PRESIDENT'S 'CENTRAL' RETURNS FROM FRANCE

Miss Beatrice Francfort will never regret that she heard the call for phone duty in France. She could speak French so she volunteered. After an intensive training she was assigned to Tours as listening in censor. Then when President Wilson arrived in France she was sent to Paris to take charge of the switchboard at the Murat mansion. She has just returned from overseas.

CITED FOR BRAVERY, CANNOT RECALL ACT

MERCER, Pa., Aug. 27—Cited for bravery in action and unable to recall the act which his commanding officer thought worth while reporting, is the odd position in which N. Eugene Sampson, of New Wilmington, Pa., finds himself. Sergeant Sampson, of Battery D, 323rd Field Artillery, according to the citation, volunteered for a mission of importance while his command was under fire in the Argonne. The mission was executed successfully, says the citation, but Sergeant Sampson explains that he was so busy helping push back the Germans that he cannot recall the incident.

CRIPPLES CHEER DISABLED MEN

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—King George of England received two of America's most famous cripples—Michael J. Dowling of Olney, Minn., and Quentin D. Corley of Dallas, Texas—on July 25th last at a royal garden party according to a letter from Mrs. Ethel Wood, former secretary of the British ministry of pensions, to the Red Cross institute for crippled and disabled men, made public here today. Dowling lost both legs, his left arm and several fingers of his right hand, as the result of exposure to the cold in a blizzard when he was 14 years old. Corley lost both of his arms in a railroad accident. The British Red Cross Society, through the American Red Cross institute invited the men to visit England to cheer and give courage to the thousands of disabled British soldiers in the reconstruction centers in that country. Twenty-four thousand disabled soldiers, gathered in Central Hall, Westminster, were encouraged by the stories Dowling and Corley told of their struggles to overcome their handicaps. Prince Albert also addressed the audience. The meeting was presided over by Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, British minister of pensions. Dowling and Corley plan to leave England soon for France. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Wood.

BREAD BAKING LOST ART. The baking of white bread is a lost art in Poland. They have forgotten that this was once common in their country and call it "American Bread." The agents of the American Jewish Relief Committee write that Polish bread now consists of 10 percent wheat flour, 10 per cent rye and 80 per cent tree bark for filler.
