

HUNS ORGANIZE RESERVE TROOPS

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN GERMANY, Sept. 12.—The Wuerttemberg government recently reorganized all the so-called reserve sicherheits companies as home guards and the war ministry has turned them over to the minister of the interior. According to information in the hands of the American army officers, this is in accordance with Noske's plan to demilitarize all home guard units so that the allies will not dissolve these units under the terms of the peace treaty.

Early this year many sicherheits companies were organized in Wuerttemberg from remnants of old army units and have since been transferred into the reichwehr or new army. Later many reserve companies were organized elsewhere in Germany but on the same principle as the home guards or einwohnerwehr.

German soldiers who recently protested from Mitau on the eastern front against failure of the Lettish government to provide them land for settlement, in accordance with vague promises of such land to all German soldiers who would help to repel the Bolsheviks, has issued another statement declaring that they have been "shamefully deceived and reserve the right to take such further steps as may be decided upon."

Bitter feeling by the population against the new German army continues in various parts of Germany, trouble having been reported from time to time in towns and villages where troops were to be garrisoned. In most instances the civilians object to the presence of soldiers on the ground that they eat too much food.

An armored locomotive, which is part of the equipment of some Reichwehr or new army units, was sent from shop to shop in Germany because the workmen refused to repair it, as they claimed it was a tool of "Noske's bloodhounds." Men in the railroad shops at Goettingen and Cassel refused to work on the locomotive as well as employees in private machine shops in several parts of the country. The last the Americans heard of the armored engine it was on a sidewalk in Cassel while officers continued their search for workmen to make the necessary repairs.

BOLSHEVIKI CAPTURE MANY

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The remainder of the Kolchack army near Aktubinsk, Orsk, has surrendered to the Bolsheviks, according to a Bolshevik dispatch received here. This makes a total of 45,000 prisoners that have been taken. Many prisoners were also captured in the Northern Dvina region, including some British troops.

CALM COMES TO BOSTON AGAIN

BOSTON, Sept. 12.—The tense situation that has existed over the city for the past few years due to the policemen's strike is calmer today.

Superintendent of Police Crowley said that several striking patrolmen have applied for reinstatement. Governor Coolidge said that he could think of no conditions under which the striking law guardians should be allowed to return to duty. He characterized the action of the policemen as being a destruction of duty rather than a strike.
