LECTURES TO CONTINUE

Seven Day Adventist lectures at the Orpheus Theater will continue for another week, according to information given by Pastor T. L. Theumier this morning. They will be held every evening, except Saturday, at 8 o'clock.

Honesty among Icelanders is so severe a fault that thefts are unknown though locks, bolts and bars are never used. Of the only two acts of felony within the last eight or nine centuries, one was committed by a German settler, who was compelled to make restitution to his victim, and then given the option of death or speedy emigration.

At the Theatres

It is said that in Margarita Fisher's newest picture, "The Mantle of Charity," the combination is the best balanced of any picture made with this popular star. It will be shown at the Liberty Theatre tonight. The story is by Stephen Fox, the direction by Edward Sloman, the casting was done by Studio Manager J. R. Crone and the supporting cast includes Jack Mower, Daniel Gilfeather, Louella Maxam and other well-known players.

Many of the scenes were taken in San Francisco and some of them in the part of Chinatown that escaped the earthquake and fire. The quaintly paneled house fronts, suggestive of mystery lurking behind, are clearly shown in the picture and the narrow, tortuous streets add materially to the effect.

In passing one of the largest oriental importers' establishments, Miss Fisher was invited to come in and "choose any gift." An ancient kimono of the Ming Dynasty was the favored article and Miss Fisher now lolls in it between "takes."

"The Turn in the Road," a Brentwood Film Corporation production, released thru Exhibitors Mutual, is a beautiful story beautifully told. The theme is one that is as old as the world and as universal as man, carrying a message of love, pathos and human emotion that makes the production one of absorbing human interest.

Paul Perry, son of a money-mad father, married the lovely daughter of a minister of the orthodox religion. When his wife died in child birth Paul lost faith in the "God to Whom the will of man should meekly bow," as he had been taught, and became a wanderer.

He went in quest of the true God, but sank to the depths of degradation in his search. After many years of unavailing search he returned to his old home to learn from the lips of his own child the truths the world could not teach him.

Into the story is woven the self-sacrifice and unflinching love of a girl—his dead wife's sister—who had devoted her life to the care of his little boy and taught him that "God is love."

Little Bob, his son, by his child-like faith, melted the money-hardened heart of old Perry, incidentally saving his life from a gang of workmen who had been driven to desperation by his iron-fisted domination. "The Turn in the Road" was written by King W. Vidor and produced under the personal direction of the author. At the Liberty Sunday and Monday.

Elsie Ferguson, the beautiful Artcraft star, will be seen as a Parisian newspaper reporter in her latest photoplay, "His Parisian Wife," which will be shown at the Star theatre tonight. This is a delightful story adapted by Eve Unsell and the picture was directed with highly gratifying results by Emile Chautard.

Miss Ferguson plays the part of Fauvette, a girl reporter in Paris who weds Martin Wesley, a Boston lawyer, after a brief courtship. When Wesley takes his bride to his New England home, she is received with coldness by his Puritanical parents, and they proceed to make her life miserable. They succeed in convincing Wesley that his wife must have had "a past," and he treats her with studied cruelty.

Laughs come thick and fast in "Sis Hopkins," Mabel Normand's new Goldwyn Picture, which comes to the Star Theatre beginning Sunday. It is not to be wondered at with two such comic creatures as the star and the gawky Sisseretta, called Sis for short, made into one.

The screen version of the play brought Rose Melville fame and made millions of theatregoers laugh is certain to score even greater success than was achieved by the Rose Melville vehicle in its stage form.

FOREST FIRES KILL MILLIONS OF FISH

BUTTE Mont., Sept. 13.—Forest fires have been responsible for the killing of many millions of fish and in some districts of Montana it will be two years before the streams will contain any large enough for the angler to bring home, according to J. H. Bronson, state superintendent of fish hatcheries, here recently from his Helena headquarters.

"The fire itself destroys the natural watersheds," said Mr. Bronson, "and the heat from the flames warms the water to such an extent that the fish which are NOT killed outright become diseased and later die. The ashes settle in the bottom of the streams and smother the eggs so that it will be at least two years before any fish will appear in the streams again."

The Chinese point of view of maritime disasters is peculiar. The duty of a Chinese sailor is well defined. He must save the men first, then the children, and finally the women. This is on the theory that men are most valuable to the State, that adoptive parents can be found for children, and that women without husbands are destitute.
