The Feast of the Red Lantern Light—the procession of the War Maiden of China! Anything so fantastic and weird has never before been embodied in a play, but you can see it all—visualize the strange ceremony in this vivid picture of the Far East. See it for yourself in "The Red Lantern" at the Liberty Theatre Sunday and Monday, with NAZIMOVA, the incomparable star in a dual role of strength and power. It

RADIOPHONE ON AUTO IS TESTED

Comes now the radiophone as a new automobile accessory.

In a recent issue of Motor an interesting article on the adaptation of a radiophone for automobiles appears. The device very much resembles wireless equipment.

"This radiophone outfit," says Motor, "is capable of keeping in communication with another station for a distance of 15 or 20 miles. The transmitting apparatus employs vacuum tubes as generators of radio energy and the receiver embodies amplifiers which enable communication to be maintained long after the signals have become too weak to be heard."

In its present form this automobile telephone equipment would scarcely be capable of general adoption, but it is not hard to see in it the progenitor of the outfit that will some day be available, whereby the business man will be able to keep in constant touch with his office or home, no matter where he may be.

At the Theatres

"The False Faces," Thomas H. Ince's film adaptation of the famous story by Louis Joseph Vance which ran serially in The Saturday Evening Post, is one of those rare pictures which will speedily convince the average exhibitor that it was built especially for him. Not in many months has there been produced a picture with more pulling power and with greater exploitation possibilities than the Paramount-Arcraft Special released this week.

This is not essentially a story of the war, but rather is a story of the gripping and enthralling adventures of one of the most entertaining characters in modern fiction—the "Lone Wolf," who, for the time being, has turned from criminal pursuits to avenge the loss of his home and to serve his country in her hour of need. It has been interpreted in the masterly Ince style, with the aid of a superb cast headed by Henry B. Walthall. Others whose names are household words wherever good pictures are known are Mary Anderson the beautiful heroine, Lon Chaney, Milton Ross, Thornton Edwards, W. Lam Bowman, Carry MeGarry and Ernest Pasque. It is a story that fairly sizzles with adventure, romance and mystery. At the Star Theatre tonight.

Charles Ray is becoming more and more popular with screen fans with each succeeding Paramount Picture and the reason for his success is not difficult to find. He is a hard working player, who subordinates everything to his acting, and by diligent study he makes each character creation that he attempts more lifelike and satisfying than the one preceding it.

In "The Law of the North," the latest Paramount Picture produced under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince, in which he is starred and which will be shown at the Star Theatre Sunday he gives a graphic screen portrait of a courageous young Frenchman of the Northwest. It is a typical Ray part.

Nazimova, the distinguished Russian star, will be the feature in the Powerful Metro super-feature, "The Red Lantern," at the Liberty Theatre on Sunday and Monday. In it she is seen in a dual role, which gives her opportunity for the most powerful characterizations of her brilliant career.

The two roles which she enacts are as widely different as the poles—one is that of the Eurasian girl, Mah-lee, and the other Blanche, her English half-sister.

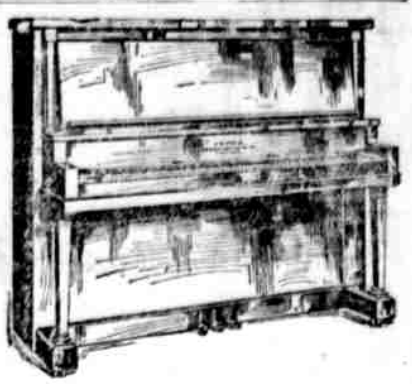

The story tells of the life of this half-cast girl, who, born in a coffin shop in the Chinese quarter of Peking, is at the death of her grandmother, taken to the Christian Mission and brought up amidst European surroundings. The conflicting blood which surges in her veins causes her passionate restlessness—she feels the lure of China, the mysterious and passionate land of her mother, but the inheritance of her English father, the ideals and intellect of the West, are strong within her and she is like a ball in the hands of Fate—flung from one extreme to the other.
How she becomes the powerful War Maiden of China—the Goddess of the Red Lantern—is shown in this

DOCK CONGESTION MAKES FOOD SCARCE

LONDON, Sept. 27.—One cause for the high price of living, against which all London is complaining, is given as the congestion at the docks where whole cargoes of food and other supplies are being held up because it is impossible to unload and distribute them to points where they are needed. Government occupancy of warehouses is given as the principal reason for the congestion.

The western granary which should be filled with provision for London is filled with uniforms for the Australian army, and other instances equally irritating to the average Londoner are being cited.

We have a rather deep-rooted notion that the present temper of the American people leans toward furthering the development its own industrial resources rather than worrying whether the Irish have a republic; whether Jerusalem is restored to the Jews, or whether the South Sea savages are supplied with socks.
