strikes that are few and far between nowadays even in the Golden State, was made by Pete Baldwin who for years has tried to coax a being from the flinty rocks of the mining camps. His only daughter, Susie, is the pride of the camp, where Pete struck it rich. But they have gone to San Francisco and doubtless will be seen no more in Starveout. But wherever they go they will assuredly make friends.

Doesn't this interest you? Don't you want to know what really did happen to the miner and his daughter? You can find out by seeing "Fus and Feathers"—the new Enid Bennett picture from Paramount when it is exhibited at the Temple theatre tonight.

The action of "The Long Lane's Turning", hinges on a trial in which Henry B. Walthall as Harry Sevier, the counsel for defense, loses the case on account of being under the influence of liquor.

Hallie Erminie Rives, from whose novel the photodrama was made by the National Film Corporation for Exhibitors Mutual release, has one of her characters tell a story to illustrate the irresponsible condition caused by drink.

The scene is a trial in a border state in the Southwest. The defendant, a schoolmaster who had killed the local bully, and self-defense seemed adequate. The prosecuting attorney was a friend of the defendant, and no attempt was made at convicting evidence. The prisoner's counsel had caught the people with his plea, and when he finished acquittal seemed a foregone conclusion.

During his speech the district attorney sat in his chair with eyes closed. When his turn came he didn't move—he was asleep, and a laugh went round the courtroom. The sheriff shook him and he awakened suddenly and looked confused. Some friend in the audience called out: "Never mind, old man, if you can't make a speech, recite a poem." Taking his cue from this, the district attorney began to recite Hood's poem of "Eugene Aram," the story of the schoolmaster whose conscience compelled him to confess a murder. The district attorney was a marvelous natural actor, and the audience listened spellbound while he recited to the last line.

Girls Who Negotiated High Minimum Wage For District of Columbia Store Workers

Left to right—The Misses Ina Courtney, Mae Dohkin and Mary Sullivan. These three young women were the workers' representatives at a wage conference which has just agreed upon a minimum rate of $16.50 a week for women employed in the stores of the District of Columbia. They negotiated the highest wage yet fixed through minimum wage efforts anywhere in the world. These girls were chosen by ballot by their 7,000 fellow workers in the District of Columbia.

When he had finished the poem, the district attorney walked out of the courtroom without waiting for the verdict.

The man was convicted, for the district attorney had not realized what he was doing. He was drunk. At the Liberty tonight.

Picture theatregoers will find much that is interesting in the Metro picture, "The Shell Game," starring Emmy Wehlen, which will be shown at the Liberty Theatre Thursday afternoon. For those who have read Kenneth L. Roberts' Saturday Evening Post story, "Good-Will and Almond Shells," this picturization will have an added interest.

To those who are uninitiated, the real meaning of "The Shell Game" will be a puzzle. What is a shell game? In this case almond shells enter into the plot which is concerned with the scheme of a confidence man de luxe. This man of wits plays what is known among men of his kind as a "shell" game to blackmail an apparently unsuspecting victim. Silk Wilkins, the operator of the "shell" game sees an almond as the means of communicating a message to his hoped-for victim. With the skill of his profession he inserts the message into an almond and then fastens it together again, removing all appearances of its having been tampered with. Then when the victim, who has an unusual fondness for almonds, cracks the nuts at his meal, Wilkins slips the "fixed" almond among the rest and waits for results. This starts an interesting chain of events which become more interesting when the shell is cracked and the mysterious message is read. You may learn this secret message at the Liberty Theatre tomorrow.

ABOUT TO GIVE UP WORK, HE ASSERTS

OAKLAND MAN COULD FIND NOTHING TO HELP HIM—"TAN-LAC" MADE LIFE WORTH LIVING.

"I tried all kinds of medicines and treatments for my trouble, but nothing I ever took gave me the relief that Tanlac has," said Ezra D. Shrove, of 2608 Harrison street, Oakland, Cal., to a Tanlac representative, recently. Mr. Shrove is employed by the Southern Pacific railroad in Oakland and has been in his present position for the past five years.

"When I started taking Tanlac I had been having a good deal of trouble with my stomach," he continued. "I didn't have any appetite to speak of and it just looked like nearly everything I would eat would sour and form gas and I would feel like I had a knot of some kind in my stomach. It certainly was a miserable feeling and when these knots would be on me I would have a dull, heavy headache and would be so nervous—times that the least little thing would upset me completely and I would be awfully irritable. This gas in my stomach would also get up around my heart and cause it to palpitate so badly that I would have a smothering feeling like I could hardly get my breath, and I wouldn't be able to sleep good, either, and when I would get up in the morning I would feel so tired and no account that I could hardly keep going. I took all sorts of things in the hope of finding some relief, but nothing seemed to reach my case and I got to where I realized that if I didn't find something pretty soon that would help me, I would have to lay off from my work.

"It was while I was feeling this way that I began taking Tanlac and it seemed to give me relief almost from the start, so I kept on taking it, and I certainly have a mighty fine appetite now and nothing I eat hurts me the least bit. I am seldom bothered with gas on my stomach and hardly ever have a headache and my nerves are in good shape again and I can sleep like a log and get up feeling fine and ready for work. For forty years I had been troubled with malaria and when I went down in Mexico about eleven years ago as a mining engineer and assayer, this trouble got worse and it also bothered me a lot after I got back to the states, but after this Tanlac got my stomach in good shape I was surprised to find that every sign of the malaria just seemed to have disappeared. Tanlac has simply made life worth living to me now and I am glad to recommend it to others that may be suffering like I did."

Tanlac is sold in Klamath Falls by the Star Drug Store and in Lorella by the James Merc. Co.—Adv.

TWELVE CENTS IS SET AS AS LAWFUL PRICE OF SUGAR

CHICAGO, Aug. 12—Twelve cents a pound for sugar was set as a fair price for the consumer to pay today by the federal food administration sugar bureau. Any excess of this amount was declared to be outrageous profiteering. Many groceries have been charging 16 cents.

Diamond TIRES AND TUBES

AS RELIABLE AS THE MAINSPRING IN YOUR WATCH

When you bought your watch you took the mainspring for granted—of course it works. It ought to be good for a year, or two years. Maybe more. So long as it functions you forget it.

You ought to be able to forget the tubes in your automobile casings in just the same manner. Of course, any tube will last for a few months, but the tube that goes, and goes, and goes, year in and year out—the tube that outwears three or four casings—There's the tube that's a real satisfaction.

We can't point to any one thing in a Diamond Gray Tube that makes it so much better. We simply know that it is delivering the goods in unexampled fashion. Try 'em and see.
