

TWO STEAMERS RUN AGROUND ON SHORE

SEATTLE, Aug. 20.—A wireless message received here today stated that two Japanese steamers, the Yomel Maru and the Shindu Maru, had run aground on the shores of the Straits of Juan de Fuca, owing to a heavy fog. The Yomel is in a dangerous position on the Race Rocks, 17 miles west of Victoria, while the Shindu is on Bentical Island. The steamer Shindu was floated late this afternoon. It is proceeding to Port Angeles in a leaky condition.

DR. BLEYTHING LEAVES.

Dr. Wallace M. Bleything, specialist in diseases of the heart and nervous system, left Tuesday morning for a week's business trip to Portland. Dr. Bleything's patients will be handled by Dr. A. A. Soule, with whom Dr. Bleything is associated.

VISITING ELKS WERE SATISFIED

Salenite Writes That Klamath Falls Acquitted Itself With Honor In Handling the Details of the Great Convention.

If after you have worked and tugged and planned and schemed to do something for someone else, and after the job is done you feel that you have "put it over" in pretty good style, and some fellow comes along and slaps you on the back and says, "Kid, you did fine," doesn't it make you feel good? Well, that is the effect of a letter just received from Will E. Purdy of Oregon City, who was an attendant at the Elk's Convention. Mr. Purdy is a pretty good-sized realty operator, he's an Elk and belongs to many other fraternal organizations and was a candidate for governor at the last election. His letter shows that he is a chap who does not forget and who is glad to tell a fellow when he has done a good job—something that so seldom happens that it is really worthy of note. That is why his letter, which reached the Herald today, is published. Klamath Falls did a good job in handling the convention and is glad to know it was appreciated. Mr. Purdy's letter follows:

"I herewith make a report for the columns of your paper of my observations while visiting your city as a member of the Elks at our annual convention.

You might ask me if I got tired. Yes, I did get tired. You might ask again if I were disgusted. I was disgusted to think that in the crowd that assembled on this occasion there should be seven persons who would have a kick coming. You may be inclined to doubt this, but nevertheless it is true. And, I know from the fact that I mingled with the crowd very thoroughly, and interviewed practically most of the people present, and I found only seven who had any fault whatever to find.

I should like to say a few words in regard to the Klamath Falls country from a real man's point of view. I was really surprised at seeing such a magnificent country. The possibilities are great and I have no doubt that it can be developed fully, from the fact that the people there are filled with an Elksdom fraternal spirit. For instance, one business man placed a sign in his window saying that he "wished he were an Elk." More might be said in regard to the growing spirit of the place as referred to by the Editor of the Herald in Friday's issue when he suggested that Klamath Falls was destined to become a city of 25,000 inhabitants on or before 1925. In that article he gave his reasons for believing such to be the case, and I wish to say that the figures and facts as given by the Editor were very convincing and surely will make at least an impression on the outside world.

No man could make a mistake in investing in Klamath County real estate. As the price of land there is bound to rise as developments proceed for they surely have the climate, the soil and the natural advantages. Were I twenty years younger I should immediately cast my lot with the people of Klamath Falls, and I am sure that no mistake would be made in so doing.

Perhaps I have taken too much space in your paper in expressing my impressions received relative to Klamath County; the railroad prospects, the irrigation projects could well be mentioned at this time. My main object, however, is to thank you and the people of Klamath Falls for your courtesy shown us Elk brothers and trusting that I shall have the opportunity to meet you and the people of your city again in the near future, I am

Yours respectfully,
WILL E. PURDY.

Francis X. Bushman, co-star with Beverly Bayne in the clever Metro production, "God's Outlaw" to be shown at the Liberty Theatre today, was noted at Annandale College, as a clever all-round athlete and as a specialist in the fine art of boxing.

One of the scenes in "God's Outlaw," shows Mr. Bushman in a terrific struggle. It is not a ring fight with padded gloves and careful trainers in attendance but a hand to hand battle between two big men. To say that it is one of the most gripping scenes of the play is to put it mildly.

impenetrable it seems, the greater its power to attract. This is the view expressed by Dorothy Dalton, the famous Thomas H. Ince-Paramount star, and her opinion was given after she had completed her work in her newest photoplay, "The Kaiser's Shadow," in which she will be seen at the Star theatre tonight.

This is said to be an absorbingly interesting photoplay, the story of which dealt with the plotings of Hun agents in this country, and the efforts of United States Secret Service operatives to stamp out the menace of German propaganda. In this respect the play teaches patriotic lessons of value to American citizenry, while at the same time it presents a story as captivating in its development as it will prove interesting to all who love red-blood and real Americanism in motion picture drama. Not a War Picture.

Wallace Reid has one of the best parts of his career in "Van Twiller," the young man who comes back in "The Source," the latest Paramount Picture in which he is starred and which will be shown at the Temple theatre tonight. The role affords an interesting study in psychology, but the development of the man, far from being morbid, always shows the upward trend, and the optimistic and cheerful note is sounded throughout the picture.

No wonder you get tired.

All the weight of your body is on the arches of your feet. Shoes make bridges of them. In time they weaken and finally break down. The first symptom is unnaturally tired feet, and often pains in back and legs. Take warning. The provides the support nature intended your arches to have. By distributing the weight of your body evenly over the feet the strain is avoided and serious consequences averted. You can walk, dance or stand without becoming unnaturally tired. The Wizard Adjustable Arch Builder is not an ordinary metal plate arch support. It is a featherlight, flexible, all leather device that can be adjusted to fit your arch by simply arranging the inserts in the pockets so that they feel comfortable. They give instant and permanent relief. If you have been wearing ordinary arch supports change and get a pair of Wizard Arch Builders. By gradual adjustments at home, you can build up your own arch to normal, with ease and comfort.
