WHEN AVIATION WAS NEW Benjamin Franklin Evidently Had SAVED MILLIONS Expectations of Its Value, Though

Venturing No Predictions.

Somebody has been quite naturally reminded by events in the air, of whot Benjamin Franklin said to Condorect about aeronautics 136 years ago, in Paris. The French capital was just then much interested in the balloon ascensions of the Montgolfier brothers, perhaps even more excited, on the smaller scare of the times, than modern cities over the actual crossing of the Atlantic, and wherever men came together the future possibilities of ballooning minde en innuesinte topic of conversation. Condorect, meeting Franklin, asked him if he thought an aeronaut would ever he able to steer his balloon. "The thing is in its infinney," said Frankiin, "It is necessary to wait," "But what is the good of it?" depended a doubling Thomas, "What useful purpose will it serve?" "Gentlemen." repiled Franklin, "It is a child just horn: let us wait to judge it until its education is completed." And even now the education is far from an-Ished.

Direct Connection Traced Between Great Conflict and the Annoying Scarcity of Laundresses.

This is from Alexandria, our neigh-housekeepers there are having quite a time getting "help," especially some one to do the family wash. The necessity for clean clothes is one which devolves upon civilized beings. Wars may come and wars may go, but the washtub and washboard go on forever.

But it has been hard to get a laundress in Alexandria. War-time conditions have enabled many who earned their living at the tub to turn to less arduous pursuits, with the result that there is a scarcity of "wash ladies." The condition is one paralleled in many other citles.

"Aunt Lucy." said one Alexandrian woman, addressing a colored woman whom she had known for many years, "don't you know some one who can do my washing?"

'No, ma'am I don't know no one," she said.

The woman made a last attempt, "Won't you do it for me, Aunt she asked, with a winning "'Deed, chile," said Aunt Lucy, "I "Why?" asked the woman.

"Well, honey, hit is jes like this," explained Aunt Lucy with a nice disfluction: "De Civil war made us free. And dis here worl' war has made us Independent."-Washington Star.

Imagination.

There is no commoner cause of his torical misjudgment than the tendency to read the events of the past teo exclusively in the light of the present, and so twist the cold and unconscious record into the training service of controversial politics, And yet history is inevitably to a great extent a work of the imagination. No good historian is content merely to repeat the record of the past. He has to understand it, to see behind it, to find more in it than it actually says. The cannot understand without the use of his constructive imagination, and he cannot imagine effectively with-out the use of his experience. I halieve it is one of the marks of a great historian to see both present and post, as it were, with the same unclouded eye, to realize the past story as if it were now proceeding before him, and envisage the present much in the same perspective as it will bear when it is as one chapter, or so many pages. In the great volume of the past. We know in Gibbon's case how much the historian of the Roman empire learnt from the captain of the Hampshire greendlers. And it would surely be folly to tell a man who had Lved through the French or Russian revolution to target his own experience when he came to treat of similar events in history-Gilbert Murray,

Piece of Ancient Metcor.

Meteorites of indicated great are are considencias by their absence from muermi eductions, and it is successed that such spectrums tiny disintegrate and disappear from the rocks within relatively short time after falling. The Pritish museum, however, has lately acquired a slice of somewhat less then a pound from a meteorie icon that is believed to represent an ancient fail. The silce is from one of two simflor masses that were found in January, 1025, within a few miles of Dawsee. Klondike, and that from their position doep in the oldest gravels of the district are thought to have rested there since the Phocene age or before. From his study of the original specimens in the Museum of the Geological Survey at Ottawa, R. A. A. Johnson concluded that they are part of a single meteoric shower of Tertiary time.
