

DANCING MASTER IS ADEPT AT TEACHING TERPSICHOEAN ART

Those who attended the first dancing class at the Moose hall last night conducted by Prof. L. A. Hepburn were more than rewarded, for the dancing master showed himself to be an artist in teaching terpsichorean devotees the fine art.

Professor Hepburn came to Klamath Falls unknown in this vicinity, but carried the finest credentials from men high in the army and navy. For the past 20 years he has been teaching dancing and has spent much time with soldiers at various camps over the United States during the war days.

He showed those who were on hand last night at the Moose hall that he knew his business from Alpha to Omega. His instruction last night was preliminary and free of charge, yet those who were there mastered the fundamentals of the waltz.

Professor Hepburn teaches and insists on absolute smoothness of movement and rhythm and insisted that all jerkiness be eliminated.

"Unless the dance is elevated there will come a time when it will be entirely removed from our pleasure," said Professor Hepburn in making a plea for the best in dancing. "The day is not far off either—if we continue to abuse our privilege, we will be denied it."

Tonight at 7:30 o'clock Professor Hepburn will hold his first lesson at the White Pelican Hotel. This will be free and classes for the coming month will be formed, following the instruction. Wednesday and Thursday evenings classes will be held at the White Pelican Hotel, while Monday Friday and Saturday evenings classes will be conducted at Moose hall. The charge for the ten lessons will be gentlemen, $8; ladies, $4; per couple, $10; children, $5; single lessons, $1 each.

GRADE BOOKS SOLD OUT

Yesterday proved a trying day for the drug stores in the city. They report today that practically all their grade books are gone and it will be the end of the week, at the very earliest, before any more shipments arrive.

PACIFIC LOGGING CONGRESS TO HOLD ANNUAL GATHERING

PORTLAND, September 8.—In the Douglas fir belt, which extends from British Columbia to Northern California, and in the great redwoods of California, the tendency each year is towards the use of bigger and bigger donkey engines. The weight of these big machines, including the sled, will approximate about fifty or more tons. The cost of these sleds is now about $1000, with a life of about three years or less. Moving these machines in the woods is slow and expensive. The idea has been suggested that the application of the caterpillar or tracklaying system, so successful as applied to the tanks in the late war and to the modern steam shovel, could be applied to the modern logging engine in the woods. This is one of the liveliest subjects which will be discussed at the tenth session of the Pacific Logging Congress, which will be held in Portland, October 8 to 11, Multnomah Hotel, headquarters. Already some enterprising logging companies are considering the question seriously of equipping their donkey engines with caterpillar tractors.

In Idaho logging with tractors is going forward successfully. It is estimated that one-third of the timber Idaho can be more successfully logged with tractors than by any other method.

The officers of the Pacific Logging Congress are:

W. W. Peed, president; Hammond Lumber Co., Eureka, Cal.

T. J. Humbird, vice-president; Humbird Lumber Co., Sanpoint, Idaho.

Geo. M. Cornwall, secretary-treasurer; editor The Timberman, Portland, Ore.

The executive committee consists of:

British Columbia, J. M. Dempsey; British Columbia Loggers' Association, Vancouver.

California, Donald Macdonald, the Pacific Lumber Co., Scotia.

Idaho, M. H. Strathern; Post Falls Lumber & Mfg. Co., Post Falls.

Montana, W. R. Ballard, Somers Lumber Co., Somers.

Oregon, A. H. Powers, Smith-Powers Logging Co., Marshfield.

Washington, Geo. W. Johnson;

Admiralty Logging Co., Seattle. The congress embraces in its jurisdiction the states of Montana, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, California and the province of British Columbia. Its object is to standardize the profession of logging and engineering, and bring about the highest development of the logging branch of the lumber industry.
