

"Hello, Jack! You're just in time for a cold bottle. I brewed it from a product of malt and hops. It's easy to make. There's no skill or apparatus required and it's got the good old taste, foam and everything. It's not against the law to make Bebe Syrup at home. You'll enjoy the beverage you brew from Bebe Syrup. It's not sweet and sickening like acid containing fruit drinks.

And it costs you only 7 cents a quart to brew.

If, after following our directions, you should not be satisfied with the brew produced, we will refund your money.

Home brewing, like bread baking, is a matter of proper fermentation; and some experience is necessary to secure the best results. Therefore your succeeding brews probably will be even better than the first.

BREW YOUR OWN FROM BEBE SYRUP

WE ARE ALSO AGENTS FOR BREWERS' MALT, A MALT MADE ESPECIALLY FOR HOME BREW; GETS THE RESULTS WITHOUT THE WILDNESS OF THE COMMON BAKER'S MALT.

BIRD DOG CONTESTS START IN PORTLAND

LEBANON, Ore., Sept. 15.—With the opening of the "Victory Trials" of the International Association of Field Clubs, here today will begin what bird dog lovers from all parts of the country expect to be the most spectacular series of bird dog contests ever held in America.

Nearly every dog owner and handler of note and every prominent bird dog now before the public, it is said, will participate in the contests, beginning today with the races of the Pacific Coast Field Trial Club, the oldest organization of its kind in the country, which for the first time in its history is holding its trials outside of Calif. The series will continue with the trials of the Oregon Field Trial Club, also at Lebanon, starting Sept. 19. Washington Field Trial Club, also at Lebanon, starting Sept. 19. Washington Field Trial Club, Mount Vernon, Wash., September 22; British Columbia Field Trial Club, Ladner, B. C. September 29, and will conclude with the international championship at Ladner, following the British Columbia races.

The field trial grounds of the Oregon club at Lebanon have been pronounced by veteran dog lovers to be in many ways the most perfect of their kind. They consist of a series of comparatively open fields, skirted by good roads, thus giving the dogs ample opportunity to show their speed and range, while spectators will be enabled to enjoy the unique comfort of following the races in their automobiles. The grounds are well stocked with Mongolian pheasants and Bob White quail, two varieties of birds noted for their ability to hide in scant cover. There are also native grouse and top knot quail and a few Hungarian partridges.

SHOTGUNS POINTED TOWARD DUCKS ON TUESDAY MORNING

Mallard and Teal will vie with the buck deer beginning Tuesday September 16th, in absorbing the attention of the hunters and sportsmen in the county.

Duck season officially opens tomorrow at sunrise and indications are that local sportsmen will hurry to nearby lakes and various streams to the haunts of the web-footed fowl. One does not have to take a trip over Klamath County to assure himself that there are plenty of ducks swimming about the lakes. Nearby streams show an abundance of fowl, despite the fact that thousands died in Lower Klamath Lake from drinking alkali water.

The opening of the season tomorrow is in conformity with the federal law, which takes precedence over the state law. The latter legislation placed the opening of the season at October 1st, but recent rulings made by the state fish and game commission over-ruled the Oregon law in favor of the federal law. The bag limit for ducks is 25 in one day and 30 in any seven consecutive days.

Over season on ducks continues until December 1st.
