Society

The opening of the deer season with its lure of hundreds to the hills and surrounding country somewhat curbed the usual number of society events of the week.

Nothing that has occurred in the social circles of the city for some time has caused a greater stir than has the appearance here of L. A. Hepburn. Mr. Hepburn is a teacher of dancing—not the ordinary, every-day jazz dancer, but a teacher of the art of dancing that is fast becoming the recognized pastime of the people of the nation who have tired of the "rag" that has been the source of much criticism.

Another peculiarity about him is that he carries with him the strongest indorsements of the commanding officers of both the navy and army, the chaplains, Red Cross officials and leading church and social workers.

a man who thought his days of dancing were over will be seen to bow to the wishes of his better half and once more learn to trip the light fantastic. Of course, the young folk will hail his coming with delight, for they are ever ready to improve their ability to dance.

Mr. Hepburn says he will remain here only a month, but those who know of his work elsewhere smile at this, for the demand for his services is going to be great enough to compel his lengthening that period of time considerably. It is understood he will give dancing lessons in the Moose Hall Monday, Friday and Saturday evenings and at the White Pelican Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Perhaps his coming will result in a rekindling of the social life of the city that has been so quiet for so many years.

Mrs. A. W. Pell was hostess to the members of the A. N. W. Club after Torrey, Eleanor Torrey, Mrs.

her home on Washington Street, Wednesday afternoon. It was the first meeting of the year and the afternoon was spent mostly in attending to business matters and in arranging for the new books to be read by the Club members during the ensuing year.

Mrs. R. E. Wattenburg illustrated new needle work to be done during the year. Her talk was well received and much appreciated. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

The friends of Mrs. Rose Poole and Mrs. Charlton Currian, of Portland, surprised the two ladies at the home of Mrs. Poole the first of the week. An elaborate dinner was cooked at the home of Miss Agnes Lee and carried to the Poole residence at dinner time. A pleasant evening was passed in dancing and music.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Poole, Mrs. E. H. Poole, Rog-

Charlton Currian, Mrs. A. J. Voyer, Mrs. Jewel Barlow, Miss Agnes Lee, Miss Alice McCourt and Miss Twyla Head.

There will be a social afternoon at the home of Mrs. Rufus Moore today for Mrs. Cordelia Ankeny and her daughter Gladys, who are visiting Mrs. N. M. Cantrall from Eugene.

The invited guests are Mrs. L. Jacobs, Mrs. J. J. Parker, Mrs. Nate Osterheim, Mrs. L. S. Fitch, Mrs. N. M. Cantrall, Mrs. Davis, Miss Gladys Ankeny, Mrs. Cordelia Ankeny and Miss Cordelia Cantrall.

Now that the haying season is well along toward completion the Poe Valley farmers are to celebrate over Saturday and Sunday with a dance and picnic. Several townspeople have received invitations to the two affairs and are looking forward to a good time with enthusiasm.

On Wednesday J. E. Bratton celebrated his birthday with a big dinner, at which the entire sheriff's force feasted on many birthday goodies. The table decorations were in pink and white, with a large bouquet of pink sweet peas gracing the center of the table.

Those who enjoyed Mr. Bratton's hospitality were Sheriff George Humphrey, Allen Sloan, Bert E. Hawkins, Mrs. Orva Ernest, Mrs. Frederrick Marquardt, Miss Minnie Barnum and L. E. Biglow.

In honor of Misses Barbara and Hazel Goeller, who are visiting friends and relatives here, from Portland, Mrs. Leland Haines entertained at a luncheon this week, at which near friends of the visiting young ladies were present.

They were: Mrs. Ine Terwilliger, Mrs. Mabel Carter, Mrs. Charles Moore, Miss Verda Cozad, Miss Vera Houston, Miss Ina Gould, Miss Barbara and Miss Hazel Goeller.

Have you ever thought what a dreary and desolate place this world would be without music? And how lonely the house is where there is none.

As a guardian angel is said to follow us through life, so Music seems to be ever with us on our journey from the cradle to the grave.

If this be true, then it is also true that each home should have the best Musical Instrument that can be procured. The only place to secure the best instruments for the least money is at the KLAMATH FALLS MUSIC HOUSE. We can supply you with everything in the Music line. Pianos, Player Pianos, all kinds of String and Wind instruments, as well as Sheet Music and Music Books.

In Phonographs we carry only the three Standard makes: THE NEW EDISON DIAMOND DISC AND AMBROLAS, VICTROLAS AND COLUMBIA GRAFANOLAS.

This is the only place you can get Records to play on any Phonograph. You will always be welcome to come in and listen to the best music played on the best Phonograph. Instruments sold on terms to suit.
