AS SEARCHLIGHTS PLAY ON WHITE HOUSE

Modern searchlights give Washington visitors lasting impressions about the executive mansion, the White House, which were not possible a few years ago. It is the night illuminations from many powerful rays, directed from different points. This shows the White House and the east wing, with State, War and Navy Building in the background.

gles in each city were so great that few law-abiding persons tried to procure shoes. There appeared to be no pretext for fitting anyone: Shoes were handed out in boxes, and the buyers took them, seemingly not caring whether they fitted or not, just so they were on the basis of a 50 per cent reduction in price. It was a common sight to see a man loaded up with shoes for his entire family. To obtain admission to a shoe store was fully as difficult as buying a ticket for a World Series baseball game. For hours, the shoe hunters would wait in long lines guarded by soldiers and police before they were finally admitted into the store rooms. Shoe merchants fixed two hours in the morning and two hours in the afternoon for the opening of their stores, but the long line was waiting for shoes several hours before the scheduled time arrived.

Stores Ransacked
Impatience on the part of the crowds caused, in most cases, the summary seizing of goods and the resort to ransacking. Food stores were treated first in this way, but the lawlessness soon spread to clothing and shoe shops. Stores ransacked would be depleted of every commodity—eatable, wearable or portable. There were examples in Sjezla of carrying out all the commodities, loading them in a motor truck and taking them four or five miles out of the city for distribution. Whole hogsheds of wine were roused out the city in this way and distributed. It seemed as if the mobs had designated for them the stores to be looted. There were apparently the most systematic pillaging of those accused of war profiteering. Merchants known to have violated governmental regulations by selling prohibited articles during the war were treated the same way.

Soldiers Explicated
Soldiers sent to restore order in some cases were charged with accepting gifts from the rioters, and at other times filling their pockets with eatables, including biscuits, fruits, nuts and chocolates.

The new situation created by the arbitrary commandeering and fixing of prices is now beginning to react. Storekeepers are refusing to run their businesses on the new basis, while there is evidently a general shortage throughout the various cities affected by the new economic changes. Many well-to-do families who have always been law-abiding, have found themselves suddenly unable to buy food. Some merchants have closed their shops and gone to summer resorts, in the hope that when they return the eruption will have subsided and there will be a return to normal conditions.

At the Theatres

Through the wonderful gardens and quaint villages of old Japan is woven a colorful tale that is gorgeously picturized in the 1919 William Fox Extravaganza "Fan Fan," which will be shown for the first time at the Liberty Theatre today.

The clever Fox Kiddies, who will be remembered for their remarkable work in "Jack and the Beanstalk" and "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp," are again to be seen in this production. Their characterizations make these extraordinarily clever extravaganzas noteworthy productions in these days of intensely dramatic pictures.

To say that "Fan Fan" is a burlesque of the serious emotions and varieties of their elders by these child actors is hardly correct. The fact that they do take grown-up roles and that they portray these characters with all the seriousness and mannerisms that go with the parts is real comedy when it is realized that they are children—but this is art, and not burlesque.

Appearing as a girl castaway on an island in the Pacific, Mary Pickford, the popular screen star, is seen to splendid advantage in the newly reissued Paramount picture "Hearts Adrift" which will be displayed at the Temple theatre tonight and tomorrow.

The story is a simple one, that of a girl who is cast upon an island and who leads a primitive existence until fate throws a man at her feet. They love each other and despite the fact that the man already has a wife, they espouse each other. The girl becomes a mother and later when the man's wife appears on the scene, the distracted wife leaps with her child into an abyss. The man and his wife are thus reunited.

There are numerous thrilling episodes in the picture and supported by Harold Lockwood and a carefully selected company of players. Miss Pickford is seen at her best. The picture was directed by Edwin S. Porter.

ITALY SUFFERS FOR FOOTWEAR

Wild Scrambles for Shoes Prevalent in Florence—Profiteers Hold Up Prices, Causing Much Distress Among People.

FLORENCE, Italy, Sept. 5.—If Dante Alighieri lived in Florence today he might be inspired to write another "Inferno," with shoes as the prime cause of evil. Nothing has been so evident during these post-war days as the need of Italians for footwear.

The recent public demonstration backed by the Camera del Lavoro, or "Chambers of Labor," where stocks of goods of all description in the hands of profiteers in many cities were commandeered and ordered sold at reduced prices, precipitated unusual somersaults of trade, but the wildest scrambles were in the shoe stores. Here the demand for shoes produced scenes of wildest disorder.

Scramble for Shoes
In Rome, Milan, Forli, Bologna and Naples the search for shoes continued for many days. The strug-

As usual, you will find our line of school supplies to be the best offered in Klamath Falls.

Best Quality of tablets, pencils, pens, and other sundries. Prices no higher than you will pay for inferior goods in some places.

School Books

This year practically all the books have been changed, and while we have a very large stock of most of them there are several the supply of which is very limited, and others that will not be obtainable for several weeks.

BUY TODAY

We advise that you buy yours early, and thus secure as many as possible, and besides you will avoid the big rush next Monday and Tuesday. We have the lists all arranged, and can sell you exactly what books will be used in each grade, so that it will not be necessary for you to wait until school opens to get a list of books needed. Of course, if any errors should be made, we will correct them.

BIG BALLOON-FREE

For several years we have given to each boy and girl buying their books of us a big balloon—FREE. This year we have a bigger, better and more attractive one than ever. One will be given to each boy and girl buying school books from us.

PROMPT SERVICE

As in former years, you will find our service to be much the best. Extra help has been secured, so that when you come after your books we will be able to wait upon you promptly. No long waits with the attendant confusion. We pay especial attention to children unaccompanied by parents—they can buy just as easily as the older folks, and if any errors are made we will correct them.
